Mr. Green was cross-examined by Mr. Gill, who questioned witness as to his duties on the day of the races. Witness said they consisted in entertaining a race party. Mr. Gill remarked that luncheon was going on all the afternoon, perhaps.

"Witness angrily replied: "Do you think I was drunk?" This was followed by loud laughter in court and by "No, no," from Mr. Gill.

Continuing witness said he had not told the Prince of Wales that the plaintiff had made withdrawals of counters when the cards are against him. Mr. Green also repeated his denial that an agreement had been entered into to watch Cumming. He added, however: "But after having been informed that Sir William Cumming was cheating I naturally looked at his play on the second night."

Lorgnettes Leveled at This Witness.

Mrs. Lycette Green, wife of the previous witness and daughter of Arthur Wilson, sr., was the next witness. Mrs. Green said that in 1886 Cumming dined at her house and there taught her to play baccarat. Mrs. Green explained that she had previously met plaintiff at the house of her mother and she had intimately known a relation of Cumming, for which relation she still had a great regard. Mrs. Green then described the position of the baccarat players during the games played at Tranby Croft in September last and said she heard the Prince of Wales tell plaintiff to put his stakes where they could be seen. Upon one of these occasions Cumming replied: "It is on the paper in front o me." Mrs. Green said she noticed plaintiff on the night in question was "in luck and nothing more."

Witness then gave an account of the events during the second night of the baccarat playing after she had been informed Cumming had been cheating. Mrs. Green's testimony in this respect agreed in every essential detail with that given by the previous witnesses on behalf of the defendant.

Mrs. Green positively declared that she had not mentioned the unpleasant baccarat incident to anybody but her husband until legal action was taken against herself and the other defendants by Cumming.

Sir Edward Clarke had just commenced his cross-examination of Mrs. Green, from which nothing of material interest had transpired, when the court adjourned until to-morrow.

Mrs. Green is a quiet-looking young lady. She answered Sir Charles Russell's questions in a firm, clear voice and showed no nervousness, though she was exposed to the fire of nearly every opera glass and lorgnette in court.

They Belonged to the Prince.

During Mr. Wilson's cross-examination the fact was elicited that the counters used at the baccarat games at Tranby Croft were the property of the Prince of Wales and were a set carried about by him when visiting country houses for the indispensable baccarat.

It is said that Lord Middleton, brother-in-law of Sir William Gordon Cumming, is supplying the ready money needed for the baccarat suit. A despatch from Inverness says that the interest in the trial in the north of Scotland, where the Cummings and the Middletons have seats, is intense. Cumming is said to be a direct descendant of the person of that name who was killed by Robert Bruce, and the family is one of the most ancient in Scotland.

RIOT IN JERUSALEM.

Catholics and Greeks Come in Collision—Many Killed.

LONDON, June 5.—A despatch from Constantinople reports a serious riot at Jerusalem between Catholics and Greeks. The Turkish troops intervened, killing several and wounding a large number. The French ambassador at Constantinople sent a strong protest to the Porte against the action of the Turkish troops.

RUSSIAN DISTRESS.

Hundreds of Peasants Perishing from Starvation.

LONDON, June 4.—The Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent gives a pitiable account of the destitution he witnessed in the districts of Kazan, Simbersk, Samara, Nijnii-Novorgorod and Penza. Hundreds of persons have died of starvation in the past five weeks.

The peasants in the Simbersk and St. Mara districts have revolted and attacked the corn magazines. A number of conflicts have occurred between the peasants and the troops, and several persons have been killed and many injured. Gloomy harvest prospects increase the horror of the situation. The Minister of the Interior has forbidden any reference to the matter by the newspapers.

To Hunt Down the Brigands.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 4.—The capture by brigands yesterday of a number of passengers on the eastern express, near Tcherkeskeui, has aroused the Turkish Government, and decisive measures will be taken to prevent a repetition of the crime. The Governor of the province in which the outrage was perpetrated is organizing a force to pursue the brigands. Herr Israel, the Berlin banker of the captives, to-day started for Kirk-Kilissa, a town 33 miles from Adrianople, having in his possession the $40,000 asked for by the outlaws.

STORY OF THE DAY.

As Told by the Physician's Bulletins.

SIR JOHN HOURLY GREW WEAKER

And Manifested a Lesser Degree of Strength.

The Premier's Grim Struggling With His Last Opponent—Another Physician Summoned in Deference to the Wishes of the Family and the House of Commons—Interviews With the Doctors.

OTTAWA, June 4.—It is a week since the Premier was laid low. His condition to-day is actually better than yesterday, but his physicians adhere to their first statement that his illness must terminate fatally. Sir James Grant is known to take a gloomy view generally, but his view was once more endorsed to-night by Dr. Wright, who always entertains the most hopeful views of a case. They stated to the little knot of correspondents gathered at Earnscliffe to learn the result of their evening consultation that notwithstanding the brightened intelligence this afternoon the Old Man was weaker than ever. The paralysis seems to have relaxed somewhat. The trouble most feared is failure of the heart. To-night, "in deference to the Commons and the family," as Sir James Grant expressed it, a despatch was sent to Montreal summoning again Dr. George Ross, professor in Therapeutics at McGill.

Sir James Grant said there was no change in the Premier's condition. People had taken a very encouraging and hopeful view from the nature of the bulletins issued to-day, but in this they are mistaken. The Premier's condition is not improved. His pulse is very feeble and we both think he is weaker to-night than at any time since his illness.

EARNSCLIFFE, 6 a.m.—Sir John passed the night without any change to record. He took his nourishment at the usual intervals and slept a good deal between times. His strength remains as yesterday. Respiration 28, pulse 100 and having the same character as during the past two days.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

EARNSCLIFFE, 11.15 a.m.—Sir John Macdonald passed a fairly comfortable night and partook of nourishment at intervals. His cerebral symptoms are slightly improved at the time of our consultation, owing doubtless to the fact that [illegible] days since his seizure partial absorption has had time to take place. His heart's action, however, is extremely feeble and irregular, and its failure is at present the chief danger.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

EARNSCLIFFE, 7.15 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald's condition throughout the day has been simply one of continuous weakness from a deficient heart action. This afternoon he exhibited decidedly an increase of consciousness lasting over two hours.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

EARNSCLIFFE, 11 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald's condition throughout to-day was unchanged until towards 4 p.m., when he became slightly more conscious of his surroundings. This evening his general condition is much as it was yesterday evening, excepting that his heart's action is weaker and still more irregular. Respiration, 30; pulse, 102.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
HENRY P. WRIGHT, M.D.

His Actual Condition.

This is the dying Premier's condition—He is apparently conscious. The paralysis of the right side continues just as it was. The left side which was first attacked is not paralysed. He can open his eyes, their appearance have not been affected by his illness. The greatest amount of discussion and doubt concerning the case has arisen over the hemorrhage of the brain. Paralysis, it should be remembered, is only a symptom. In this case the cause was attributed to the rupture of a blood vessel in the brain and a consequent effusion of blood. Paralysis can be produced by several other causes, and one, a stoppage of blood flowing to the brain, produces exactly the same symptoms. Some people, particularly physicians have questioned whether there were any evidences of hemorrhage in this case. Nothing but a post mortem examination can determine some cases, but in this case there is undoubtedly an effusion of blood on the brain. A clot of blood might form from a diseased or weak heart and produce all the symptoms present in the Premier's case. As the bulletins give the pulse and respiration it may be stated that respiration is usually between 15 and 20 a minute, or about as one to four beats of the pulse. Nothing characterizes this case so much as the absolute certainty of death.

A FATHER'S FIND.

A Father's Sad Find in Muskoka Township.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., June 4.—The two sons of Hiram Wiser, aged respectively 4 and 6 years, went out of the house after dinner and their mother concluded they had gone to the shingle mill at Fawn Lake, where their father was working. On the father returning at 6 o'clock without the boys a general search was made, when they were both found drowned at the foot of the falls in the creek between Doe Lake of Muskoka township and Fawn Lake of Draper township.

Drowned in a Well.

BRACEBRIDGE, June 4.—This afternoon a daughter of Mr. Benjamin McDonald of this place, about five years old, fell into an unused well while playing and was accidentally drowned.

Father and Child Killed by Lightning.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Despatches from many parts of Wisconsin, Indiana and Central Illinois tell of damage done by the severe storm of yesterday. A Greenville, Ill., lightning killed George B. Hochderfer and his child, which he was holding on his lap. At Bloomington, Ill., lightning struck Dr. Mammen's house doing considerable damage and painfully injuring a domestic. The Holy Trinity Catholic Church was damaged. Several other Illinois points report much damage to crops and a number of casualties by lightning. At Racine, Wis., two houses were almost demolished and one woman was badly injured.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 59 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

RECIPROCITY.

THE papers submitted to the House of Commons in regard to the reciprocity negotiations with the United States dispose of some yarns that were spun at the time of the visit of the Canadian delegates to Washington. It was then alleged that Sir Charles Tupper, Sir John Thompson and Mr. Foster were not courteously received by the authorities at Washington, but the papers show that Sir Charles in the first instance and the High Commissioner and the Ministers later were very courteously received by Mr. Blaine.

The postponement of the conference was entirely due to the desire of President Harrison to be present when it took place. The President had completed arrangements for an extended western tour, which could not well be postponed, and the conference was therefore deferred. Mr. Blaine pointed out that as the Senate did not meet before December no real delay would be caused, as the Senate would have to ratify any agreement that might be arrived at. The date finally set for the conference was October 12th.

Sir Charles Tupper, in his report, expresses confidence that a satisfactory arrangement will be made regarding the various questions to be discussed. In regard to reciprocity, there is no reason why there should not be an agreement provided the United States is willing to meet Canada half way. That country has shown that the idea of reciprocity is not repugnant to it by the arrangements it has made with other countries recently, and unless it has determined not to make fair terms with Canada the conference should be successful. The Dominion, however, expressed its determination in March last not to be forced or cajoled into a treaty or arrangements that would be detrimental to the well being of this country.

REVIEWS.

COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE.—With over 120 illustrations, the Cosmopolitan for June sets a fast pace in the handicap for magazine honors. The frontispiece is a portrait of Madame de Pompadour and pertains to a bright sketch of a summer spent in the home of that famous woman by Amelia Rives and her guests. A pleasant insight into the attractiveness of Japanese women is given in a paper by Henry T. Finck, illustrated by a large number of photographs of pretty faces. The art article of the month describes the work of Gustave Dore, with elaborate engravings. Thomas B. Connery, formerly managing editor of the New York Herald, gives interesting reminiscences of the first work of Stanley for that journal, and of his neighbor, Thomas A. Edison. S. G. W. Benjamin, ex-Minister to Persia, tells the true story of Noor Mahal, the Light of the Harem, celebrated by Thomas Moore in Lallah Rookh. Three continents furnish material for the June number. The European contributions consist of a description of a Model Municipality, the Woolwich Arsenal, which Mr. Pelham-Clinton, through influential relatives, was permitted to have photographed expressly for the Cosmopolitan; and a charming sketch of Beau Brummell and his times. Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen's story is illustrated by Wenzell, whose work on Life has made him so well known. The half million people who write for periodicals will find matter of great interest in an article by Mr. Frank Howard Howe, for some time one of the editors of a New York monthly. Perhaps the most valuable article of the number is that contributed by Mr. Abner L. Fraser to the literature of the farmers' movement. The Cosmopolitan prize of $200 for the best article on "the needs of the farmer, his hour of labor, and the national legislation necessary to his prosperity," was awarded by the judges to this gentleman.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES BROUGHT DOWN.

They Ask for an Appropriation of $2,601,297—A Division on Mr. Edgar's Bill to Amend the Franchise Act—The Lord's Observance Act.

OTTAWA, June 4.—Mr. McMullen called the attention of the Government to-day to recent regulations of the United States providing that sheep and lambs exported from Canada to the United States must be quarantined for 15 days.

Mr. Haggart said as soon as the Government received from the United States official notice of those regulations they would take all possible steps to protect that trade.

Lord's Day Observance.

Mr. Charlton moved the second reading of the bill to secure better observance of the Lord's Day. It does not attempt to provide for any religious observance of the Sabbath, but that it be observed as a day of rest. It forbids, under severe penalties, work, buying and selling, races and games, tippling and brawling, hunting, shooting and fishing, publication of newspapers, railway traffic, etc., on Sunday.

Sir John Thompson said there would be no difference of opinion as to the proposition that the law of the land should enforce the observance of a day of rest, but it must be remembered that acts to that end have been passed within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislatures in almost all parts of the Dominion. He therefore suggested that the bill be read a second time and then referred to a special committee to consider (1) the provisions of the bill in regard to Sunday observance, and (2) to enquire how far they had been already met by provincial legislation. The publication of newspapers on Sunday, Sir John added, could be regulated by provincial enactments.

The suggestion was adopted and the bill referred to a special committee.

One Man, One Vote.

Mr. Edgar moved the second reading of the bill to amend the Dominion Franchise Act by embodying the principle of one man, one vote, the basis of the Ontario Franchise Act.

Sir John Thompson argued that the bill was at variance with the underlying principle of the Franchise Act, which was property qualification, and moved the six months' hoist.

Sir John Thompson's motion was carried on a party division of 109 yeas to 77 nays, giving the Government a majority of 32.

Messrs. Vaillancourt, Savard and Monett voted with the Government.

The Budget.

Mr. Foster stated to-day that the Budget Speech would not be made to-morrow, Friday.

Mr. Bowell has introduced a bill to amend the Railway Act by placing the Intercolonial and all its branches and connecting ferries under one control in order to economise in management.

Mr. Mulock has given notice that he will move for a statement showing the amount of Dominion notes in circulation May 31, 1891, and amount of gold and guaranteed debentures held [illegible] for redemption of those notes, and also a statement showing the proportion of the gold reserve held by the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General and the proportion thereof held by any chartered bank for such redemption, and also a statement showing the arrangements made with such banks under which they hold such gold reserves.

Supplementary Estimates.

Supplementary estimates for $3,000,000 were brought down to-day. They include $10,000 to promote the dairying interests of Canada and $60,000 for the census.

The Senate.

OTTAWA, June 4.—In the Senate to-day divorce bills were introduced for the relief of Thomas Bristow and Isabel Carpenter. In the latter instance the petitioner, who lives in Hamilton, Ont., seeks a decree on the ground that her husband, W. H. Tapley, deserted her to live with Mary Gourly in Montreal.

Senator Abbott introduced a bill to incorporate the Incorporated Construction Company of Canada, capital stock $1,000,000, to engage in mining and shipbuilding. The head office will be at Montreal or St. John, N.B. The incorporators include Messrs. J.T. Kirk, C. D. Jones and J. F. Zebley.

PEANUTS KILLED HIM.

A Remarkable Case Resulting from a Fall.

READING, Pa., June 4.—A post-mortem examination on the body of William Gable, who died suddenly while returning from a game of baseball in West Reading on Saturday afternoon last, has disclosed a case that is as remarkable as it is unusual. It appears that shortly before his death while witnessing the game he had eaten a large quantity of peanuts. As he was passing along the sidewalk on his return he tripped over some obstruction and fell on his face.

The concussion of the fall was at first believed to have caused his death, which occurred within three minutes, but the examination proved that the contents of his stomach were forced up into his throat, and before he could expel them the indigestible peanuts entered his windpipe, causing strangulation.

Mercier Gets the Money.

QUEBEC, June 4.—Le Canadien says: "Contrary to the rumors which have been circulated lately, we are informed from reliable sources that Hon. Mr. Mercier has succeeded in raising the $10,000,000 loan, and that he embarked yesterday with his colleague, Hon. Mr. Shehyn, for Canada."

PROBABLY A MURDER.

Horrible Butchery of an Italian at Cornwall By a Compatriot.

CORNWALL, June 4.—A row which will result in the death of a young Italian named Peter Gara, aged 17, occurred in a house in York-street about 2 o'clock to-day. A number of Italians were fooling in front of the house when one of their number, John Faro, became annoyed and left the crowd. Returning with a large knife, he called Garro out. When Garro approached Faro immediately rushed at him, driving the knife full length into his bowels, directly under the liver. The victim fell to the ground and his assailant made off and escaped. Doctors in attendance say Garro will die.

The Quarrel Preyed on Her Mind.

GALT, June 4.—A domestic named Gray in the employ of Mr. Angus McBain, quarrelled with one of the farm hands named Mitchell, and the affair preyed upon her mind to such an extent that she took a heavy dose of arsenic. The arsenic had been procured for the purpose of killing rats about a year ago, this the girl got hold of and took a very heavy dose. She is in a very critical condition for a day or two.

Mr. Choquette: I want to know if I can go and look over the expense account for the Levis graving dock between 1883 and 1885, to see if the entry is there of the $20,000 paid to Thomas McGreevy.

Mr. Girouard: Certainly, I think you would have a right to do so.

Mr. Connolly: I refuse to let Mr. Choquette examine them.

Sir John Thompson showed that the enquiry was very different and not analogous to to that before a court of justice, but even before such a court a judge or juror was entitled to examine the books, so as to ascertain if the witness was telling the truth. (Hear, hear). He moved that a sub-committee, comprising the Chairman, Mills, Langelier, Sir John Thompson and Chapleau be appointed to prepare a report, to be presented to the House in regard to this matter of the books.

In answer to a question Connolly replied that he objected to anyone seeing the books because there were many unsettled claims in [illegible]

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising the in widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realise results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

Went to Toronto.

The Sons of England excursion to Toronto yesterday was not largely attended but those who did visit the Queen City enjoyed themselves. The C.P.R. cheap rates were also taken advantage of by quite a number.

The Farmers' Annual Outing.

The arrangements for the annual farmers' picnic under the auspices of the the Institutes of East and West Peterborough and East and West Durham and Northumberland, which takes place on Thursday next, are now completed. A big day's outing is looked forward to, and the success of past years will undoubtedly, with good weather, be repeated this year.

Matrimonial.

Another of Peterborough's young business men has forsaken the ranks of bachelors in the person of Mr. E. W. Elcombe, who was on Wednesday united in the bonds of wedlock to Miss Josephine Greer. The happy event took place at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. W. G. Greer, of Proton township, county Grey, in the presence of numerous friends of the contracting parties, the Rev. Mr. Hudson performing the ceremony. The REVIEW joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Elcombe unalloyed happiness.

They are Watching at Night.

Some of the county residents in the vicinity of May's dumping ground are in arms against the nuisance which has been built up by the deposits of the town scavengers. They have been on guard all night for a couple of nights past, and are preventing the scavengers from depositing their loads of night soil in their vicinity. The town dumping ground at May's has been closed up as well as the old place. A couple of loads were turned away last night, and it is a question where the loads of filth were dumped. Some system of burying the soil as soon as it is dumped will have to be adopted, or there will continually be an outcry against the nuisance.

Personal.

In the College of Pharmacy examinations recently held in Toronto Mr. H. Fletcher, formerly in Mr. John McKee's drug store, was successful in passing, standing third in the honor list. Mr. James Lynch, formerly in Mr. John Nugent's, also successfully passed the examination.

Mr. T. A. Beddy, local C. P. R. agent, has so far recovered as to be able to resume business. His friends will be glad to read this and will hope that he will soon be entirely well.

Miss Taylor who has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. W. H. Hill, left this morning for her home at Niagara Falls.

The Boy and the Bat.

For every boy born into the world there is made twenty-five base ball bats. Now every boy does'nt get his share of bats, to say nothing of balls, this from various reasons. One reason, that fathers hav'nt money to spare to keep a boy in bats. In order to even things up and stand in with the boys, who stand in Goughs clothes, Gough Bros. have secured 1000 base balls and bats and will give a bat and ball with every boy's suit sold at $2 and over, in fact with $2 and over of any kind of goods. The idea is a taking one and yesterday several of our solid citizens went in and then marched out with bats on their shoulder and balls bulging their coat pockets. The suits that Goughs are selling are tip-top and the bats likewise, so if your boy needs clothes, which is sure to be the case, and if he wants a bat and ball which as a moral certainly he does, run him into Gough's and supply him with both. 2d121

SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sell at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Not so Bad as Feared.

Mr. Robert Maxwell, the farmer who fell from his waggon on Simcoe-st. yesterday and had his head injured by the wheel passing over it, returned to his home this morning. On the first examination at the time the accident occurred it was feared that the injuries were serious, but upon a more minute examination at the hospital it was found that no fracture had been caused, and although painful, the injury was not of a serious character.

Cricket Under Difficulties.

The cricket team were to play a match with Campbellford in that place to-day. At the last moment unforeseen events interferred which prevented several of the eleven from going. Five or six of the cricketers, however, went down and may play some kind of a game with outside assistance. The local cricketers are not as alive with enthusiasm as in years past. Let all the old wielders of the willow awake and lend their assistance to keep the gentleman's game alive in Peterborough.

Wedding Bells.

An interesting ceremony took place in St. Paul's church on Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, says the Lindsay Watchman, being the marriage of Jas. G. Edwards, Esq., to Winnifred, daughter of the late James Dunsford, Esq., ex-M.P., the Rev. Mr. Marsh officiating. The bridesmaids were sisters to the bride, and R. J. Matchett, Esq., of the G.T.R., was "best" man. The bride was dressed in a plain travelling costume, and, it is needless to say, presented a beautiful appearance, as in fact the whole party did. They proceeded from the church to the station, where they embarked for the west on their wedding tour. A large number of friends were present to witness the interesting ceremony.

A Dominion Day Delight.

The Library Committee of the Charlotte-st. Methodist Church announce a delightful excursion to Stony Lake on July 1st, by G. T. R. and steamer Golden City. The steamer Golden City. The steamer will pass through the several beautiful lakes en route to the A.C.A. camp site, Stony Lake. She will continue her voyage to Julian's, Boschink, etc. Hot water and tea for dinner will be provided by the committee. Persons desirous of spending a day of rare enjoyment will find that this trip will fill the bill exactly. Do not neglect to arrange your Dominion Day enjoyment with reference to "taking in" this delightful excursion. Tickets for round trip, 50 cents only; children under twelve years of age, half price. Tickets procurable at G.T.R. station on morning of excursion, or of members of the committee—T. Barrie, secretary, and W. Hamilton, chairman. 1d128

Kingston's Default in Lacrosse.

Yesterday the first match in the series of this lacrosse district was to have been played in Madoc, between the local twelve there and the Kingston team. The match was not played, owing to Kingston's retirement from the district. This will destroy the schedule arrangements of the Peterborough and other clubs left in the district, just at a time when prospects for a good season were golden. A dispatch from Madoc says:—"The first scheduled match of the eastern district of the C.L.A. did not take place here to-day, owing to the failure of the Kingston Lacrosse club to put in an appearance. The shabby conduct of the Limestone club should be made public, as not until yesterday afternoon did the Madoc club receive notice of Kingston's intention to default. The Madoc club have just reasons for complaint, as they have been to heavy expense advertising, etc., and large numbers from the surrounding country were greatly disappointed, as they came to Madoc expressly to see this match. Owing to Kingston's funking, a new schedule will have to be arranged among the remaining clubs."

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT WALL PAPER.

Some Facts that Should Interest All Who Require Wall Paper—A Time to Buy.

Occasionally the opportunity turns up whereby one can get in the neighborhood of one dollars worth for about fifty cents. It is not of so much consequence if the article on sale is something not in general use, but if it should be such as there is timely use for, then the chance is worth taking advantage of. A reporter noticing that H. Thompson & Co. were sending out large parcels of wall paper looked into the shop to inquire who were the buyers, and if the house renting boom now on had increased the demand for paper.

"I should say it has," said Mr. Thompson. "The new tenant always insists that things shall be freshened up for him. We don't complain—it's trade for us."

"Figure patterns seem to be out of date," said the reporter.

"If you mean geometrical patterns, they are," was the reply. "The styles seem to run into scrolls and floral designs, and the pattern is larger than a few years ago. We have hundreds in gold, silver and tints, all on suitable grounds. Of course we have to keep borders to match, and the taste of customers in the way of paper is so varied, and in the main so good, that we have to be extremely careful in selections. Of course the stock is so big that the variety is practically unlimited.

"Where are they made? Well, no one maker has the preference. Each has his specialty. Our papers come to us from New York, Boston, Buffalo and the dealers in England. We have to order ahead to get them here in time."

Going up the staircase to the paper room on the second flat our reporter found the walls lined with convenient racks filled with papers in hundreds of styles. The show room proper, neatly carpeted and well lighted, afforded an excellent opportunity to inspect the beautiful papers laid out on stands of convenient height. One wall of the paper room was hung with samples of papers and borders, very handsome and attractive.

After attending to a number of customers who came up to the show room, Mr. Thompson said: "The stock as you see is large, and we are anxious to run it down. To do this we are making a special cut in prices. Every line or roll will be sold out of stock. We have no remnants or odd lots. Regular lines pay better than a few rolls of this and that. These papers you see here are capital light colors for bedrooms, and with this border they make a pleasing thing to look at. These other borders are all suitable. The same thing can be said of every pattern you see. Some are beautifully adapted for parlors, others for halls and dining rooms, and so on. Combinations can be made for shops. These are specially for ceilings and are complete. The reduction we are making covers every line, as I have said.

"What's the reduction? Well, largely in favor of the customer. The customer sees the inducement to buy and buys. Prices are reduced so as to make it a matter of gain to the buyer, and enables us to reduce stock which is the object we have in view. How long will the low prices last? Only for next 30 days. The buyer that needs paper will come in at once. [illegible] advertised the sale only one day. I tell you there is no better value, and if I was to talk for an hour I could not describe only a trifle of the stock, so varied and good is it. If your friends need paper tell them to come to Thompson & Co's. and get a share of the bargains going."

A Pertinent Question.

"What is home without wall paper," asks a local dealer. Home may have paper on the walls and carpet on the floor and patent, corrugated, anti-friction shingles and cupola chimney, but if it lacks Hawley's teas in the pantry, then indeed is home bereft of a source of joy and satisfaction. Every complete household has Hawley's teas. Try them. d121

Y. P. S. C. E. Items.

An important meeting was held in Toronto on Monday last in the interest of the Ontario Provincial Union of the Christian Endeavor Societies. The Executive Committee composed of Mr. R. J. Colville, President, Rev. J. A. R. Dickson, B. D., Galt, Vice-President, Mr. E. A. Hardy, B. A., Lindsay, Secy.-Treas., and Miss Carson, London, Mr. Thos. Morris, Hamilton, Assistant Secretaries, held a meeting to arrange for the big Minneapolis Convention in July 9th to 12th. Up to the present time there have been 41 delegates appointed to represent Ontario at this international gathering. Napanee sends two and among the other places sending delegates may be mentioned Kingston, Ottawa, Perth, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Aylmer, London, Galt, Guelph, besides numerous smaller towns. Toronto sends 25 and Montreal and Quebec are also sending large delegations, and a big effort will be made to secure this immense convention for Montreal in 1892. Altogether it is anticipated 15,000 delegates will be there, and it is expected to be the largest and best yet held. The executive urge on all societies to send delegates both for the good it must do their own societies and others in the district. Some business was also done in connection with the convention to be held here in October next. A new constitution was drafted to be submitted then. The draft programme was revised and a glance at it shows that the town of Peterborough will be treated to a full and profitable two days feast, as the speakers are some of the best talent of the Province and the United States. The citizens will have to put forth their best efforts, acting with the Executive Committee of the Provincial Union and the local Union here, to make the coming Convention here the best yet held. They will no doubt freely open their houses and entertain the delegates, of whom there will be a large number. Since last year the number of societies has greatly increased, there being now 455 societies enrolled.

HARVEY.

The Assessment Roll Revised—The Council Transacts General Business.

Correspondence of the Review.

The Harvey Council met at the Town Hall June 1st, 1891. The members were all present. The Reeve and Councillors made and subscribed the oath required by statute and proceeded to hold a Court of Revision. The Ontario Bank assessment was lowered $50, Cheeney & Simpson's lowered $100 on Farrel's land; Wm. Bell's assessment confirmed and Davidson's property lowered $300. On motion the Court passed the assessment roll as revised and resumed in Council on general business. The Reeve was instructed to procure a scraper for Wm. Tate's, Lewis Parker's and Richard Gerrard's road beats, jointly. Mr. McIlmoyle was instructed to examine the allowance for road between lots 20 and 21, concession 17, and report next Council meeting. W. J. Northey was instructed to build a bridge for cattle to cross between lots 7, in the 13th and 14th concessions. A new road beat was formed across the west end of the east half of lot 21, con. 12, known as the Richmond road. Morgan Adams was appointed pathmaster instead of James Murdock who left the limits. Orders were drawn in favor of James Richmond, assessor for 1891, $40.00; Samuel Purser $4.75, for goods for Mr. Abott; Michael Pluard for repairs on crossway $1.50; and Wm Spafford for repairing road scraper, 50 cents. The sum of $300, road grant, to be expended on roads and bridges in Harvey, was apportioned as follows, viz:—$100 in north Harvey, $100 in south Harvey, and $90 in east Harvey. The council decided that no action be taken with regard to forming a new school section as petitioned for by John Tedford and three others. The council adjourned to meet at Thomas Flynn's on June 29th, 1891.

Cheap Wall Paper.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, of the Peterborough Bookstore, has leased the adjoining premises now being vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson which will be occupied by the fancy goods and wall paper department of his business. In order to facilitate removal the stock of over 20,000 rolls of wall paper must be reduced, and for the next thirty days a great sacrifice sale of wall paper will be held at the Peterborough Bookstore. The stock comprises over 20,000 rolls of wall paper, of all qualities and of the very latest designs, which should be cleared out before the change takes place. A fine lot of gold papers and a variety of job ends are in the stock, and will be sold at astonishingly low prices. This great sale of wall paper will continue for thirty days and those requiring wall paper within the next thirty days will find it to their advantage to call at the Peterborough Bookstore. 5d120-1w22

Therapeutic Uses of Buttermilk.

Thus it will be seen that, on account of the large quantity of water and lactose, the fats being in much smaller quantities even than in milk that has been skimmed, an almost ideal diuretic is at hand. It is somewhat strange that buttermilk has been used for its diuretic and laxative properties so little, though we confess that its taste is an objection that in many instances cannot be overcome. In my own practice I have been forced to stop using it several times on this account. The writer has prescribed buttermilk, not only in cases of albuminuria, but likewise in cystitis and other affections of the uninary passages, with universally good effects. It has seemed to be indicative wherever mucilaginous drinks administered solely for their soothing effect, are prescribed. The amount of nitrogenized matters present probably adds somewhat to its merits, while the salts give a flavor not at all disagreeable, when it can be taken at all. On the whole, my use of this preparation, though restricted to affections of the kidneys and organs connected therewith, for the most part has led me to esteem it highly and to believe it worthy of great confidence whenever the practitioner desires to excite the flow of urine, to modify its character or to soothe an inflamed and conjested mucous surface over which this excretion is to pass.

When the Arterial Blood Flows Freely

The women of America are progressing in all directions at such a rate as to call forth comment from many parts of the world. They have taken off their little pinching, thin-soled shoes and let their toes spread out; they consequently walk more in the open air. They have untied their corset strings and breathe freer. They have cut down and opened up the high collar and can turn their heads about freely. They formerly knew little about personal comfort, and now they long for it. The young girl clings to her tennis or boating suit, while the elder sister and mother wear their bedroom gowns as late as possibe, and create occasions when they can appear in tea-gowns. To the stout woman has got to come some new form of dress, something entirely different from that we now have, and when women are as free as birds and look well, then we will have really advanced. An anatomist says that women, that is women generally, will not be able to do the brain work of men until the arterial blood is not restrained in passage by any bands, gages, bones or steels.

England's Naval Exhibition.

The English people are "running wild," and very justly so, over their forthcoming naval exhibition. Sir William Armstrong's firm is to send a 100-ton gun with turret mounting and another heavy gun mounted in barbette. One of the galleries is to be arranged to represent a section of an ironclad, in which an auxiliary battery with six-inch and quick-firing guns will be shown. An exact model of the Eddystone has been reared in the grounds. It will be 167 feet 6 inches high, its summit showing an electric light said to be of 5,000,000 candle power. It is upon Chance's system, and will be the most powerful light in the world. Torpedoes and marine mining exhibits will be displayed in one section, and in others diving apparatus and materials used in the manufacture of guns and warships.—Chicago Herald.

Improving on Shakespeare.

"It seems to me that I have read something similar to this," said the essayist's wife, glancing over copy.

"Shouldn't wonder," he answered, cheerfully. "Shakespeare made a stagger at it once, but without much success."

Nothing Strange About It.

"No, Miss Amy, remarked young Dr. Paresis, "as a physician I cannot accept the Biblical account of such longevity as Methuselah's."

"Oh, I can," replied Miss Amy, sweetly, "there were no doctors in those days."

Ah! Yes.

Mr. Jingleby (at matrimonial agency)—The photograph seems to represent a much older person than I have thought Miss Ketcham to be.

Agent—Ah, mayhap. But you see this picture was taken many years ago.

Something nice. A collar, nothing attracts the attention of the ladies more than nice neck wear. The gentleman who is particular about collars, cuffs, shirts and ties, will always appear neat. To such men our supply of Men's Furnishings is a wonder, but they do not wonder at our ever increasing patronage. The supply causes the demand, we might say, yet we know the demand would come.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla — the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

TALKS FOR THE FARMER

TIMELY INFORMATION OF VALUE TO CANADIAN AGRICULTURISTS.

Rules and Regulations for Creameries and Butter Making—Why Manure is Needed—The Constituents of Soil—A Disinfectant for the Poultry House.

The Dairy Commissioner, Prof. J. Robertson, of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, recommends the following rules and regulations to creamery associations:—

The cream shall be furnished from the milk of only healthy cows, which are fed upon wholesome food, with access to plenty of pure water and salt; they shall be prevented from eating any food which will give an injurious flavor or taint to the butter.

The pastures, yards and lanes shall be kept free from carrion and all decaying matter which may cause noxious smells.

The cream furnished by each patron shall be clean, pure and sweet; and, in case any grounds should exist for suspecting that the bulk of the cream as furnished by any patron is not in every sense similar to the sample taken for use in the test, a committee appointed by the directors shall visit the premises of the patron and make examination for [illegible] regarding such matter, and if any [illegible] or [illegible] shall be proven to have existed, it shall be optional with the directors as to whether they shall (1) prosecute the patron according to law, (2) effect a settlement with him or her upon the payment to the funds of the manufacturer of such a sum as may be agreed upon, or (3) exclude the patron from the privileges of the creamery for a stated number of years.

Milk must be drawn from the cows in a cleanly manner; the udders should be brushed or washed, and milking with dry hands is preferable to the practice of dipping the fingers in the pail in order to moisten them.

Immediately after the milk is drawn from the cow, it should be strained through a wire or cloth strainer.

All pails and other utensils with which the milk is brought into contact must be of tin; the use of wooden pails for milking or holding milk is strictly forbidden; and any contravention of this rule will subject the patron to the liability of being deprived of the privileges of the creamery.

The milk must be kept in a place where the atmosphere is free from foul and injurious smells.

Vessels in which the milk is set shall be kept clean and sweet, and the tank into which the vessels are set shall be kept free from bad odors; and if a cream collector shall discover the setting vessels or water tank of any patron to be in a state unfit for the keeping of milk without detriment to its quality, he shall notify the butter Directors. After the first offence the patron may be subjected to a fine of 50 cents for every time that a setting vessel or tank shall be found in an unclean condition.

The duties of butter-makers are laid down in the following:—

It shall be the duty of the butter-maker to use his best endeavors to manufacture an article of uniformly fine merchantable butter.

He shall be responsible for and make good in money any loss that may be sustained from the making of inferior butter through carelessness, neglect, or incapacity.

He shall keep a correct record of the quantity of cream furnished by each patron of the quality of the same, as revealed by the oil-test churn or other testing apparatus, and deliver the same to the Secretary of the Company (or Association).

He shall test or cause to be tested the cream furnished by each patron at least six times every week during the season.

He shall inspect the cream-collecting waggons and the cream-collecting cans or tanks, and report upon their condition as to cleanliness, etc., to the directors.

He shall keep the creamery and its utensils clean.

He shall care for the butter until the close of the manufacturing season; he shall see that all butter which is not in [illegible] packages is brined at least once every fortnight, and he shall use every reasonable precaution to maintain the temperature of the store room at a point which is most suitable for its preservation.

He shall see that the surroundings of the premises are kept free from bad odors.

He shall use his best endeavors to advance the interests of the manufacturer and the patrons.

In case any of the patrons or directors shall find any of the utensils or the floor of the creamery in a filthy state, whereby the quality of the butter is liable to be injured, a sum of $1.00 for every such offence and every such utensil shall be deducted from the moneys coming to the butter-maker from the manufacturer.

Cooked potatoes for fatting hogs are believed by many to give good results, but from some experiments carried on by the Wisconsin station at Madison, we are led to think differently. Several lots of hogs were fed on corn meal, and others on corn meal and cooked potatoes, and the results showed that to make 100 pounds of gain it took 440 pounds of corn meal, and with the other lots 380 pounds of corn meal and 759 pounds of cooked potatoes. This makes one pound of meal worth nearly four and one-half pounds of potatoes.

A farmer need not bother his brain nor fool his time away trying to follow a system of line breeding in growing swine. Leave this to the professionals. Better study the systems and feeding and improve on them than to spend time studying pedigrees. Feeding and not pedigree is in his line of work. We would not have him ignore the value of a pedigree, but first he wants the hog, and it is not necessary for him to know of the pedigree further than that the animal is purely bred and not too closely related to the breeding stock directly on the farm.

KEENE CHRONICLES.

Correspondence of the Review.

NUISANCES.—If the Township Council would shut cattle of all kinds off the roads it would help the appearance of our streets. Cows and horses do far more damage to shade trees than the telephone company ever thought of doing or are at all likely to do. There are about 25 or 30 head of cattle running loose in Keene every night, to say nothing of pigs, geese, &c.

ROAD WORK.—Pathmaster Kennealy has a new plan and it is working well, viz., he has only a few men out at a time and this manages to keep them all at work.

BATTLE OF RIDGEWAY.—A number of flags were displayed on Tuesday last, the anniversary of the battle of Ridgeway.

DEATH.—Andrew Robertson, near Keene, died on Monday morning after a long illness at the age of 37 years. He was a son of the late Peter Robertson and leaves a widow. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon last and was very largely attended.

RAIN.—The much needed rain has fallen at last.

PERSONAL.—Rev. J. Macfarlane is attending the Methodist Conference....Squire Lang has been ill....Mrs. Harrison is away on a visit....Mrs. Alex. Campbell and son are also in the States visiting friends and relatives.

A POPULAR PARSON.—On Wednesday evening last at Mather's Corners, Rev. Mr. Macfarlane was again surprised by being made the recipient of an address and a fine set of harness. The rev. gentleman replied in suitable terms.

PERSONAL.—Dr. George K. Mark has passed the Ontario Medical Council examinations. The doctor has left for California, where he intends to practice, but more for his health than anything else. All join in wishing him restored health and success.

PICNICS.—No. 1—On Thursday, June 11th, the Farmers' Institute picnic takes place, the Sunbeam leaving the wharf here at the usual time. No. 2—On Wednesday, June 17th, the Beaver takes the United Sunday school picnic to Idyl-Wild. No. 3—On St. John's day, June 24th, the Masons will run their annual private picnic and excursion.

BAND OF HOPE.—The Band of Hope under the management of Mrs. Dr. Harrison gave a concert on Friday night last to a fair audience. The children gave evidence of careful training.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.—Almost universal sorrow was felt here on the reception of the news of Sir John's illness. Special reference was made to the fact in the churches by prayer and otherwise.

Boils, carbuncles, and eruptions of all kinds are nature's efforts to throw off poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectually, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

BLAIRTON NEWS.

PROPOSED RAILWAY LINE.—Railway is about all that is talked of here just now. The proposed line from the C. O. R. to Ledyard's mine has just been surveyed, and we are told that estimate for the construction of the road is very high. A few days ago Mr. Armstrong, surveyor of Toronto, came here and made a preliminary survey from here to the same mine with a view of reaching it by an extension of the C. P. & M. R., a distance of only 5 miles, and over favorable ground, and bridging Crow River at a narrow spot at the Middle Falls, and [illegible]. [illegible] came Mr. Armour, son of Judge Armour, of Cobourg, and tried two other lines, taking an easterly route running the lake east of Blairton. Now, Mr. G. Rennie, of Peterborough, has joined Mr. Armour, and they are hard at work trying all the proposed lines and will no doubt [illegible] the one to be built, which will likely be west of the lake.

EXAMINING THE MINE.—Of late several parties from Toronto and the United States have been examining the Blairton mine, and ordered samples of the various kinds of iron ore to be shipped to the firms in the States to be tested.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.—Mr. Mark Scott has one new school house well under way, and when finished will be an ornament to the village.

SOCIAL.—On the 25 ult., a basket social was held here to raise funds with which to repair the church. All was a success.—Herald.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

AT TURNBULL'S.

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of Dress Goods that were formerly from 20 to 50 cts. a yard. They are odd lines and are now being cleared out at 15 cts. a yard. They can only last a short time. Call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them as they please everybody as to quality and price.

LANGEVIN—M'GREEVY.

Longed-For Letters That Are Not Forthcoming—A Missing Witness at Length Puts in an Appearance.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The Tarte investigation into the Langevin-McGreevy scandal was resumed again to-day at the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The Government contractors generally take a great interest in the proceedings, many of them being in attendance each day. Mr. Gobeil, Deputy Minister of Public Works, was the first witness. He was asked to examine and identify another batch of documents put in as exhibits in regard to the Esquimalt graving dock. Following this, O. E. Murphy, one of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., was called as a witness. A statement was placed in his hands by Mr. Geoffrion, counsel for Tarte, to which he swore, showing that Robert McGreevy was taken into the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. with the knowledge of Thomas McGreevy and paid 30 per cent. on the contract, the other 70 per cent. being equally divided between himself (Murphy), Nicholas Connolly, Michael Connolly and P. Larkin. A letter from Nicholas Connolly in regard to this matter and addressed to witness was handed him to identify, which he did. The reason for taking in Robert was to get the influence of Thomas McGreevy with the Department of Public Works. On being asked to read it, a squabble took place with counsel over the matter, and the chairman decided that it would be best to get the writer, Nicholas Connolly, to prove that he had written it. Coming to the question of the alleged payment of the $25,000 to Thomas McGreevy, he read a statement given him by the bookkeeper of the firm and taken from the books showing how this sum was paid to Thomas McGreevy and included in the expense account. It was the first item but no name was opposite the sum, still he was certain that Mr. T. McGreevy received it. The statement showed that Valin, a member of the Harbor Commission, was the recipient of a certain sum placed to expenses. The audit statement was presented to witness, duly signed by the auditors and accepted by the different members of the firm, which he also swore to. Asked in what part of it the sum of $25,000 which he said was paid to Thomas McGreevy was included, he pointed to the expense account, which is all amounted to over $60,000. The committee then met in secret session to receive the report of the sub-committee appointed to prepare a report to the House on the refusal of Michael Connolly to produce his books to the committee.

Martin Connolly, the missing bookkeeper of Larkin, Connolly & Co., turned up to-day. It is probable that Michael Connolly will be ordered to appear at the bar of the House for contempt, in refusing to obey order of committee. He said he had been away fishing. The facts of his case will be reported in the House to-day.

She Left a Note Behind.

WATFORD, June 5.—Early on Monday morning last, Maggie E. Johnston, the 17-year-old niece of Jesse Neff, lot 21, 4th con., N. E. R. Warwick, left the home of her uncle, where she has resided for the past three years, and since that time no trace of her whereabouts can be learned by her anxious relatives. The girl left a note stating that they would not see her again. No cause can be assigned for her mysterious departure, as she always appeared contented and was treated as one of the family.

HIS LAST DAY

The Closing Hours of Sir John's Life.

IN THE THROES OF DEATH ALL DAY

A Glimmer of Consciousness to the Close.

His Remarkable Vitality a Marvel to the Doctors, Who Said It Would Be a Miracle if He Lived Throughout the Night, Yet Live He Did—The Stoppage of the Issuance of Bulletins Told the Public that the End Was at Hand.

OTTAWA, June 6, 2.15 a.m.—The doctor expects the thread of the Premier's existence to part within the hour. He is too far gone for the giving of symptoms. That he is in life is all that can be said.

The sun was rising clear and strong Friday morning when the carriages containing the newspaper correspondents arrived at Earnscliffe. Mr. Hall met them with the intelligence that the Premier on being moved had gasped for breath. His feeble heart fluttered, and the attendants felt that they already stood in the shadow now brooding over the First Minister's bed. The attending physician at 7 o'clock posted the following bulletin:

EARNSCLIFFE, 7 a.m.

There is no change to report in Sir John Macdonald's condition this morning, and no new facts to record. He has been very somnolent all night and exhibited no restlessness whatever. R. W. POWELL, M.D.

All day there was a feverish anxiety to learn the result of the consultation, at which Dr. Ross of Montreal was present. Many have maintained all along and up to this afternoon believed that Sir John would pull through. Rev. Father McWilliams of Railton, an old friend of the Premier's, said to your correspondent at 4 o'clock, in reply to an assurance that death was inevitable: "I yet cling to the belief that he will not die; perhaps a wish is father to the thought, but still I think he will recover."

A Startling Deliverance.

Just as the hour arrived for the meeting of the House the last hopes of those members who, like Dr. Sproule, have thought that the case was not hopeless, were dashed by the following bulletin:

EARNSCLIFFE, June 5, 2 p.m.—At our consultation to-day we find Sir John Macdonald altogether in a somewhat alarming state. His strength, which has gradually failed him during the past week, shows a marked de- [illegible] flickering of consciousness. Respiration 36, pulse 120, more feeble and irregular than heretofore. His hours of life are steadily waning.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
G. ROSS, M.D.

Dr. Ross, agreeing with his colleagues that no human help could avail, took the 5 o'clock train for Montreal. The other consulting physicians departed and Dr. Powell was again left alone with the dying man.

As Sir James Grant said, the bulletin puts things very plainly. They had said all in it that it was necessary to say. Sir John was weaker than he has been yet.

Dr. H. P. Wright said: "The Premier is visibly weaker. When the end will come we cannot say precisely. It may not be to-day or even to-morrow, but it might be at any time, and is certain and cannot be long."

The End Fast Approaching.

Everyone was prepared for the following bulletin:

EARNSCLIFFE, 7.05 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald became unconscious about 4 p.m.; his end is fast approaching. R. W. POWELL, M.D.

Before posting this bulletin on the gate post at Earnscliffe all the old bulletins were taken down and this one put up, held by small, flat sticks, which made it look in the dim light of the lantern like a frame of mourning. Immediately the operator in the tent on the adjoining common flashed the intelligence over the city and country: "The end is near." In a short time cabs rolled up with correspondents from the press gallery, who found a little crowd of the general public at the street corner, where a second copy of the bulletin was posted. Passing down into the Earnscliffe-crescent, a little knot of men were standing at the turn, John Hall, Col. Macpherson, George Johnson, Lawrence Fortescue and Inspector O'Leary. With grave faces and low tones they were discussing the despairing news just sent from inside the gray walls. Most of them had been watchers outside or in, and now gathered together feeling that their labors were over. Just one week ago the occasion for their help had arisen. Col. Macpherson, who is a cousin of Sir John Macdonald, went inside the house and joined Messrs. Pope, Beard and Sparks, who have been in constant attendance from the first. Hon. Edgar Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, and Mrs. Dewdney, old and close friends of Sir John and Lady Macdonald, were also there. In the sick room sat Lady Macdonald and Mrs. Dewdney and Dr. Powell. On the couch lay the Prime Minister in the throes of dissolution. Death stood by. Twice did the icy fingers grasp at the feebly beating heart, and twice were they unlocked by the intervention of the physician with stimulants. The great general had beaten many foes, and not without an effort was he now to surrender. For seven days and nights he had struggled hard against the conqueror of mankind, and even in these last moments nature came to the aid of one of her favored sons and took the place of that indomitable will which was now in mortal subjection. Outside the groups waited in suspense, turning their eyes towards the gate whenever any one came out, in expectation that they brought the final news. The cable correspondents had the operator open the wire to Canso in readiness to send the expected intelligence to the London press.

Hon. John Carling came down and stood a few minutes talking with Mr. Hall. A fresh arrival from the city inquired if the report of death was true. Rev. Father McWilliams, an old and intimate friend of the Premier, who has all along refused to believe the worst, came up to learn if there was no hope. On being told there was not he was visibly affected and turned and went away. It might be taken as a type of the [illegible] throughout the Dominion who regard the Premier's departure as a deep and personal loss. Indeed one of the features of the scenes about Earnscliffe during the past week was the number of old Parliamentarians and citizens who have inquired daily at the gate for the very latest intelligence of the leader whose death breaks the last link between to-day and long ago. They recalled one of his favorite expressions, "Too long the veteran lags superfluous on the stage," and told how he used to utter it deprecatingly in private and public 20 years ago.

The Verdict of the Doctors.

At 10.30 Drs. Sir James Grant and H. P. Wright arrived and went inside. In about half an hour they came out and were immediately surrounded by eager, anxious eyes. Sir James Grant said: "He is going fast, this is the last flicker in the socket, his condition may be described as one of general prostration and debility. There is a little consciousness even in his extreme state. I believe there will be a little consciousness to the end. He can swallow a little champagne. There is every indication of impending dissolution within a few hours."

Dr. Wright said that a couple of hours ago the end had apparently arrived, but the patient was revived by stimulants. It was now only a question of a few hours, though he may last through the night. The trouble was partly with the heart, combined with other causes. They would not issue a bulletin, as it was of no use.

At midnight everything was settled for the night. More lights were burning in the windows of the house, but the profound quiet was unbroken. During the evening death had been hourly expected, and at midnight the doctor believed the patient would live for several hours. Rev. Mr. Bogert, who had been in the house since between 8 and 9 o'clock, was told by Dr. Powell he might go home for two or three hours; that the Premier's life would likely go out at daybreak. At 10 o'clock his respiration was 46 and at 11 o'clock, an hour later, his weakness had increased and the breathing became so labored that the respiration had arisen to 54. At midnight when the correspondent called he saw Col. Macpherson. He said the watches for the night would be kept by Mr. Sparks and himself and Mr. Hugh John Macdonald and Mr. White. No bulletin were issued. The few visitors who came to the gate lifted the lantern of the watchman to read the 6 o'clock report tacked on the post. The Governor-General, with one of his aide-de-camps, walked over to make what will be his last nightly visit. He was told that Sir John was lying unconscious, but that at 11 o'clock he took a very small quantity of nourishment. In the city there was the same intense interest as on last Friday night, and the reports brought by inquirers at Earnscliffe were eagerly passed about.

DIDN'T LOVE HIS NEIGHBOR.

And Undertook to Shoot His Dog, But Got Peppered Himself.

WIARTON, June 5.—At Oliphant, a settlement, six miles west of here, yesterday, a man named Abercrombie, who had just returned from Wiarton, where he loaded up with whisky, loaded his gun and proceeded to the house of a neighbor named Cook, with whom he had a dispute, and fired at Cook's dog but missed. Cook immediately returned the fire, shooting Abercrombie through the leg. The bullet entered high up in the thigh, and taking a course downward emerged just about the knee. The victim laid on the ground while his little son went home for the horse and rig. Cook has been arrested.

The Buffalo Races.

BUFFALO, June 5.—The talent fell down in several of the events, but were occasionally lucky in picking up favorites and winning on them. The worst breaks were in the first race, where Pelham was put in as a sure winner and was played recklessly by the crowd. He was unplaced at the finish. Then in the mile and half a furlong handicap the talent thought they were safe with Myfellow and they backed him at -3 to 3 to win, the Canadian contingent piling on him, but they met with a disappointment. The crowd generally attributed the result to poor judgment by the jockey and with Flynn or Anderson up the general verdict was that the result would have been different.

First race, 6 furlongs—Lagrippe (6 to 1) won, Pelham 2, Theora 3. Time 1.16½.

Second race, 5 furlongs—Lady Lyon colt (4 to 5) won, Katurah 2, Valkyr 3. Time 1.03.

Third race, six furlongs—John A. Tweed (4 to 5) 1, Costa Rica (6 to 1) 2, Carnett 3. Time 1.15½.

Fourth race, 1-16 miles—Rambler (5 to 1) 1, Now-or-Never 2, Pontchester 3. Time 1.47½.

Fifth race, six furlongs—King Alta (1 to 2) 1, St. Patrick 2, Krikwid 3. Time 1.15. Ely (6 to 1) also ran.

Sixth race, 1¼ miles—Troy (1 to 2) 1, Lijero 2, J. J. O'B. 3. Time 2.12.

English Guarantee for Canadian Footballers—Final Dates.

BERLIN, June 5.—The committee of the Western Football Association met here this evening at 8.30 o'clock. Representatives from Seaforth, Galt, Toronto, Woodstock and Berlin were present.

The arranging of finals between Toronto and Western champions was fixed as follows: June 27 at Toronto, July 1 at Seaforth or July 4 at Detroit.

The committee discussed the Old Country trip. Secretary Forsyth read letters and statements from across the ocean stating that a guarantee of £1000 had already been agreed upon. This matter was not decided upon this evening, but adjourned till June 13 in Toronto.

The Athletics of St. Catharines Defeat Niagara Falls in a Close Contest.

ST. CATHARINES, June 5.—The lacrosse enthusiasts had a glorious day of it here to-day when the old-time opponents from the Falls were arraigned in battle array against the home team. The game was one of the finest and most keenly contested ever witnessed in the city. Some 900 spectators were on the ground. The following is the score: Athletics won the first, second, sixth and seventh games in ½ min., 13 mins., 3 mins. and 1 minute respectively. The Niagaras won the third, fourth and fifth in 7½, 6 and 8 minutes respectively.

EASTERN ASSOCIATION: Lebanon 2, Buffalo 4; Troy 12, Rochester 6; New Haven 7, Albany 16; Providence 3, Syracuse 10.

A Study in Dandelions.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 5.—Constable McMicking ran across a dandelion that was a monster. The plant was found to contain 446 leaves, 186 blossoms and 770 seeds. A mathematical calculation has discovered the fact that this one dandelion is capable of producing 143,360 similar plants.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

CHATSWORTH, Ont., June 5.—Mrs. Edward Coulter of Desboro was thrown from a buggy in consequence of her horse running away, and striking her head heavily on a stone her skull was fractured. She only lived two hours.

THE MAJORITY IS 21.

ON THE MOTION TO CENSURE SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

A Division Taken in the House on the Resolution Condemning the High Commissioner for His Speeches in the Recent Election Contest.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The House decided without discussion to-day upon motion of Sir John Thompson to summon Michael Connolly to appear at the bar of the House Monday at 4 for contempt in refusing to produce the books of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. for investigation by the Committee on Privileges and Elections regarding the Tarte charges. The time for receiving petitions for private bills, which was to have expired June 16, has been extended until Tuesday, June 23.

The debate on the resolution of Mr. Cameron (Huron) condemning Sir Charles Tupper for his conduct in the recent elections was continued in the afternoon. The division was taken at 1 a.m. The vote was 79 yeas, 100 nays, giving the Government a majority of 21.

Mr. Foster said if by any possibility the news from Earnscliffe was no worse the budget speech would be delivered Tuesday.

CANADA GAVE HER CONSENT.

The Dominion Acquiesced in the Passage of the Behring Sea Bill Providing for a Close Season.

LONDON, June 5.—The bill providing for the issue of an order-in-council prohibiting the taking of seals in Behring Sea by British subjects, though a Government measure, met with the opposition of Alex. Staveley Hill, who sits for the King's Winford division of Staffordshire. His opposition was particularly directed against the clause of the bill agreeing that the United States will catch 7500 seals for the benefit of the islanders during the close season. He made a violent speech against this section and moved as an amendment that the words "if Canada consents," be added thereto. During the course of his speech, Mr. Hill stated that he had received a communication from Canada in relation to this question.

William Henry Smith, the Government leader, argued against the amendment, basing his opposition to it on the fact that the Government had already obtained the assent of Canada to the bill. In view of this statement by Mr. Smith, Mr. Hill withdrew his amendment, and the bill was passed.

HAIRS OF GOLD.

Clinging to the Blood-Stained Stone Used by a Would-be Murderer.

LONDON, June 5.—Richard C. Duncan of Washington, D.C., charged with attempting to murder his wife on May 13 in North Wales, was examined again yesterday. Dr. Jones swore that Duncan told him he committed [illegible] give me," said the prisoner, "I did not know what I was doing. Three months ago I was worth $20,000. Now I have lost all. I saw nothing before me but poverty for myself and wife. Indeed, I went to Llandudno and hired a boat with the intention of taking both our lives by drowning, but I failed to do so."

Duncan pleaded not guilty and was formally committed for trial. The stone found near the prisoner, with which the crime is supposed to have been committed, was produced in court. It is a huge wedge of slate and was stained with blood and hair. A few golden hairs clinging to it. Mrs. Duncan's condition is still very crital. It is said that if she survives it is doutful if her proper mental condition will ever be restored.

A Satisfactory Settlement.

LONDON, June 5.—The Newfoundland delegates have arrived at a satisfactory agreement with the Government for a permanent act to replace the three years' measure passed by the Local Legislature.

BUSINESS DECLINING.

Collections Are, However, Improving and Failures Show a Decrease.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show quite conclusively that general business now is, on the whole, declining rather than expanding in volume. May bank clearings totals point unmistakably to a widespread subsidence of activity in general trade and speculation throughout the country.

Telegrams from Montreal and Toronto report general trade throughout regions tributary to those cities as dull or of a moderate sorting-up variety. Rains have favored the crops and collections are a little more satisfactory. Exports of wheat and flour from Montreal have grown quite noticeably within a few weeks. The Dominion reports 21 business failures this week against 26 last week and 27 this week last year. The total number Jan. 1 to date is 889 against 897 last year.

Chat From Over the Sea.

The Behring Sea bill passed the first reading in the House of Lords yesterday.

M. Robiedonostseff, chief of the Russian Holy synod, has issued regulations, which provide that students of all religious denominations must attend lessons in the orthodox catechism, and all industrial establishments must have an orthodox church within a distance of 20 kilometres.

John Conway, the steamship fireman charged with the murder of the 15-year-old boy Martin, whose body was found floating in a sailor's bag in the harbor dock, was committed for trial at Liverpool yesterday. When arraigned Conway at first declared he was "regularly guilty," and instantly afterwards protested he was innocent.

A Day's Drowning Accidents.

SARNIA, June 5.—Gordon, the 7-year-old son of Dr. McLean, registrar of Lambton, was drowned in the river here this afternoon by falling off a raft under a dock. The body has been recovered.

WINDSOR, June 5.—Daniel Crawford, deck hand on the schooner Rob Roy, was knocked overboard by the swinging of a boom when opposite Fighting Island yesterday and drowned. He was aged 28, and is said to belong to Highgate, Ont.

The Money Was Burned.

OTTAWA, June 5.—In the accident to the Winnipeg express on the C.P.R. at [illegible] Lake the sum of $60,000, which [illegible] mailed from two banks here to [illegible] was destroyed. One package of [illegible] been entirely destroyed, but there are sufficient portions of some of the second [illegible] to enable the bank to recover several thousand dollars. Who the actual losers will be is not known, but it is likely to fall on the banks shipping the amount.

Dunkards Opposed to Divorce.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 4.—The German Baptists or Dunkards decided, by a big majority to-day, against allowing members of the church to be divorced.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

ANOTHER VOTE IN THE HOUSE.

LIBERAL journals had begun to find courage to renew their stories about divisions and weaknesses in the Conservative ranks when another division was taken in the House on Thursday night. Again the franchise was the subject of discussion, Mr. Edgar having introduced a bill to amend the Franchise Act. The Government opposed his bill and on the division had a majority of thirty-two. This increased majority does not look like weakness. The Conservatives are united, because they hold opinions in regard to the government of the country which bind them together.

A Handsome Girl

Is "a thing of beauty and a joy for ever;" but where the charms of youthful health, the rosy lips, and pearly teeth, are accompanied by the breath of catarrh! Why it is time that the maiden bought Clark's Catarrh Cure, price 50 cents. This would cure the catarrh at once, and save her chances if not her life. No other remedy so easy and pleasant to take, and nothing else so sure. There is no excuse for an offensive breath when it can be avoided and prevented so easily and pleasantly. Bashful ladies may send the price direct to Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

CANADIAN LAMBS.

Prospects of a Favorable Trade With Great Britain.

SIR,—The following is from the Meat Traders' Journal and Cattle Salesman's Gazette, published in Manchester:—Our Liverpool correspondent reports that the first consignment of Canadian cattle for the season was landed ex Lake Superior, at Birkenhead on Saturday, and consisted of 600 cattle and 100 lambs. The lambs were taken from the Ontario Experimental Farm, and seldom has a better selection been seen, their condition and quality being all that could be desired. There is reason to believe that a larger trade will be done in mutton stock from the Dominion, as the United States market is almost closed to the Canadian exporter, and certainly stock of similar character to those under notice would at all times command a ready sale here."

A letter published in the same journal from the pen of Ald. Frankland has the following:—"The Lake Superior debarked 100 lambs fed as an experiment at the Government College Farm of Ontario, situated at Guelph, and the remarkable quality and the favorable notice they received, together with the prices they sold for, will give an impetus to the Canadian lamb trade with Great Britain that will eventuate in the exportation of thousands that have hitherto found a market in Buffalo. It is my intention to write a full report to the Hon. Minister of Agriculture of Ontario (the Hon. John Dryden), also to the press, so that the greatest publicity may lead to a vast trade between Canada and our mother county."

We have not ascertained as yet the exact prices for which the lambs sold, but from what is said in the quotations given above we feel justified in concluding that the venture has proved a success. If so, it means a great deal to this country. These lambs so highly spoken of in The Meat Trades Journal were not a choice lot to begin with. I am satisfied we can furnish Britain with thousands and tens of thousands of better lambs than these if we set ourselves about it. THOMAS SHAW.

Orders From all Over.

Mr. J. J. Turner has received an order from Toronto for fifty hammocks, another from the Ericson company for awnings and canvas blinds and still another from Keewatin for thirteen oiled suits. Mr. Turner's business is extending, his reputation going over the whole Dominion.

The Boy and the Bat.

For every boy born into the world there is made twenty-five base ball bats. Now every boy does'nt get his share of bats, to say nothing of balls, this from various reasons. One reason, that fathers hav'nt money to spare to keep a boy in bats. In order to even things up and stand in with the boys, who stand in Goughs clothes, Gough Bros. have secured 1000 base balls and bats and will give a bat and ball with every boy's suit sold at $2 and over, in fact with $2 and over of any kind of goods. The idea is a taking one and yesterday several of our solid citizens went in and then marched out with bats on their shoulder and balls bulging their coat pockets. The suits that Goughs are selling are tip-top and the bats likewise, so if your boy needs clothes, which is sure to be the case, and if he wants a bat and ball which as a moral certainty he does, run him into Gough's and supply him with bats. 2d121

A Pertinent Question.

"What is home without wall paper," asks a local dealer. Home may have paper on the walls and carpet on the floor and patent, corrugated, anti-friction shingles and cupola chimney, but if it lacks Hawley's teas in the pantry, then indeed is home bereft of a source of joy and satisfaction. Every complete household has Hawley's teas. Try them. d121

"THE BIRTH OF THE OPAL."

The Sunbeam loved the Moonbeam,
And followed her low and high,
But the Moonbeam fled and hid her head,
She was so shy, so shy.

The Sunbeam wooed with passion;
Ah! he was a lover bold,
And his heart was a fire with mad desire
For the Moonbeam pale and cold.

She fled like a dream before him,
Her hair was a shining sheen;
And oh, that fate would annihilate
The space that lay between!

Just as the day lay panting
In the arms of the twilight dim,
The Sunbeam caught the one he sought,
And drew her close to him.

But out of his warm arms startled,
And stirred by love's first shock,
She sprang afraid, like a trembling maid,
And hid in a niche of rock.

And the Sunbeam followed and found her,
And led her to love's own feast;
And they were wed on that rocky bed,
And the dying Day was their priest.

And lo! the beautiful Opal,
That rare and wondrous gem,
Where the Moon and Sun blend into one,
Is the child that was born to them.

MIRACLE OF MODERN DAYS.

HAMILTON PRODUCES ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE CURES ON RECORD.

"Totally Disabled," Yet Cured.

Hamilton Times, May 27th, 1891.

One of the most remarkable cures in the history of medicine has just been effected in this city, and the fame of it is fast spreading throughout the land. Over four years ago, Mr. John Marshall, then employed as manager of Mr. J. C. Williams' coal oil refinery works here, sustained a fall, which at the time was not thought to be serious. He doctored but his trouble grew worse and contracting cold after cold upon his other trouble he was compelled to give up work entirely. His troubles developed into ataxy, a nervous disorder, held by medical authorities to be incurable. For four years Mr. Marshall has been an intense sufferer. He lost the use of his legs entirely and could not raise himself from a chair except by the use of a crutch and a stick. Though there was power in his legs there was no feeling. He could take his heavy stick and hammer the flesh until the sound of blows filled the house. During the course of these years no less than fourteen leading physicians treated him. Sometimes two or three of them were in attendance at once. All agreed that his disease was incurable. Mr. Marshall went to Toronto for electrical treatment, at a heavy expense, but received not the slightest benefit. He tried every patent medicine that was recommended to him, yet without getting any aid. The "suspension" treatment was resorted to, and he was suspended by means of appliances around his neck and under his arms from the ceiling of the barn, but got no relief. Electric belts and appliances of an endless variety were tried, and thoroughly tried, too, but all resulted the same way—they left Mr. Marshall just as they had found him. At one time twenty pins were run into the flesh of his leg. He barely felt two of them; the others he did not feel at all. His flesh was cut into with a knife and he felt not the slightest pain; and so he went on until the 13th day of April last, every remedy suggested by any one being tried, and hundreds of dollars spent upon patent medicines, to say nothing of doctors' bills.

Mr. Marshall was a member of the Royal Templars of Temperance. He was passed by the physicians of the order as totally disabled for life. The chief medical examiner passed him, and he was paid the $1,000 paid by the Order in cases of total disability.

A day or two ago a Times representative called upon Mr. Marshall at his residence No, 25 Little William-st. The door was opened upon knocking, a strong steady step was heard. Mr. Marshall opened the door and received the reporter cordially. He walked without either crutch or stick and looked the picture of a sturdy fine man. He conversed freely of his case, as did Mrs. Marshall who came in later. "Five weeks ago," he said, "I could not raise my foot or bend my leg. As for walking without a stick or crutch it was impossible. I had seen an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as they were especially recommended for nervous disorders, I resolved to try them. I had what the doctors called Locomotor Ataxy. I had not walked for almost four years. My wife said 'Oh, what's the use of trying another patent medicine?' but I tried the Pink Pills. I had not used one box before I began to feel the effects. The feeling came back to my right leg first. After using them two weeks I was able to walk up to Mr. C. J. Williams' place on [illegible] a mile and a half from here, and back. I had got nearly home when my left leg gave out, and I nearly went down. I had to stand and rub the leg for several minutes. Then it felt as if a thousand pins were running in it. That was the blood beginning to circulate in the leg that had been dead almost four years. From that time it has steadily improved. Now you see how I am. (Here Mr. Marshall arose and walked briskly around the room without artificial assistance.) I have used absolutely nothing but the Pink Pills and taken cold baths as directed on the boxes. To-day I walked to the market and back—a three-mile walk. I have lived in Hamilton for 20 years and am well known. Hundreds of people stopped me on the streets. Some of them stopped me to see if it was really John Marshall. Hundreds of people have been here to see me. Among them came several physicians who attended me. One of them, and the one who did the most for me, said, 'Well, you are the first cure in 10,000 cases.' I can tell you of a bank messenger in this city who has not walked as straight in 25 years as he has this last week. He took Pink Pills on my recommendation. Scores more in this city are trying them and quite a number in this vicinity have been benefitted."

Mr. Marshall is gaining strength rapidly and expects to be back before long. He grows more enthusiastic in talking of Pink Pills and he has good reason to, for his is a remarkable salvation. Since beginning to use the remedy he has regained lost flesh and now weighs more than he has for nine years. He has not an ache or pain, but is conscious of a delicious feeling of healthy life in his legs.

The remarkable case noted in the above article from the Hamilton Times, conclusively proves that the proprietors of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills have in no way overstated the merits of their remedy. Pink Pills are a never-failing blood builder and nerve tonic, and are equally valuable for men or women, young or old. They cure all forms of debility, female weaknesses, suppressions, chronic constipation, headache, St. Vitus dance, loss of memory, premature decay, etc., and, by their marvellous action on the blood, build up the system anew and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow complexions. These pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medical Co, Brockville, Ont.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

A FRIEND IN NEED!

"Here, Johnnie, your mother doesn't understand why I am able to get out my big washings quicker and nicer than she does. Take this tablet of "Sunlight" Soap, and tell her to use it according to directions, and she will soon find out why my washings have been done quicker and better than hers. Tell her also that this soap will keep her hands nice and soft, and doesn't shrink flannels, and is so lasting that it is the cheapest as well as the best soap she can buy."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Commodore Calcutt Ill.

The many friends of Mr. H. Calcutt will regret to learn that he was taken suddenly and seriously ill last evening. He was somewhat better this morning, and there will be many earnest wishes that he will entirely recover.

Mr. W. Elliott Haslam, conductor of the music in St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, has requested our boy soprano, Gussie Arlidge, to sing "Angels ever bright and fair" at the special synod service on Tuesday evening next, at the Cathedral in Toronto.

'Prentice Boys Grand Lodge.

The Grand Lodge of 'Prentice Boys will meet in Lindsay next Tuesday. The Peterborough lodge will be represented by Messrs. M. A. Jamieson, Grand Secretary, W. Sloan, Grand Chaplain, W. J. Sanders, John Flannery and Andrew Armour.

under auspices of the Epworth League of Charlotte-st. church, on Monday, June 15th, via Grand Trunk railway. Tickets good for two days, to go and return by any regular train. Tickets $1 75. Can be had from Messrs. O. C. Rowse, G. W. Morrow, T. Barrie and W. Hamilton. 1d138

They Inspected the Town.

The Street and Bridge Committee of the Town Council made their annual tour of inspection yesterday through the town, examining the streets and considering needed improvements. The result will be the recommendation of the laying of a large amount of new sidewalks, more street grading which is necessary, more crib work and other street improvements.

Opening of the Chemong Line.

On Monday next, June 8th, the summer trains on the Chemong line will be put in operation. The time-table is as follows:—First train will leave Peterborough at 8.30 a.m., arriving at Chemong at 8.55; returning will depart at 9.10 and reach Peterborough at 9.35. The second train leaves town at 5.20 p.m., reaches Chemong at 5.45, leaves again at 6 o'clock and returns to Peterborough at 6.25. It is expected the Chemong line will do a good business this summer conveying tourists and campers to Chemong lake, which is springing into prominence as a summer resort.

The vocal organs are strengthened by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Clergymen, lawyers, singers, actors, and public speakers find this preparation the most effective remedy for irritation and weakness of the throat and lungs, and for all affections of the vocal organs.

Last Sad Rites.

The funeral of the late Charles J. Ridley, recently of the Examiner job department, took place from his late residence on Aylmer-st. yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. The Foresters, of which Order the deceased was a member, turned out in good numbers to pay a last tribute to an esteemed departed brother. The employees of the local newspaper offices also attended the funeral in a body, and the Examiner office and Peterborough Bookstore were closed while the funeral was in progress. The bearers were Messrs. Wm. Cowie, F. J. Jameson, Robt. Fair, W. Robinson, W. Hinchcliff and F. Foote. Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's, said the solemn service of the Church of England at the grave, and at the conclusion remarked upon the source of gratification it was to all to see such a large turnout of the fellow employees of the deceased and his brethren of the honorable Order to which he belonged. It bespoke sympathy and also redounded to the credit of the employers, showing the good feeling and sympathy which existed between employers and employees. The impressive Forester's service was also conducted, Bro. A. McNeil, P.C.R., and Bro. A. Russell, P.C.R., officiating.

CIVIL AND CRIMINAL.

The County Court and General Session—The Criminal Calendar and Civil List.

The County Court and General Sessions open here on Tuesday at one o'clock. The list of civil cases is small, being composed of three, two jury and one non-jury case.

The criminal docket has four cases entered as follows:—

Queen vs. John Gilman, seduction. This charge which is laid under the Charlton Act, has been before the public before, Gilman who lives in Ashburnham, being charged with the seduction of Hannah Huffman, a mulatto. The case was to have come up at the last court but the girl was missing when it was called.

Queen vs. Wm. Colter and Thos. Humphries, burglary. This case is detailed in another column.

Queen vs. Wm. Colter and Thos. Humphries, assault. This charge is also an outcome of the disturbance detailed in another column.

Queen vs. Wm. Young, Thos. Conners, Geo. Wood, Daniel Innes and John Cotter, house-breaking and larceny. The accused are now serving a term in the Kingston Penitentiary for a burglary for which they were committed at Cardwell. When arrested at that place a quantity of jewellery found in their possession was identified as part of the stolen goods from Mr. Patterson's jewellery store in Lakefield, which was burglarized a short time before.

THE CIVIL LIST.

The civil list is composed of the following three cases, the first two being jury cases and the last a non-jury case:—

ENGLISH vs. FORSYTHE.—An action brought by G. S. English against Wm. Forsythe to receive a claim of $121.78 for balance of wages and commission as agent or salesman for the defendant. E. B. Edwards for the plaintiff; John Burnham, Q.C., for the defendant.

MORROW vs. ELLIS.—This is an interpleader action brought by R. A. Morrow against H. Ellis.—Hatton & Wood for plaintiff; Hall & Kilmeli for the defendants.

KINCAID vs. SAWERS.—This is an action in which the plaintiff, John Kincaid, claims $148 as share of costs in certain interpleader proceedings. C. W. Sawers is the defendant.—Dumble & Leonard for plaintiff; John Burnham, Q.C., for the defendant.

CRICKET AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Five Men Represent Peterborough and Suffer Defeat by Twenty Runs.

As was anticipated by themselves, the five men who went to Campbellford yesterday to represent the Peterborough cricket team were defeated. They were vanquished by 20 runs on a one innings game, which was not at all a bad showing when it is known that the six substitutes were not of the heaviest calibre. Not a man of the veterans of the Peterborough club was with the five. Circumstances prevented Sam Ray from going at the last moment, and others who were counted on also failed to go.

Campbellford's team was composed of the usual eleven. Goldsmith and Stocker, who did the trundling for the Peterboroughs, did very effective work considering the inspiration they had. It was the first game of the season and it was to be regretted that a full representative team did not leave from Peterborough and bring back victory.

The following are the scores:—

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

Rain Predicted.

Mr. Thos. Telford writes:—"When in conversation yesterday I found there was white frost in several localities, injuring garden stuff, although slight here, and the thermometer standing at 38 degrees, but there is a difference in the soils and in the country a slight frost is more apt to take effect than in the town, the same as yesterday. Look out shortly for rain."

Boils, carbuncles, and eruptions of all kinds are nature's efforts to throw off poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectually, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

A NOCTURNAL VISIT.

A House Attacked in Galway and a Man and his Wife Taken From Bed to be Ridden on a Rail.

A piece of back-country excitement of a rather unusual character was detailed before County Magistrate Edmison yesterday afternoon when Thos. Humphries and Wm. Colter, two young men from Galway, were arraigned on a charge of housebreaking and burglary, it being alleged that on the night of the 27th of May last they broke in the house of George Booth, of Galway, and carried away one pair of boots, one pair of shoes, a quantity of pork and a briar pipe.

The particulars of the affair are of the White Cap and Vigilance Committee order. It appears that on the night in question Booth and his wife, whom general report do not place in very high repute in the community in which they reside, were visited at their home by a gang of disguised men, who, with blackened faces and wild threats, made sad havoc of the house and its furnishings, intending to wind up proceedings by giving the couple a ride on a rail and an involuntary bath in Silver lake. The two men accused it is alleged were in the gang. The charge is a serious one, for such outrages cannot be made without punishment if the guilty are apprehended.

Mr. Booth is a young man probably twenty-two or twenty-three and has not a very strong or determined countenance. His wife is also young, about the same age as her husband and is not unprepossessing in appearance.

The prisoners were defended by Mr. E. B. Hall and elected to be tried by jury. The preliminary examination brought out the detail of the night's excitement.

Geo. Booth, the plaintiff, was the first witness and narrated the events of the night of the unexpected visit of his neighbors. He said he was a married man and resided with his wife in the township of Galway, on lot 16, A con. About ten o'clock on the night of the 27th of May, Wm. Colter and Thomas Humphries came to his house with a gang of other people. There were about 25 or 30 in the crowd.

THEY WERE DISGUISED

and had their faces blackened. He was in bed and had just lit a match to light his pipe, a habit which he had acquired, when the first stone struck the case of the window. Then followed a shower of stones and the witness and his wife beat a retreat upstairs to avoid the missiles. Then the crowd of blackened faced men came in and eight or nine of them, he said, followed him upstairs and carried him and dragged his wife down out of the house into the yard. The parties having hold of him called out to "bring on the rail," the meaning of which was a conundrum to the witness. He recognized Thos. Humphries and Wm. Colter and called the former by name when he replied that no names were to be mentioned and began striking him in the face. The witness had his pants and shirt on but his wife was attired only in her night clothes. They were kept out side about fifteen minutes and then were allowed to go. The witness said he supposed the maskers were afraid their names would become known. Booth and his wife then started for a neighbor's and some of the crowd went into the house and stole a pair of shoes, some pork and a briar pipe. The windows and doors were broken, the pails and dishes smashed, stove demolished and

GENERAL DESTRUCTION FOLLOWED.

The witness said there were a whole waggon load of stones in the house after the attack, some the size of his hand, others as big as his fist and all sizes. In answer [illegible] as to how he accounted for the visit he said he did not, except that on the Sunday night previous a number of young men, among them Wm. Coulter, came to the house swearing and cursing, and wanted to dance and he would not allow it.

In cross examination the witness said he had been married sixteen months, but stoutly repelled any insinuations as to the good character of his house and his wife. He said he asked the crowd what they meant by breaking his house, and they swore and said "——We'll show you." He had worked last winter with James Nicholls in the shanty. Coulter, he said, had "a nice sweet little voice," which he recognized when he said "Now——we'll have the dance."

Mrs. Booth was also examined and her evidence corroborated the story of her husband in regard to the raid on the house.

A New Dumping Ground.

A new dumping ground for the scavengers has been secured. It is on the farm of Mr. Kidney, who lives in Otonabee, a short distance beyond the Locks bridge. The scavengers are warned that they must dump according to the directions of Mr. Kidney or they will be prosecuted. The new place is fully as near as the old ground at Mr. May's and is over a better road.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

Music in the Park.

The band gave their second open air concert in the Court House Park last evening and thousands of the citizens were present promenading and enjoying the delightful programme rendered. There were several new selections on the programme, among them being a delightful set of waltzes called "Ferryman John" and "The Bohemian Girl," and the last number a beautiful arrangement of Irish airs called "Ould Oirland." In these the shading was effective and the time good. It was a real treat for lovers of music and Bandmaster Miller and his men can rest assured that their music is appreciated, although the crowd is not demonstrative.

A Remarkable Cure.

Elsewhere in this issue we re-publish an article from the Hamilton Times relating to the wonderful cure of a gentleman in that city, who had been pronounced by physicians incurable, and who had been paid the $1,000 total disability insurance granted members of the Royal Templars. The well known standing of the Times is a guarantee as to the entire reliability of the statements contained in the article.

Red and rosy cheeks follow the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. THE END NEAR

SIR JOHN'S LIFE EBBING AWAY.

He is Alive is all that Can be Said.

The reports from Ottawa to-day have been of the saddest character. The first despatch at 6 o'clock reported that the Premier "was alive, but no more." At nine o'clock he was reported getting worse and a despatch at 11.55 said he had only a few hours to live.

A despatch sent from Ottawa at two o'clock this afternoon said:—"Sir John has been gradually sinking since our last bulletin."

It is apparent that the end, which has been dreaded, is close at hand.

THE ALLIANCE CONVENTION.

The Programme of the Three Days' Conference to be Held Next Week.

The programme for the Christian Alliance Convention, which will be held in the Opera House on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next, June 9th, 10th and 11th, shows that three meetings will be held each day. The hours are as follows:—9 a.m., prayer meeting; 10 to 12, two Bible readings; 2 to 3 p.m., questions; 3 to 5, Bible readings; 7.30 p.m., addresses by Rev. A. B. Simpson, Rev. Dr. Wilson, Rev. F. W. Farr, Mrs. Whittemore and others. The Bible readings take the form of addresses on the portions of Scripture read. The subjects for the three days will probably be:—First day, Christ our Saviour and Sanctifier; second day, Christ our Sanctifier and Healer; and third day, Christ our Coming Lord and the obligation to evangelize the nations with a view to His Coming. Miss Shepard, of New York, will lead the singing at the meetings. The day meetings will, unless the attendance is very large, be held in the hall at the side of the main auditorium of the Opera House, and the evening meetings will be held in the Opera House proper.

It is now two years since a branch of the Christian Alliance was organized here, at the time of the visit of Miss Mattie Gordon and others. Meeting are held twice a week by the local branch and are largely attended. The Alliance is not in any way antagonistic to the regular church organizations, but works in harmony with the churches.

The speakers for the convention are well known as orators of marked ability, and no one should miss this opportunity of hearing them.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT WALL PAPER.

Some Facts that Should Interest All Who Require Wall Paper—A Time to Buy.

Occasionally the opportunity turns up whereby one can get in the neighborhood of one dollars worth for about fifty cents. It is not of so much consequence if the article on sale is something not in general use, but if it should be such as there is timely use for, then the chance is worth taking advantage of. A reporter noticing that H. Thompson & Co. were sending out large parcels of wall paper looked into the shop to inquire who were the buyers, and if the house renting boom now on had increased the demand for paper.

"I should say it has," said Mr. Thompson. "The new tenant always insists that things shall be freshened up for him. We don't complain—it's trade for us."

"Figure patterns seem to be out of date," said the reporter.

"If you mean geometrical patterns, they are," was the reply. "The styles seem to run into scrolls and floral designs, and the pattern is larger than a few years ago. We have hundreds in gold, silver and tints, all on suitable grounds. Of course we have to keep borders to match, and the taste of customers in the way of paper is so varied, and in the main so good, that we have to be extremely careful in selections. Of course the stock is so big that the variety is practically unlimited.

"Where are they made? Well, no one maker has the preference. Each has his specialty. Our papers come to us from New York, Boston, Buffalo and the dealers in England. We have to order ahead to get them here in time."

Going up the staircase to the paper room on the second flat our reporter found the walls lined with convenient racks filled with papers a hundreds of styles. The show room proper, neatly carpeted and well lighted, afforded an excellent opportunity to inspect the beautiful papers laid out on stands of convenient height. One wall of the paper room was hung with samples of papers and borders, very handsome and attractive.

After attending to a number of customers who came up to the show room, Mr. Thompson said; "The stock as you see is large, and we are anxious to run it down. To do this we are making a special cut in prices. Every line or roll will be sold out of stock. We have no remnants or odd lots. Regular lines pay better than a few rolls of this and that. These papers you see here are capital light colors for bed-rooms, and with this border they make a pleasing thing to look at. These other borders are all suitable. The same thing can be said of every pattern you see. Some are beautifully adapted for parlors, others for halls and dining rooms, and so on. Combinations can be made for shops. These are specially for ceilings and are complete. The reduction we are making covers every line, as I have said.

"What's the reduction? Well, largely in favor of the customer. The customer sees the inducement to buy and buys. Prices are reduced so as to make it a matter of gain to the buyer, and enables us to reduce stock which is the object we have in view. How long will the low prices last? Only for next 30 days. The buyer that needs paper will come in at once. They are doing so now though we haven't advertised the sale only one day. I tell you there is no better value, and if I was to talk for an hour I could not describe only a trifle of the stock, so varied and good is it. If your friends need paper tell them to come to Thompson & Co's. and get a share of the bargains going."

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

Cheap Wall Paper.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, of the Peterborough Bookstore, has leased the adjoining premises now being vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson which will be occupied by the fancy goods and wall paper department of his business. In order to facilitate removal the stock of over 30,000 rolls of wall paper must be reduced, and for the next thirty days a great sacrifice sale of wall paper will be held at the Peterborough Bookstore. The stock comprises over 30,000 rolls of wall paper, of all qualities and of the very latest designs, which should be cleared out before the change takes place. A fine lot of gold papers and a variety of job ends are in the stock, and will be sold at astonishingly low prices. This great sale of wall paper will continue for thirty days and those requiring wall paper within the next thirty days will find it to their advantage to call at the Peterborough Bookstore. 6d128-1w26

MARRIED.

EDWARDS—DUNSFORD.—On Wednesday, June 3rd, 1891, at St. Paul's Church, Lindsay, by the Rev. Mr. Marsh, Mr. J. G. EDWARDS, hardware merchant, to Miss WINNIFRED, eldest daughter of the late James Dunsford, ex-M.P.

THE WORKINGMAN'S POSITION.

Do Bonused Industries Benefit Him?—A Call to Unite.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—In view of the fact that another effort is being made by our local speculators, with the aid of our estimable and far seeing Town Council, to induce the people to accede to the paying of another bonus, besides a ten years exemption from taxes in order to allow a further addition to our local industries, in the shape of a large organ factory to locate in our midst, we would like to suggest a few remarks as to the expediency of such a measure and the advantages which are likely to accrue to the ratepayers by the granting of a similar encouragement to another firm as has already been extended to the Edison and Carbon Works. Will the privilege of deciding as to whether or no this new enterprise shall be granted a bonus, be again confined (as it was in the case of the Edison Works) to property owners only? Or will the Council be honest for once and consider the interest of every ratepayer by allowing them to have a voice in this matter? We speak, Mr. Editor, as workingmen who have realized by hard experience that the introduction of these new industries into our town, with the attendant large influx of population who have been attracted here by the extravagant and untrue representations of those who are interested in booming the town, for the sake of getting rid of their property at high prices, has been a great injury instead of an advantages to us. Last year we were earning from $1.25 to $1.50 per day, but now because a large influential firm has established itself in our town, we must work all the way from 25 to 50 per cent lower than we have ever worked before. Who then are reaping the advantages derived from the introduction of these new industries? Not the workingmen, who must pay their taxes whether they will or not. They are heavy losers! But just a few property owners. When the ratepayers were asked to vote for these bonused institutions, everything relating thereto was pictured to them in a most favorable light. Thousands of dollars would find their way into the pockets of the merchants, lawyers, doctors, &c., and lastly the workingmen would receive not only constant employment but remunerative wages. How much, we would ask, out of the very remunerative pay of $1.00 per day, will find its way into these several channels after we have provided for the bare subsistence of ourselves and families, and what provision can we make for a hard winter out of such pay? Is it any wonder that in the face of these difficulties, we are unable to coincide with the Council, who are notably property owners, consequently have only their personal profit in view, and not the benefit of those who placed them where they are? To give an illustration of the power which these wealthy companies assume over workingmen who have not the sense to unite themselves in a bond sufficiently strong to resist their impositions, we would quote two transactions, which we are creditably informed actually took place between the Edison Co. and their employees. The bricklayers were, presumably to themselves, engaged last winter at the wages usually earned by them, but for some excuse or other, their regular weekly pay day was postponed for the period of two weeks. At the end of that time the building they were working on was more than half completed, and on receiving their pay they found that the company had used their own discretion as to the amount they would allow them for their work, and they were the recipients of about half of what they were entitled to. The local superintendent contrived to be absent about this time. The men, however, struck and quit their work, and on the return of the superintendent they delegated two of their number to interview him, with a view of ascertaining the cause of the unfair treatment they had received, and to inquire as to the prospect of better wages. They were straightway informed that as they had quit work, without advising him of the fact, the company could do without them and supply their places at pleasure. In the other case the laborers went to an application for an increase of the miserable wages they were receiving. To this application no notice was taken whatever, but they were indirectly informed that if they were not satisfied there were plenty more men within call to supply their places, at the same wages they were receiving. What, we would ask, would become of the ratepayers who have to consider these burdens and the extra taxation imposed upon them by these [illegible] give place to hundreds of foreigners, who come here looking for employment, or else put up with a bare subsistence for the time being without any prospect for future provision.

The workingmen must decide this matter for themselves. It rests with them whether they will continue to be mere creatures of circumstances, subsisting only as the will of the capitalist may dictate, or whether they will follow the example of workingmen in other towns and cities (among which Peterborough stands forth as a miserable exception) and join hand in hand to protect themselves from poverty, by demanding a fair day's wages for a fair day's work and seek for local legislation to ensure to them a proper amount for every hour they work.

For this purpose, Mr. Editor, we would ask all workingmen in Peterborough who are sufficiently alive to their own interests, to meet with us in the Labor Hall on Monday next, in order that we may together take this matter into serious consideration, and arrive if possible at some satisfactory solution of the labor question.

Thanking you, sir, for your valuable space, we remain,

Your sincere friends,
WORKINGMEN.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla — the best of all blood-purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

PLAYED WITH A CHEAT.

THE HOSTESS OF TRANBY CROFT EXAMINED.

Another Day of the Baccarat Scandal Trial—Sir Charles Russell's Scathing Denunciation of the Plaintiff—A Bad Outlook For Baronet Cummings.

LONDON, June 5.—The baccarat case was resumed this morning. The baccarat counters were passed over to the jury for inspection. Mrs. Lycett Green was again called to the witness box and the cross-examination of the lady, which was yesterday interrupted by adjournment, was resumed by Sir Edward Clarke. The witness, who was fully as self-possessed as she had shown herself to be during the ordeal of yesterday, was in cross-examination taken over the old ground of the arrangement of the day, the disposition about it of the guests and discovery of the cheating by Sir William Gordon Cumming.

In the midst of this work of repetition, Sir Edward abruptly turned upon the witness with the question, "Are you acquainted with or do you know of a man named Bowles?" Witness replied very positively in the negative, and was then allowed to step out of the box.

The Hostess Testifies.

The defence then called Mrs. Arthur Wilson, the Tranby Croft hostess and a party defendant to the suit. Witness testified that she distinctly recollected having observed her son looking at her with a puzzled expression from time to time during the progress of the game of baccarat on Sept 8. Later her son informed her that he had seen the plaintiff, Sir William Gordon-Cumming, cheat at play. Then there came a tedious threshing over of the testimony of previous witnesses. Mrs. Wilson agreed [illegible] with the circumstances and details of the play as before related. When her son informed her of the detection by him of Sir William's dishonest play, witness said to him, "You must not mention it. We must not have a scandal in our house." Passing on to the events of the second evening of play, Sept. 9, witness swore that she had on that occasion noticed nothing strange until she had received a note from Mr. Lycett Green, who left the room. The note declared the writer had seen plaintiff cheat, and that he could not remain in the room, and that something should be done to stop the game. Witness recollected hearing plaintiff asking the banker, the Prince of Wales, to pay him £10 for a counter which he claimed had been overlooked. Witness also remembered hearing the Prince say on that occasion that he wished people would place their stakes where they could be seen. The Prince had spoken in the tone of a man who was seriously annoyed. Once, subsequently, witness had seen the plaintiff push a £10 counter over the chalk line so openly that she wondered that none of the others appeared to have observed the action.

Witness was then turned over to the prosecution for cross-examination, representatives of which emulated the courtesy of Sir Charles in their manner of receiving the lady. Replying to the first question of counsel in cross-examination, she declared that she did not sign a paper pledging secrecy as to the baccarat discovery. She however admitted that the Prince of Wales had appealed to her to say nothing of the matter.

In reply to a question by Sir Edward Clarke witness said that her husband had objected to baccarat being played in his house only because he feared that play might become too high. When asked why she had not told the Prince that her husband objected to baccarat being played there she replied: "I did not do so because we were such a staid, non-gambling party that I did not think much harm could come from the little play indulged in."

She kept her self-possession fairly well throughout this part of the examination, but was visibly annoyed at the loud titter that greeted her quaint reason for disobeying her husband's injunction.

Played With a Cheat.

In response to questions by plaintiff's counsel witness was forced to admit that she had sat at play on the second night, Sept. 9, with a guest whom she had heard solemnly denounced as a cheat.

Here counsel plied her with question after question, a course that somewhat confused her. At last she was asked point blank, "Why did you in your own house, where it was your duty to protect your guests, sit at play with a man whom you had heard called a common cheat?"

To the utter amazement of everyone present witness replied: "I had put it out of my mind. I had a lot of other matters to think about."

To say that this episode created a sensation is putting it mildly indeed. Asked whether she had seen Sir William cheat, witness replied, "Yes, unfortunately, without doubt." This concluded the cross-examination of Mrs. Wilson.

Lord Coventry's Evidence.

After the cross-examination of Mrs. Wilson had been finished the defence called Lord Coventry, who with Gen. Williams drew up the incriminating document which was signed by the plaintiff. Witness stated that when on the evening of Sept. 10 Mr. Lycett Green made the communication to him which was afterwards repeated in the presence of Gen. Williams and Mr. A. Stanley Wilson he had felt, as other gentlemen subsequently felt, that the Prince of Wales, having long honored the plaintiff with his friendship, they could not allow the Prince to continue that friendship without putting him in possession of what they knew of Sir William's conduct during the games of Sept. 8 and 9.

Continuing, witness related the circumstances of the notorious interview with Sir William. When witness told plaintiff of the nature of the accusation against him the latter denounced it as "false," and asserted that it was merely the statement of a parcel of inexperienced boys who were unentitled to belief. Subsequently the plaintiff had seen the Prince in company with the witness and General Williams, and had declared his innocence. To the declaration of Sir William the Prince simply responded, "There are five against you." Witness had himself told Sir William that Mr. Lycett Green wished to confront him, yet plaintiff had failed to express a desire to meet this accuser.

The First to Go.

Witness then said that when further stipulated to depart from the Tranby Croft residence early on the morning of the following day, the document was signed by Sir William under the circumstances related and was later forwarded to the Prince of Wales.

The notebook of the witness was then produced, and Sir Charles proceeded to read therefrom. It was found that Lord Coventry's diary of events at Tranby Croft agreed in every material respect with his testimony as given in court. General Williams and himself submitted the paper for the plaintiff to sign. The latter had said, "That is tantamount to an admission of guilt; I won't sign." To this witness and General Williams replied, "That's so."

There was nothing in the actions of Sir William on the occasion in question to suggest that he had lost his head. After the brief conversation related above witness and Gen. Williams, as friends of the plaintiff, advised him to sign the document which they had submitted to him. Plaintiff thereupon signed it, and a memorandum set forth that the writer had been induced to follow the course he had by a desire to avoid a scandal and keep the Prince of Wales out of a disagreeable affair.

Here the defence rested its case. Sir Charles Russell rose to address the court. He referred satirically to the altered tone of the prosecution since it had become familiar with the damning evidence presented by the defence. It was quite plain that the plaintiff had all along hoped that the defendants would admit that they had been mistaken as to the infamous charge here brought against Sir William.

We May Change Our Characters and Lives.

The man of violent temper, and uncontrolled passions, of tumultuous feelings, whose life is one continual excitement will rarely, if ever, live to a great age. Such characters are often found among the nervous, irritable, dyspeptic, bilious and morose, than in the ranks of the strong-nerved, healthy, robust and those of buoyant spirits and cheerful disposition. Such characters are a curse, a hindrance, and a barrier to the well-being of the world and humanity. The question has been asked: "Can such men be changed in character for the better?" We answer, "Yes." To accomplish this the great nerve system must be strengthened and toned; dyspepsia must be banished; excitement allayed, and sound refreshing sleep found, as well as perfect and vigorous digestion. To achieve these very desirable objects it is imperatively necessary that Paine's Celery Compound be used. By its use undesirable characters may change their lives, and become useful to the world. Let them bear in mind that their present condition is due almost wholly to nervous derangements, all of which will easily yield to the wonderful effects of Paine's Celery Compound.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE.

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores—Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from her hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospects of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she is entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

THE WAYS OF BEAVERS.

THEIR HOUSES NOT SO PLENTIFUL NOW AS FORMERLY.

A Busy Little Animal About Which Much Has Been Written—The Size, Location and Shape of Their Houses—A Neat Worker.

So much has been written about the habits of the beaver that almost every one knows something about the animal, and everybody is acquainted with the fact that it builds dams and houses to dwell in. Their dams are exceedingly strong and durable, and they are prompt in repairing any injury to them. A dam cut during the day will usually be repaired the same night, and in the morning will be as good as new. I remember an instance of this sort which occurred on San Juan Island. An old Englishman named John Wootton, who was new to the country, wished to get rid of a colony of beaver that lived on his place, and one day cut their dam. The next morning he found it repaired and cut it again, and this time to frighten away the animals when they should come to rebuild it, he set up a green cottonwood pole on the dam and hung his overcoat on it. The following day on visiting the place he not only found the dam in its usual good condition, but the cottonwood pole and his overcoat had gone to help stop the gap he had made and were now in the dam.

Beaver houses are less common now than they used to be, partly because beaver themselves are less abundant, but mainly because the presence of a fresh beaver house betrays even to the most unskilled eye the existence of beaver in the neighborhood. In the older districts beaver now generally live in holes in the banks of the streams they inhabit, though in some part of the Rocky Mountains and in many places on this coast the sight of a beaver house is not uncommon.

The houses differ a good deal in size, location and shape. Some are as large, though of course less high, than a small haystack; others are hardly more than six feet through at the base. They may stand either wholly on land or partly in the water and partly on the bank, or wholly in the water.

They are never placed in very deep water, for a base must be built for the house to stand on reaching up to the surface, since the chamber inhabited by the occupants must be dry. The shape of those houses which I have seen on the shore approaches the conical. Those in the water are more irregular, sometimes only rounded, at others long and rather flat on top. Within each house, and connected with the water by a concealed passage, through which the beaver pass to and fro, is the chamber which is the animals' dwelling place. It is large enough to contain seven or eight of them, and high enough so that a beaver can conveniently sit up on its haunches. It is warm, dry and clean, for the beaver is extremely neat in all its habits.

The food of the beaver consists chiefly of the green bark of twigs and young limbs of various trees. Cottonwood bark is preferred, then comes willow, then alder, but the bark of almost any tree may be eaten. I have known them to eat pine and white cedar. The beaver [illegible] of very considerable size to get at the smaller limbs, which they eat. I have seen cottonwoods twenty inches in diameter [illegible], and once on Vancouver Island, near Johnston's Straits, found a cedar two and one half feet through which they had gnawed down. This work of cutting down a large tree is done by a single animal. I have seen the beaver engaged in the operation, which is performed as follows: The beaver sits up on its haunches facing the tree and with forepaws resting against it. With his head turned on one side he cuts a groove above and then one below and bites out the chip, taking it off in almost the same way an axeman would. He thus saves himself the trouble of gnawing all the wood up into fine cuttings. When the tree is felled the whole community attack and cut up the tender limbs, carrying them away to the cache.

Unlike many of our gnawing animals, the beaver does not sleep through the winter; he remains active, often venturing abroad during the whole of the cold weather. He must therefore have food, and a large part of the summer and autumn is devoted to securing this food and depositing it in caches. This food consists of the limbs and twigs of the trees most preferred by the beaver. They are cut from 1½ to 3 feet long, stripped of their leaves and smaller twigs, carried to the water and floated to the cache, where they are sunk. And here comes a very curious point. These sticks are floated to the cache and are sunk by the beaver to the bottom of the water, where they remain without any apparent anchorage. They are not stuck in the mud of the bottom, nor held down by weights. If you lift one to the surface it will float, but you may move it about on the bottom without its rising.

I have myself tried this with sticks from which the bark had been eaten, but have never done so with the green unpealed limbs before the beaver have taken them into their houses. This matter to me is a very mysterious one, and I have never been able to get any hint as to how these sticks were sunk. All through the winter the beaver visit these caches, carry the sticks to their houses where they eat off the bark, returning the bare sticks to the water. Sometimes it may happen, that, for some reason or other, the cache may not contain enough to last the whole colony through the winter. In this case, the beaver, if possible, get on land through some air hole or piece of open water and then forage among the timber. Occasionally a combination of scarcity and severe weather may oblige the colony to emigrate during the winter to some more favorable spot.—Forest and Stream.

Sally—"Yes, father dear, don't put it off another minute; you health, you know, is not robust."

Methodist Conference.

WINDSOR, June 5.—Rev. W. W. Edwards was elected secretary of the Methodist conference yesterday afternoon. At this morning's session Rev. J. Gray of Toronto, treasurer of general conference and superannuation funds, presented his report and addressed the conference. Rev. Dr. Dewart of Toronto also addressed the meeting. The nomination committee presented its report at noon and conference adopted it. The candidates for ordination underwent the usual examination this afternoon and this evening the public reception took place.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

AT TURNBULL'S.

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of Dress Goods that were formerly from 20 to 50 cts. a yard. They are odd lines and are now being cleared out at 15 cts. a yard. They can only last a short time. Call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For a week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them as they please everybody as to quality and price.

MONDAY, JUNE 8, 1891.

SIR JOHN AT REST.

The Veteran Premier Died on Saturday Night

WITHOUT REGAINING CONSCIOUSNESS.

The Remains to Be Interred at Kingston Thursday.

The Dead Premier's Body to Lie in State at Ottawa Until Wednesday Morning—Eulogies of the Chieftain in Almost Every City of the Civilized Globe—Feeling References in the Churches of Ottawa, Toronto, Kingston and Elsewhere—Will Mr Meredith's Future Field Be in Dominion Politics.

OTTAWA, June 7.—Toll, toll, toll, went the huge bell at the City Hall last night at 10.30. All Ottawa knew at once that the unparalleled struggle at Earnscliffe was ended—Sir John Macdonald was dead. People knew all day that death was nigh, but the solemn tones of the ponderous bell were startling.

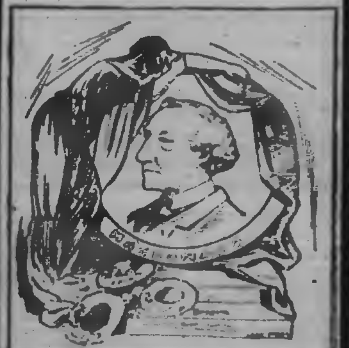
In the silence of the night, how we shiver with affright,
In the melancholy menace of their tone!

To say that citizens were shocked, expresses but the simple truth. In clubs, hotels and on the street men stopped with bated breath to listen to the sad tolling. Women, too, stood upon their doorsteps until the bell had ceased. Sir John, to most in Ottawa, was more than the leader of the Government, the Premier of a great confederation. His figure and his features were so well known in Ottawa, that he was regarded as a friend. His death was a loss to Ottawaites less than to the country. No personality so well known in political life, he was in another aspect, a subject of familiar conversation throughout the city. Then there was one he had left behind. The party leadership has had in the caucus in Parliament a master. And at Earnscliffe a mistress of consummate skill, and therefore of far-reaching and supreme influence, Lady Macdonald's personality was as marked and was as well known to the citizens of Ottawa as that of the Premier. During the long struggle with death she had universal sympathy. Last night many a wife mourned with her.



The Old Man died literally in harness. He had won his last fight and now death was the conqueror.

These lines in Punch on the occasion of the death of Lord Palmerston are singularly appropriate:

He is down and forever the good fight is ended,
In deep-dented harness our champion has died;
But tears should be few in a sunset so splendid,
And grief hath her wall at the bidding of pride.

He falls, but unvanquished he falls in his glory,
A noble old king on the last of his fields;
And with death song we come like the northmen of story,
And haughtily bear him away on our shields.

"Gentlemen, Sir John Macdonald is dead. He died at a quarter past ten. He passed away peacefully and quietly!" was the announcement made by Mr. Joseph Pope, the private secretary of the Premier, at 10.20 jointly to a knot of correspondents at the gates of Earnscliffe. Mr. Pope's voice was choked with emotion. For the past seven years Mr. Pope has been secretary to the Premier and brought into the most intimate relations with him. The faithful, able and diplomatic manner in which he discharged his arduous duties caused the Premier to regard him more as a personal friend. The feeling was reciprocated, and Mr. Pope could say no more at the time than announce the death in these brief words. The sad news was flashed across the Dominion and farther under the ocean to England from the little tent the C.P.R. had pitched a few yards from the grounds at Earnscliffe. Messages were also sent at once to the Governor-General at Rideau Hall and to Sir Hector Langevin to inform them of the Premier's death.

A few minutes later this bulletin, the last that ever would be issued, was fastened to the gate:

EARNSCLIFFE, 10.20 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald died at 10.15 this evening.
(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

Dr. Powell remained for half an hour longer and then left for his own residence. It was the first time the doctor had left Earnscliffe since the Premier was stricken on the Friday of the week previous. It was a week of tremendous strain. The doctor watched his patient with the utmost faithfulness and fidelity, but human skill could do little against the deadly paralysis. He said the death of the Premier was the most quiet and peaceful he ever witnessed. Respiration had been at 56 all afternoon.

His Last Day of Life.

OTTAWA, June 7.—The soft light of earliest daybreak yesterday found the Premier still alive. The light of a new day brought with it nothing to relieve the anxious suspense. There was no change in the patient's condition. A little more frail, a little more slender had grown the thread that bound the spirit to its earthly tabernacle. That was all. The Premier was unconscious. His limbs were numb and there was nothing to indicate that life was not extinct save the feeble fluttering of the pulse and the almost imperceptible breathing. The family had been gathered about the bedside all night. Lady Macdonald, almost worn out by her long vigil, was there and the Premier's son, Hugh John Macdonald, had kept his place at his father's side.

The Physicians Again Mistaken.

The scenes of the morning and afternoon were but counterparts of Friday. The same hushed stillness, the same anxiety, the same suspense. At 2 o'clock the physicians concurred in the opinion that the Premier could not live until 4 o'clock, and again did they err. Nurse Stewart, who has had long experience in English hospitals, never saw such a case. The dying Premier had been perfectly unconscious for nearly 30 hours, and still the spark of life lingered on. The action of the patient's heart at times during the afternoon and evening was so feeble that Sir John was believed to be dead. Once the family gathered at the bedside under the impression that the end had come, but it proved to be another of the dreaded sinking spells which in succession had left the aged statesman with less and less vitality.

Not since 5 o'clock Friday afternoon had any substantial liquid nourishment passed his lips. Such an unequal struggle could not much longer be sustained. Eventide found the members of the family gathered about the bedside of the dying statesman, waiting patiently for dissolution. Outside in the dusk were gathered the correspondents and small groups of anxious friends. The patient lay unconscious. Nature no longer asserted itself; life's fires were burning low, flickered and smouldered as though the soul would leave its tenement at each successive breath. No one would recognize in the dying man one vestige of resemblance to the great political leader who had guided the destinies of Canada for nearly half a century.

Azrael's Summons.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Dr. Powell noticed that the change had come which he knew preceded dissolution. The patient's breathing became more regular, but the respirations were at longer intervals, the pulsations were feebler and it was evident that the gallant heart would soon be stilled in death. Dr. Powell, upon remarking the change, told Lady Macdonald that the end was at hand. The members of the family and those with whom the Premier's inner life had been most intimately connected were summoned to see the chieftain die. Around the bedside were Lady Macdonald, the Premier's son and Mrs. Macdonald, Mrs. Fitzgibbon, niece of Lady Macdonald, Miss Marjorie Stewart, Hon. E. Dewdney and Mrs. Dewdney, Mr. Joseph Pope, the Prime Minister's secretary; Mr. Fred White, ex-private secretary to Sir John and now comptroller of the mounted police; Mr. George Sparks, a relation of Sir John; Dr. Powell, the faithful physician, and Ben Chilton, the Premier's trusted messenger for many years.

Lady Macdonald stood by the side of her noble husband, and around her gathered the members of the family. Her face showed traces of the weary watching and the long suspense. She bore up bravely.

No flicker of reviving consciousness marred the utter painlessness, the perfect peace, of the Premier's end. He lay in utter oblivion, breathing slowly and gently, while his loved ones stood about him and gazed silently upon him. He was unconscious to the last. The pulse fluttered, the breath came shorter and then—all was still. So peaceful was his going that it was not until they had been informed of the fact by Dr. Powell at 10.15 exactly that the family knew Sir John was dead.

THE BATTLE WITH DEATH.

The Progress of Sir John's Case Since His Attack.

FRIDAY, May 29.—At 4.15 to-day while Dr. Powell his medical attendant, was conversing with the Premier he was stricken with paralysis. At 10.30 Dr. Powell issued a bulletin pronouncing his case quite hopeless.

SATURDAY, May 30.—Twenty-four hours had made no change in the Premier's condition. He was still alive and that was about all that could be said.

SUNDAY, June 1.—With the dawning of the loveliest month in all the year there was a manifest weakening of the vital powers. He passed a quiet day, however, and although there was no marked alteration in his general symptoms he appeared to relish his nourishment and swallowed more easily at midnight.

MONDAY, June 1.—The doctors' bulletins were less hopeful to-day, and few there were who believed that he would live until dawn.

TUESDAY, June 2.—The fact that Sir John passed the night composedly and comfortably served to dispel the gloom which had hovered over the capital the preceding four days, and the amazing vitality manifested by the Premier led to the belief being entertained that he might yet conquer death, but the physicians' bulletins issued later in the day which told of periods of great prostration and extreme heart weakness.

WEDNESDAY, June 3.—"He is sinking, sinking," said the physicians, "and not likely to live another day. Not one man in a thousand of his age would have lived so long. His vitality is marvellous."

THURSDAY, June 4.—The Premier's condition to-day was actually better than yesterday, and the paralysis seemed to have relaxed somewhat. People took a more encouraging view of the case from the nature of the bulletin issued, but in this they were unwarranted, the physicians at midnight pronouncing him weaker than at any time since his illness.

FRIDAY, June 5.—The increased heart weakness showed the physicians early in the day that the end was only a question of a few hours at the most, and at sundown the issuing of bulletins was discontinued. Nothing remained but to wait calmly for the end, which could not long be delayed now.

SATURDAY, June 6.—At 1 o'clock this morning the attending physicians announced that it would be a miracle if Sir John lived until dawn. Daylight found him still alive with death liable to occur at any moment. So the dying man passed the hours until sunset.

Sir John's Resisting Power.

Sir John must have had a phenomenal amount of reserve or resisting power stored in his system when the stroke came on Friday nine days ago, or the doctors grievously mis-diagnosed his case and condition. They gave him up on Friday—he could not live a day, and every day since it has been the same.

This last Friday they gave him up for hours, and all Saturday it was but a case of minutes. Yet he lasted out the day. We believe he was possessed of a wonderful amount of reserve force and this is what kept him alive so long. With the average man the stroke comes and it is then a matter of resistance—with most of minutes or of hours. Sir John has held out for days. And this all the more remarkable when it is remarked that he took little but milk for the two weeks previous to the stroke.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The Remains to Lie in State Tuesday and to Be Interred at Kingston Thursday.

OTTAWA, June 7.—The Cabinet minister did not meet until 4 o'clock, when Sir John Thompson arrived from Montreal, whither he had gone to visit his little daughter, who is seriously ill. It was decided to give the Premier a state funeral. Lady Macdonald on being communicated with gave her consent to this arrangement.

The following is the official program:

1. The body will be privately moved from Earnscliffe to the Parliament Buildings and will lie in state there from 10 o'clock Tuesday morning till the hour of the funeral.

2. The state funeral will leave the Parliament Buildings at 1 p.m. on Wednesday for St. Alban's Church, where a service will be held, thence to the C.P.R. station, whence [illegible]

3. The body will lie in state at City Hall, Kingston, on Thursday until noon, when the interment will take place.

The only absentees from the Cabinet meeting were Mr. Abbott and Mr. Haggart, who were in Montreal. The members had intended to call at Earnscliffe to-day to express their sympathy and condolence, but owing to the fact that the body of the Premier was not ready for viewing they decided to postpone their visit until to-morrow. They will meet in the council chamber at 11 a.m. and proceed to Earnscliffe in a body.

All the details in connection with the state funeral have been left in the hands of Hon. Edgar Dewdney, Lieut.-Col. Smith, Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, and Major Sherwood, Superintendent of Dominion Police. The military will be invited to assist at the funeral.

The House of Commons chamber and Sir John's seat will be draped in mourning to-morrow.

The Regalia of Death.

Mr. M. Rogers, undertaker, embalmed the remains this morning. He says Sir John is less emaciated than was generally supposed. The casket was made in West Meriden, Conn. It is of rolled steel and is painted a beautiful rosewood color. The massive handles consist of a solid bar of oxydized silver, and extend along both sides of the coffin. On the lid are three large silver figures, emblematic of the flight of time. The inside is lined with heavy white satin. The outside casket is made of solid oak and also displays heavy silver handles. The casket is an exact facsimile of that of the late President Garfield. The inscription on the silver plate has not yet been engraved.

Her Majesty's Sympathy.

Hundreds of telegrams and cables reached Lady Macdonald. They all extended sympathy and condolence. Her Majesty cabled from Balmoral to the Governor-General that she was deeply pained to learn of Sir John's death, which she regarded as a great loss to Canada and the sovereign. Her Majesty extended her heartfelt sympathy to Lady Macdonald in the hour of her sad bereavement.

Lord Salisbury sent a message of sympathy. Sir Charles Tupper cabled his condolence from Vienna. All the Lieutenant-Governors of the Dominion sent messages of sympathy. Lieut.-Governor Angers of Quebec and Lieut.-Governor Campbell of Ontario added that they would attend the funeral. Hon. Oliver Mowat wired his sorrow at the death of an old personal friend and promising to attend the funeral.

Mourning Ministers.

The Cabinet Ministers are reluctant to be interviewed on the subject of the Premier's death. They are all grief-stricken at the loss of their loved chieftain. Nowhere is this grief more real than among the members of the Opposition. The noble qualities of the man with whom they have been struggling for years for the mastery, and the loss which the country has sustained, are fully appreciated. Not one has anything but the kindest of words for the dead statesman, the greatest admiration for his abilities, and the greatest regret at his death.

To Adjourn for a Week.

When the House meets to-morrow the Ministers will ask an adjournment until Tuesday of next week. In view of the fact that the state funeral will take up the greater part of the week, it will be impossible to conduct public business. The Ministers therefore decided to-day to ask for a week's adjournment.

Tokens of Respect.

With dawn to-day flags could be seen floating at half-mast throughout the city. That flag on centre tower of the House of Parliament and on the lofty poles at each side of the imposing structure hung idly, scarcely stirred by the breeze.

The United States Consul, Col. Lay on international courtesy lowered half way the Stars and Stripes which floated above his residence directly opposite Parliament square. Many private residences showed their sorrow similarly. The massive stone French Roman Catholic Church across the river in Hull, but in easy view of the House, displayed a tricolor at high-mast immediately over the cross.

Notes.

Hamilton MacCarthy, the sculptor, took an excellent plaster cast of Sir John's head today in order to make from it a statue.

Lieut.-Governor Angers of Quebec, has wired for a suite of rooms at the Russell. All the Lieut.-Governors in Canada are expected for the funeral.

The news of Sir John's death was received in London, England, five minutes after the sad event had taken place.

Despatches from all sections of the province state that reference was made in all the churches to the Premier's death, in every city, town and village, and flags were half-masted.

At this writing the Governor-General has not sent for any of Sir John's colleagues to form a ministry.

Arrangements have been made to fire minute guns at Ottawa and in every city in Canada during the program of the funeral.

There is a strong feeling that an autopsy ought to be made on the body of Sir John by independent medical men in order that the public may know what was really the cause of death.

Hundreds of potted plants were removed to Earnscliffe to-day. Sir John now lies in his casket. He is attired in the uniform of the Imperial Privy Council.

Mayor Birkett has called special attention of the City Council for to-morrow morning to draw up resolutions of sympathy and condolence, issue a proclamation calling upon citizens to cease from business on the day of the funeral and drape their stores and residences with mourning and make necessary arrangements for the funeral.

WHO WILL BE CALLED?

Gossip at the Capital as to Sir John's Successor.

The program for Monday in the House will probably be a short session with tributes to the memory of Sir John and then an adjournment of a week or ten days, in which time the reconstruction will be effected.

All sorts of rumors have been flying around to-day as to whom the Governor-General would call upon to form a new Government. Two Ministers, one from the Maritime Provinces, the other from Quebec, said to-night that no one had yet been summoned by the Governor and that it was not probable that anyone would be summoned until after the funeral. This delay of at least five days is almost without precedent. It gives point to a curious story afloat to-night to the effect that the Governor-General left the meeting of the Royal Society at Montreal rather hurriedly last Wednesday and called upon Sir John Macdonald at Earnscliffe next day. It is said that Sir John then indicated whom he thought should be called upon to form a new Ministry in case his illness terminated fatally.

The meeting of the ministers to-day took place at Sir Hector Langevin's house, but this one of the ministers was owing simply to the fact that the council chamber was closed, it being Sunday and that it was a courtesy extended Sir Hector, the senior minister. Sir Hector, besides, was quite unwell this morning.

The News in Toronto.

TORONTO, June 8.—The people had been waiting with apprehension for eight days for the dread news that came about 10.30 on Saturday night, but when it actually came the blow seemed none the less hard. It is wonderful how people keep hoping against hope. They incline to believe that a miracle will happen rather than prepare for some unwelcome occurrence. That has been the state of feeling all along, and when at last the intelligence that cut off all hope came to hand there was a pang of unavailing regret. Shortly after the receipt of the despatch announcing his death, the city bells began to toll. At the first peal the words "Sir John is dead!" escaped from a hundred thousand lips, and it is no exaggeration to say that thousands of people who had never seen him, but who with the rest of the world had been watching his grim struggle with the destroyer, laid down to their night's rest with a prevailing emotion of sorrow and [illegible]

Sympathy From [illegible] Masons.

On Saturday night on receipt of the news of the Premier's death, this message of sympathy was transmitted to Ottawa:

Lady Macdonald, Ottawa:

On behalf of twenty thousand of Sir John's brother Masons, permit me to respectfully tender a sincere assurance of heartfelt sympathy in this supreme hour of grief to his loved ones and the nation.

J. ROSS ROBERTSON,
Grand Master Grand Lodge
A. F. & A. M., of Canada.

On Sunday afternoon this acknowledgment was received:

J. Ross Robertson, Grand Master Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M., Toronto, Canada:

EARNSCLIFFE, June 7th.

Lady Macdonald desires me to ask you to be good enough to accept for yourself and convey to the Masonic body in Canada her grateful thanks for the kind sympathy in her great affliction.

AT KINGSTON.

References to the Event in Sir John's Constituency.

KINGSTON, June 7.—Before Father Kelly commenced his sermon to St. Mary's congregation to-day he alluded to the death of Sir John A. Macdonald in the following words: "The Catholics of Kingston unite with their fellow-countrymen of all creeds all over Canada in the common sorrow which has befallen this country by the death of Sir John A. Macdonald. We participate in the universal regrets of the country for the loss of her first statesman. We have our own part in this affliction with which Divine Providence has visited our beloved land. A man has passed away who, by word and example, sought to enkindle in the breasts of Canadians the spirit of fire and patriotism. For a long term of years—longer than is usually allotted to men—has he held with benefit to the country, with distinguished honor to himself and with a devotion unselfish and loyal the great public trust confided to him by the suffrages of his compatriots. It is just that we withhold not from him a generous tribute of gratitude for his great public services, even as we wish also to record our applause of the great career which death has just closed and our affectionate remembrance of our honored fellow-citizen, the first in the councils of his country. We are one, therefore, with the universal spirit of national sorrow; we share in the great public loss which Sir John's death brings to Canada, and we send our meed of sympathy to the bereaved family, whose grief is beyond ours; but yet, even to his nearest and dearest, we do not yield in the honor we would give to the illustrious dead."

In Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 8.—The death of Sir John was referred to in all the city churches today. The flags on the shipping in the harbor are at half-mast.

To-morrow's Gazette will say: "It is impossible to maintain la presence of a calamity so great, of loss so irreparable, the coolness of those who write of historic events and men dead long ago whom we have not seen. Macdonald was so widely known no man was ignorant of him in this country. He had visited every part of the Dominion, he had spoken to hundreds of thousands, had personal acquaintance of more men than probably any other public man on this continent—perhaps in the world. He had touched hands in friendship with an extraordinary number of people, and his memory enabled him to greet them all. His correspondence, written with his own hand, was surprising, and those of us who have had in the nature of things many letters from him know how kind, how trusting, how graceful, how friendly his letters could be. The fascination of his presence was so great, the kindness of his conversation was so constant, the glamour of his genius was so enthralling, the sense of his power was so keen that human composure, easily maintained at ordinary times, fails when shadows of death encompass him and he parts forever from the dear ones he has loved so well, from the friends who so worshipped him, from the people who, in spite of all the differences of party, yet looked upon him as the great glory of Canada, the man of whom we could all be proud.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. [illegible] A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion.

Intense

I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia.

Suffering

I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken

MONDAY, JUNE 8, 1891.

A GREAT CAREER CLOSED.

THERE is mourning in Canada to-day. The great statesman, who for forty years has almost continually guided the affairs of this country, who has been the leading spirit in its councils and whose genius established the nation, is no more. The death of Sir John Macdonald is a calamity to Canada.

Sir John Macdonald has been so long in public life that a generation has passed away since he became the leader in the Parliament of his country. Men have been born, grown to manhood and reached the age when silver threads appear among the gold since the statesman who has now died entered upon the service of his country in its legislative halls. No statesman was ever more honored by his countrymen; no public man was ever more beloved by the people.

No public man ever more deserved the homage of his countrymen. Upon a memorable occasion in the House of Commons Sir John said:—"There does not exist in Canada a man who has given more of his time, more of his heart, more of his wealth, or more of his intellect and powers, such as they may be, for the good of this Dominion of Canada." These words were true when they were spoken, and they can be used with reference to the dead statesman with greater force now, for since then Sir John was enabled to devote eighteen years more of his life to the service of the country he loved and nearly thirteen years as the First Minister in its Government.

Sir John Macdonald was seventy-six years old last January. Born in Glasgow, he came to Canada when but five years of age. Upon reaching twenty-one years of age he was called to the bar and entered upon the practice of his profession and in 1846 he was appointed Queen's Counsel. In the meantime, in 1844, he had taken his seat in the Canadian Assembly as member for Kingston, a constituency he represented continuously until 1878. On May 11th, 1847, Sir John became a member of the Draper administration and it is therefore forty-seven years since he first entered Parliament and forty-four years since he took office in the Government. In 1857 Sir John first became Premier upon the retirement of Col. Tache. During the forty-seven years that Sir John served in Parliament he was a member of the Government thirty-one years, and during the twenty-four years since the formation of the Dominion of Canada he was Premier nineteen years.

During the long, eventful, useful and illustrious career Sir John Macdonald performed many very important services for his country. The laws of the Dominion bear the impress of his mind and the Dominion itself, his noblest monument, is largely of his creation. A list of a few of the most important of his measures will give an idea of the length of his public career and of the matters of great importance to the country that he has dealt with. Among those measures were the secularization of the clergy reserves; the improvement of the criminal laws; the promotion of public instruction; the consolidation of the statutes; the extension of the municipal system; the re-organization of the militia; the settlement of the seat of Government question; the establishment of direct steam mail communication with Europe; the establishment of additional penitentiaries, criminal lunatic asylums and reformatory prisons, and providing for the inspection thereof; the providing for the internal economy of the House of Commons; the re-organization of the civil service on a permanent basis; the construction of the Intercolonial railway; the enlargement of the canals; the enactment of a stringent election law; the ratification of the Washington treaty; the confederation of the provinces; the extension and consolidation of the Dominion; the National Policy; the building of the Canadian Pacific railway, &c.

Sir John took a leading part in the confederation of the provinces. He was a delegate to the Charlottetown Conference in 1864, and later in the same year to the Quebec Conference, when the basis of the union was arranged. He was chairman of the London Colonial Conference when the British North America Act, forming the Dominion, was passed in the Imperial Parliament, and was the first Premier of the new Dominion. "The father of his country" Sir John was, and he lived to see it grow, develop and strengthen, and to take a chief share in the work of progress.

Many honors were conferred upon the dead statesman. Queen's University, Kingston, McGill University, Montreal, and Toronto University conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. In 1865 he received the degree of D.C.L. from Oxford University. In 1867 he was created, by the Queen, a K.C.B., and in 1884 a G.C.B. In August, 1879, he was sworn in a member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council (Imperial), a position to which he had been nominated in 1872. He was created a Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Order of Isabel la Catolica (of Spain) in 1872. But the honor he most prized was the confidence of the people of Canada, which he received to such a marked degree.

Regarding Sir John's life and services to Canada the verdict will be rendered by history. Yet the verdict of posterity may, in this case, be easily anticipated. The enduring character as well as the importance of much of the work of the veteran who has passed away was such that his fame is written permanently all over the country as well as upon its statute books, and the country itself stands a monument of his genius and his labors. Men have pulled down nations; few have created them. Sir John did not lead a conquering army and his footsteps were not stained with blood, but he reared a nation where none stood before, and out of scattered elements built up a country that has made for itself a name and that has before it a bright future if it remains true to itself.

Of the character of the dead statesman there is no need to speak in Canada. His strong mind, his clear intellect, his engaging manners, his quality of attracting men to him, and his ability to lead a great party and to serve his country in the leadership, have endeared him to the people of Canada, whose favorite son as well as greatest statesman he was. In politics Sir John's guiding principle was the consolidation of the Dominion, in other words national unity, and firm adherence to the British Empire. His clear mind saw that, in scattered provinces, British North America would be lost, but that in the Dominion of Canada unity would give strength, permanency and progress, and his energies were bent towards bringing the union about. Since then he has labored, and labored successfully, to consolidate the Dominion, that all the benefits of the union might accrue to its people. The fatal stroke came while he was actively serving his country and his great career, which was that of a statesman who truly loved and faithfully served his country, closed in brightness.

Sir John Macdonald will be deeply and long mourned in Canada. The people recognized many years ago his abilities and his patriotism, and with deep sorrow they will commit the aged statesman to his last but honored resting place.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The Occupants of the City Pulpits at the Sunday Services—Other Notes.

Yesterday was children's day at St. Paul's church and special services were held for the Sunday school children. In the morning Rev. E. F. Torrance, the pastor, preached a special and appropriate sermon to the little ones, a discourse, however, which, while filled with lessons for the children, also had truths for the older ones. His text was taken from II Kings, v, 2, the chief figure in the basis of the sermon being the little captive maid who was brought out of Israel and served with Naaman. In the afternoon an interesting children's service was held in the church.

Rev. E. Cragg preached at the George-st. and Rev. H. W. Manning, brother of Rev Thos. Manning, a former pastor, was in the pulpit at the Charlotte-st. Methodist church yesterday morning and evening. Rev. Messrs. Locke and Shorey are absent at Conference.

Rev. Mr. Henderson, of Charlotte, N Y who is visiting at Dr. Caldwell's, preached at St. Paul's church last evening and delivered a vigorous, practical discourse.

The annual picnic of the congregation of St. Peter's cathedral will be held as usual at St. Leonard's in Ashburnham, on the first of July, Dominion Day. The ladies and gentlemen of the congregation have organized and a picnic which will surpass all past efforts is assured. The most complete arrangements for the entertainment and regalement of those who attend will be made and a grand day's outing is expected.

A meeting of the Endeavor Union will be held in the Sunday school room of St. Paul's church this evening, when Rev. Dr. Moffat, of Toronto, will deliver an address.

The young men's rally on Saturday evening was well attended. Mr. Arthur Jolly's earnest and helpful address carried conviction to all present. Many took part heartily in the service and much blessing followed in the after meeting.

The consecration meeting on Sabbath morning was well attended and much interest was manifested in the study of God's word, led by Mr. Albert Hamilton.

The open air service was held in Central Park at 4 15 on Sabbath afternoon. It was so encouraging to see the large crowd assembled listening to the Gospel message from Mr. W. D. Smart with attention and reverence. The singing was hearty, being acceptably led by the Y.M.C.A. band.

The Gospel and song service last evening was addressed by Mr. M. Cummings, whose original and impressive address made a marked impression on the large audience present. To God be the glory.

A Pertinent Question.

"What is home without wall paper," asks a local dealer. Home may have paper on the walls and carpet on the floor and patent, corrugated, anti-friction shingles and cupola chimney, but if it lacks Hawley's teas in the pantry, then indeed is home bereft of a source of joy and satisfaction. Every complete household has Hawley's teas. Try them. d131

To Discuss School Accommodation.

A union meeting of the Board of Education and Town Council is to be held to-morrow evening for the purpose of discussing school accommodation. The question of a new Collegiate Institute or addition and improvements in the present building will be the point of consideration.

Boys take Warning.

Three young lads were in the Police Court this morning charged with disorderly conduct in the Court House Park during the band concert on Friday night. Boys must behave themselves if they attend these concerts and not injure the park. The Magistrate this morning fined the lads $5, and said the next caught in similar conduct would go to the Reformatory.

The vocal organs are strengthened by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Clergymen, lawyers, singers, actors, and public speakers find this preparation the most effective remedy for irritation and weakness of the throat and lungs, and for all affections of the vocal organs.

A Soldiers' Outing.

Capt. Johnston gave his company of the 46th an outing at Jubilee Point on Friday and a very pleasant day was enjoyed by the soldiers, their wives, children and friends. Some few boarded the steamer at the wharf here, but the major portion of the excursionists were taken on at Hale's bridge. The men of the company are principally residents of Cavan and appreciate their captain's hospitality.

Telephone Matters.

The local agent of the Bell Telephone has received a car load of wire which has been delayed in reaching here for some time. This will allow of a lot more phones being connected up at once and added to the already large list. The staff putting up the new metallic copper line between Toronto and Peterborough reached Millbrook this week. A staff are working this way from Toronto. When completed the new line will be a great convenience for telephoning to Toronto and points west.

Regimental Notes.

There is a march out to-morrow night with the band in drill order.

Some of the officers will go to the Capital this week and make arrangements for the trip on the 1st. The Royal Scots of Montreal are drilling hard and will be sure to look well with their kilts and pipes.

The Guards are also turning out in large numbers weekly.

The 57th must be careful to make a name for itself at headquarters as it won't have another opportunity for some years.

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how clear and thick it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1.

Scavengers take Warning.

County Magistrate Edmison had two sanitary cases before him this morning. Mr. John Bell, of North Monaghan, was charged with harboring a nuisance by allowing night soil to be dumped upon his premises without properly covering it. Mr. Geo. Stevens, a scavenger, was charged with conveying night soil along a public highway without having it covered or deodorized. Mr. John Burnham, Q.C., defended Mr. Bell, and Mr. E. B. Stone defended Mr. Stevens. They were both convicted, but were allowed to go on payment of costs, both being new charges. Others prosecuted for a similar offence will not escape so lightly.

WENT INTO THE WHIRLPOOL.

Frank Gilman Falls into the Otonabee and is Drowned.

The Otonabee river claimed another victim this morning, when a sad drowning accident occurred just below Rogers' dam, which is the first above the Ashburnham bridge.

Frank, the six-year-old son of Mr. John Gilman, who is employed in W. H. Mulhern's mill, was the victim who went down to the watery grave. The little fellow with another younger companion was playing on the crib work just below the dam, and were amusing themselves by throwing stones into the rushing torrent beneath, the river at this point being a madly boiling whirlpool from the fall of water over the dam. The lad went too near the edge of the crib work, and in throwing a stone lost his balance and went over. His little companion, frightened at what he saw, ran to the nearest house and gave the alarm. Men from the mill at once went to the place where the boy had gone in, but nothing was to be seen. Grappling irons were secured and the search for the body commenced, after the stop-logs had been taken out of the dam.

The search for the body was continued all morning and afternoon, but the body of the unfortunate boy had not been recovered at the time of going to press.

A MINISTER'S DUTY.

In St. Andrew's church yesterday morning the new pastor, Rev. A. MacWilliams, delivered his first sermon to the congregation after being placed in charge of the pastorate. Mr. MacWilliams is a young man, with a good delivery in preaching, and with an earnestness and devotion to duty that is impressive. His first discourse was on the minister's duty and the relations between the minister and the people. His text was taken from Jonah iii. 1-2:—"And the word of the Lord came unto Jonah the second time, saying, Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee." Nineveh, the preacher said, was a great city and a very wicked one. He had not, however, chosen this text because Peterborough was more wicked than other places, but because it indicated in some degree his position in coming here and what little he had to say would be introductory to what would follow. He referred to the history of Jonah as recorded in the book from which the text was taken. There were four points in the text to which he wished to call their attention. The first was that every true minister of God was called of God and not of man. This always had been true, from the time that the first church was established at the time of Adam. In the primitive days the heads of the families were the ministers, as they read of Abel, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Noah and others offering up sacrifices. He had no doubt that God gave them the commands to be the ministers. From the time of Moses down all was clear, and the ministers were clearly called of God. If God had a special message to deliver He chose a prophet and gave him the message. In the New Testament they saw that the ministers were called of God, for the church was still the same. To change the ritual did not change the church. John the Baptist was chosen, Christ Himself was chosen by the Father, and Christ chose the apostles. When Christ ascended he commissioned the disciples to preach to or disciple all nations. To-day God did not speak by an audible voice or by visions, but gave the call by the Divine Spirit in the soul. As the one chosen to be their pastor he desired to say that if he was not called of the Spirit he was not their minister, but he believed that God had called him. It was also seen by the text that God called a minister to a special work, and unless the minister filled the place to which he was called his work would be a failure. If God pointed him to a place of work, it was his duty to go and God would take care of the results. It was not so easy now to tell what God's will was as in Scripture times. They should, however, be guided by the necessities of the case, the minister's capacity, the unanimity of the call extended from the church, and by the Divine Spirit. He wished to tell them that if he found any selfish reasons had influenced him, and if the results of his ministry showed that he was not in his place, he would not be long with them. Again they saw that God gave the minister the message he was to deliver. God gave Christ His message, Christ gave the apostles their message and when He left He sent the Comforter to call all things to their remembrance. It was his (the preacher's) duty to interpret faithfully the Word of God. Woe was proclaimed against him who should take from or add to the word of God. That might be done by denying that it was the word of God, and he might do so in spirit by refusing to preach some part of it. He intended to preach the whole word, for he was responsible to God, and he asked that no one should ask him to preach or not to preach in any particular part. This forbade him to deal with politics or science, as politics or science, in the pulpit, but the minister was a citizen and had the rights of a citizen. At the same time he would preach against immorality, in politics or elsewhere, for there was no license for sin. It was his duty to preach the whole Word, and he would endeavor to do so. An understanding at the outset of these things might avoid misunderstandings hereafter. Jonah was punished when he did not deliver the message, and so would he (the preacher) be punished if he did not deliver God's message. This being so, and realizing his solemn position, would they wonder that he preached the whole Word whether it should please or not? If this was his place, they might expect the blessing of God to rest upon them. He asked them to be charitable. As a young man he would no doubt make mistakes, but he asked them to be charitable and bring them to himself. He especially asked them to remember him at the throne of Grace that many souls might be saved in this church, and by and bye they would worship together in Heaven.

Cheap Wall Paper.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, of the Peterborough Bookstore, has leased the adjoining premises now being vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson which will be occupied by the fancy goods and wall paper department of his business. In order to facilitate removal the stock of over [illegible] rolls of wall paper must be reduced, and for the next thirty days a great sacrifice sale of wall paper will be held at the Peterborough Bookstore. The stock comprises over [illegible] rolls of wall paper, of all qualities and of the very latest designs, which should be cleared out before the change takes place. A fine lot of good papers and a variety of job ends are in the stock, and will be sold at astonishingly low prices. This great sale of wall paper will continue for thirty days and those requiring wall paper within the next thirty days will find it to their advantage to call at the Peterborough Bookstore. 5d126 1w22

THE SAD NEWS IN TOWN.

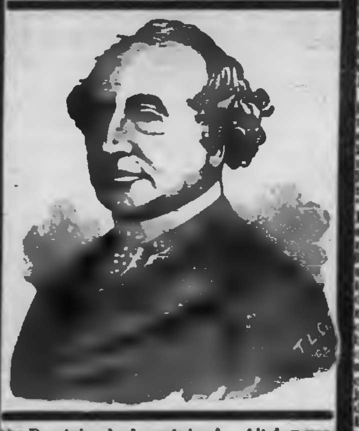
Signs of Mourning and Flags at Half Mast—Universal Regret at the Loss Sustained—In the Churches.

"Sir John Macdonald has just died" was the message that was received here from Ottawa at about 10.25 o'clock on Saturday evening conveying the sad intelligence of the death of Canada's First Minister, an event which the people of Peterborough, in company with the people of the whole Dominion, had been hoping against hope would be averted. After the veteran Premier with the most remarkable vitality had defied the icy hand for six days, many were of the opinion that he would yet come out victorious in his uneven struggle. But these hopes were sadly crushed by the above message when it was received.

At the time when it was flashed over the wire the streets were beginning to be depopulated and the majority of the citizens had gone home to prepare for Sabbath. The sorrowful news, therefore, of Canada's great bereavement was not widely known until Sunday morning. When the news arrived the REVIEW sent out an extra which told the church-goers in the morning that the end had come and the long, illustrious career had closed. Everyone had but the one exclamation when he heard the sorrowful message, and that was one of deep regret and sorrow at the loss which all felt the Dominion had sustained. All day yesterday a feeling of sadness and gloom overhung the town, while flags were flying at half mast. To a few who had been in Parliament under the departed Premier the news was specially sad, for they felt the loss of an honored leader and personal friend as well as a renowned statesman and wise First Minister of the Crown.



In the Churches.

In nearly all the churches the sad bereavement was referred to by the preachers, although in the morning some of the occupants of the pulpits had not heard the sad news.

At St. John's the announcement was made in the morning and the congregation left the church with a spirit of subdued sadness. On the Sunday evening previous Rev. J. C. Davidson, the rector, had delivered an able discourse on the life of the Premier, so that the mere announcement was all that was necessary to his people. In the evening as the congregation left the church the organ impressively pealed forth the solemn notes of the Dead March in Saul, being appropriate to the universal mourning which covered Peterborough as a town and Canada as a Dominion.

At St. Paul's Church Rev. E. F. Torrance made a most beautiful reference to the sad event in an impressive prayer. He asked the Divine Ruler of the universe to fill the successor to the Premiership with a spirit of wisdom and righteousness and prayed God to comfort the widow and children.

At St. Andrew's Rev. A. MacWilliams made a reference to the dead Premier, although he was ignorant of his demise. He prayed that if the end did come (and it had) that God in His wisdom would raise up a man to take the departed's place in the Council of the nation and that comfort be given Lady Macdonald and the bereaved children in their hour of bereavement.

Rev. E. Cragg, who filled the pulpit at the George-st. church, at the close of his sermon in the morning stated that he had received a notice of the death of Sir John A Macdonald and understood that he was expected to announce the same to the congregation. It was well, he said, to give the departed his due. He was a great man and one who had all the attributes of greatness in his personality. For years he had received the wide admiration of the multitude and had been a public figure in the Council walls of the Dominion. It was a solemn thing to die and all men should be prepared. Whatever differences of opinion might exist as to his career and purposes death ends all. His destiny was now fixed for all eternity. To a large degree he possessed that quality of personal magnetism that drew men towards him. Some men possessed this largely, in others it was lacking. It was a part of his mental constitution that he had a remarkable memory for faces and a personal recollection of thousands of people in all walks of life. In losing him Canada loses a statesman and a friend. In the evening the congregation dispersed to the mournful notes of the Dead March in Saul.

At the Charlotte-st. Methodist church, Rev. H. M. Manning, who was preaching, was also unaware that the end had come, but he prayed anticipating such a calamity. He asked for Divine comfort for the bereaved wife and children in a very impressive and beautiful prayer.

In Other Circles.

To-day on the streets the national calamity is the one subject of the subdued conversations and discussions. Those who have fought hard in political campaigns that are past in an unsuccessful endeavor to oust the Old Man and his policy had the same expression of regret as those who had during a life long upheld the principles of the Premier.

A special meeting of the Town Council is called for this evening for the purpose of taking steps in regard to Peterborough's expression at this sad hour. It will be a sorrowful session, for His Worship the Mayor feels keenly the loss of him who was a dear personal friend.

It is probable that arrangements will be made for a special train to Kingston on Thursday next to all those desirous of attending the funeral of Canada's first Canadian.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WEST PETERBOROUGH INSTITUTE.

The Reports of the Secretary and Treasurer—A Good Balance in Hand—The Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Farmers' Institute of West Peterborough was held in the Town Council Chamber on Saturday afternoon. Mr. D. Kennedy, President, was in the chair.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Mr. J. A. Davidson, Secretary, read his annual report as follows:—

To the President, Directors and Members:

GENTLEMEN,—In presenting the fourth annual report of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute for the year ending 30th June, 1891, I sincerely regret to have to call your attention to the fact that one has passed away from our midst who always took an active part in the Institute work and Agricultural Society for the promotion and welfare of the agriculture community in the person of Mr. Hugh Davidson, who was Vice-President of our Institute at the time of his death.

I have sent to the Department of Agriculture a concise and accurate report of those who addressed and prepared papers to be read at our meetings.

Our first meeting was held at the Court House, Peterborough, Jan. 11th and 12th, the subjects discussed were "Dairying" and "Milk, its Composition and Production," by Prof. Dean; "Clover" and "The Beef Ring," by Mr. Fraser; "The Orchard," and "Pruning, Why, When and How," by Mr. P. C. Dempsey; also a paper on "Sheep Raising" by Mr. John Stothart, and market fees was introduced by Mr. Dawson Kennedy. A committee was appointed to wait upon the Town Council on market fees, but as yet they have not made any report. This proved to be a very interesting meeting and valuable information was received, the outcome of which was the formation of the Peterborough Fruit Growers' Association.

At a meeting of the Directors held at the Morgan House on Jan. 24th, it was decided to send two delegates to the beet root sugar convention held at Cobourg on the 28th. It was also decided to hold the next meeting of the Institute at Lakefield on March 24th. At this meeting the subjects taken for discussion were as follows:—"Beet Root Sugar Industry," by D. Kennedy. Two resolutions were passed asking aid from the Provincial and Dominion Governments to establish factories for the manufacture of beet root sugar as it would be a great benefit to those engaged in agriculture and also an important addition to the industries of the country. On motion forty pounds of beet seed were ordered and distributed among the members of the Institute, also 25 lbs. more, all of which has been distributed. The seed was sent free by the Minister of Agriculture (Hon. John Dryden) Other subjects then taken up were "Milk Production," by Mr. G. W. Mann, "Fruit and House Plants," by Mr. John Craig, Horticulturist of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, "Soils and Plant Food" and "Chemistry of Foods," by Mr. F. J. Shutt, Chemist of the O. E. Farm, and "Ranching in this Country," by Mr. Geo. Hilliard. We had an evening session, the Reeve, Mr. W. H. Casement, took the chair. The evening was very pleasantly spent, songs and instrumental music mingling with addresses from Mr. J. I. Hobson, Chairman of the O.A.C., on "the Education of the Farmers' sons and Daughters;" by Mr. John Shutt on "Chemistry of Foods," by Mr. John Craig on "House Plants," and also a speech from Mr. Charles Fairbairn, M.P. for South Victoria. This was a decided improvement on our Institute meetings and I hope it will be continued in future.

Our membership for the year is 61. I would like to see more of the farmers become members as "union is strength and knowledge is power." The membership fee is only 25 cents and this entitles members to the College bulletins. At a directors meeting it was decided to hold the annual meeting on June 6th and our annual union picnic on June 11th at Jubilee Point. I hope every farmer and his family will avail themselves of this opportunity for enjoyment, as we intend to make it a success. There will be present with us [illegible] Prof. Shaw, of O.A.C., Prof. Fletcher, of C.E.F., Mr. Nicholas Awrey, M.P.P., President Central Farmers' Institute, and our local members of Parliament. The Hon John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, has promised to be with us if he does not leave for the old country before that time.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN A. DAVIDSON,
Secretary.

THE FINANCES.

Mr. John Stothart, the Treasurer, presented his annual statement, which showed that the Institute had a balance on hand of $63.24.

The reports were received and adopted.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, the following gentlemen being elected:—

PRESIDENT.—Dawson Kennedy.
VICE PRESIDENT.—H. C. Garbutt.
SECRETARY.—John A. Davidson.
TREASURER.—John Stothart.

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. Pamphlet free. If you are thus afflicted, we will send you a Belt and Appliances on a trial.

Personal.

Mr. Aldus Mowry, who has been living at Pomona, Los Angeles County, California, for some time, returned to town on Saturday.

Mrs. J. T. Emmerson, of Port Arthur, is in town on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wells.

His friends will be glad to learn that there is an improvement in the condition of Mr. H. Calcutt, who was suddenly taken ill on Friday evening.

Youthful Blasphemers.

Seven small boys were charged with disorderly conduct at the South Ward school, at the Police Court this morning. It appears that a crowd of lads have been in the habit of congregating at this corner and making a disturbance by swearing and other rowdyism. The Magistrate fined five of them one dollar each, with the hope that the parents would take the dollar's worth out of their children.

Sudden Changes.

A cold, or exposure, may cause the poisonous acids in the blood to clog its circulation. This is Rheumatism. Clark's Lightning Liniment will stop the pain at once. It should be taken both internally and externally if the attack is severe, and it affords instant relief. If the pain appears again, it should be met with the same treatment, until a cure is effected. This wonderful preparation has worked some remarkable cures among Rheumatic sufferers. Where once tried, it is always used after. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

NOTICE!

ALL accounts due the business of late Wm. Denoon, butcher, must be settled by [illegible] July next. After that date accounts not arranged for will be placed in legal hands for collection.

All accounts against the business should be sent in at once, for settlement, to Mr. John Denoon.

The business will be carried on at the old stand, corner of George and London-sts. Fresh and good meats supplied. Best service and low prices.

BURGLARS AT IDA.

Safe Blown Open and $250 Taken and Papers Destroyed.

By Telegraph to the Review.

OMEMEE, Ont., June 7.—Burglars broke into Wm. Lough's store at Ida P. O. last night and blew open the safe and took $250 in cash, besides a lot of goods, and destroyed a lot of notes and other valuable papers. This is the third time this store has been burglarized. The neighbors across the street heard the report and notified Mr. Lough, but the burglars escaped. There is no clue yet.

Brevities.

—The Court of Revision meets this evening.

—The Workingmen's Building and Savings Society will meet to-night in Mayor Stevenson's office at 7 o'clock.

—The inquest to inquire into the death of the English gentleman, Ed. J. R. Hopkins, will be resumed at the Police Court room this evening.

—A sample of wheat, from Mr. Wm Brealey's farm in Otonabee, was left at the REVIEW office to-day in which the heads were well shot out.

SIGN OF THE BIG [illegible]

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla — the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

SIR JOHN AT REST!

All England Mourns.

LONDON, June 6.—Much has been said in the House of Commons and elsewhere about Sir John Macdonald. There is a general feeling among Englishmen of all parties that his death may prove a disaster for Canada, and a disaster from the English point of view They recognise, at any rate, his great services. The leaders of both parties have spoken of him in a tone never used here except about a man whose importance is felt to be imperial. He is regarded as the creator of the Dominion of Canada, and the man who has done more than all others to keep that great colony loyal to the Crown. Be the merits or demerits of his domestic policy what they may, English gratitude to him is profound, and the Queen's messages of enquiry and regret express, as they so often do, the sentiments of her people.

LONDON, June 7.—All the newspapers speak in eulogistic terms of the late Sir John Macdonald and they express the deepest regret at his death. The Daily News says: His death is a loss to the whole Empire. If he was not exactly a great man he did great things. He contrived to postpone some of the most searching questions of colonial policy. Therefore his death is likely to produce far-reaching changes.

THE CHURCHES OF OTTAWA.

Affecting References Made from the Various Pulpits.

OTTAWA, June 7.—At nearly every church in the city today affecting references were made from the pulpits to the death of the veteran statesman.

At St. Alban's Church, the church which the [illegible] touching reference was made [illegible] statesman. Rev. J. J. Bogart, the rector, was visibly affected during the course of his remarks. The sermon was an exhortation to good works, which the preacher said was a seasonable thought in view of the recent event which had shaken the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and roused grief from one end of the British Empire to the other, from the Queen down to the lowest subject. All who were interested in the welfare of the Empire admired the true greatness of him who had recently passed away. From lip to lip throughout the length and breadth of the land the question asked was, How can he be spared? Why was he taken away at this critical time? The answer to this was that God had given him work to do—a good work—how great a work those who knew this country 37 years ago would realise. Yes, God gave him a work to do. The time had been set and that work had been done.

Yes, God gave him a work to do and may it not be added he did it well. How well he did his work as a statesman would be proven by the future, and there were others better able to speak of it. While he would not speak of the departed as a politician, nor as a citizen, it might not be out of place to speak of him as a churchman. His regularity in attendance at God's house, notwithstanding the cares of state and his many onerous duties, his earnest devotion and reverent demeanor when engaged in worship of God, more especially in celebration of the holy eucharist, his humble attention to the message delivered by God's ambassador, all show the love he entertained for God's service, which he also exhibited by receiving thankfully that which small minds so avail and sneer at. The gentle pressure he gave the hand of the priest when placed in his and his fervent declaration of trust in the One Great High Priest spoke of his hopes for the life to come. This was a time when we should banish unworthy anxieties for the future welfare of this Dominion, for the same God who raised up Moses for his work and Joshua for his work had His hand as free as ever to help this people. If his voice could reach four corners of this great Dominion he would say, "God grant that he who may be called upon to preside over the councils of the Dominion may faithfully do it to the glory of God and the welfare of the nation."

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

There were large congregations both morning and evening at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where pulpit references were made to the Premier's death by Rev. W. T. Herridge, one of the most eloquent and popular preachers in the city. There was a communion service in the morning, and it was in the prayers only that the pastor referred to the event. In the evening he preached on the themes death and the resurrection, and at the close of an eloquent discourse he said: "These reflections have an especial appropriateness when our thoughts are turning, as I know they must be, towards that home by the river, where a form long familiar amongst us lies cold and still. Ever since he was stricken down the people of this Dominion and thousands far beyond its borders have been eagerly watching the last struggle of one who for many years has been the most prominent figure in the public life of our country. Now that all is over a whole nation weeps with the bereaved widow and the fatherless children at the bedside of the beloved and honored chieftain. In the presence of death all rivalries are forgotten, and those who in his lifetime conscientiously opposed him vie with his most ardent followers in their sorrow over a common loss. Let us be glad of this. Let us be glad that ever so melancholy an event helps us to see the wide distinction between political divergences, and personal enmity gives pause for a time to the rancour of public life and hushes its wild tumults into peace. This is not the place for elaborate eulogy, and he whose loss we mourn to-day would not have wished it. Yet, assembled as we are in the house of God, we may at least give him his due. Those who knew him best will agree in saying that nowhere did his kindly nature show itself more beautifully than amid the intimate companionships of home. In the stress of the most exacting public duties he found time to cultivate the graces of private life, and much as he will be missed elsewhere he will be missed most of all by the faithful wife who gave to him the untiring ministry of love, and the children who solaced the flickering consciousness of his last hours on earth. It was to be expected that during the course of his long career he should make some enemies. He was not infallible. Few will wish to say that he alone of all men never committed a mistake. But whatever difference of opinion exists in regard to his policy as a statesman, and in this particular his political opponents must be credited with the same integrity of purpose which his friends would demand for him, no one will deny that so far from using his high place as a vantage ground for his own circumstances he threw every energy of heart and mind into the service of his beloved country, and endeavored to the best of his judgment to work for his country's good. United by nature with a wonderful power of personal magnetism, a keen knowledge of men, a fertility of varied resources, a firm grasp of public issues and the commanding intellect of genius this country has never possessed a man who stamped his individuality more strongly upon it, or held a higher place in the affections of all classes among its people. He has gone from us, but not until there had been given him a long opportunity to work for the land he loved so well, not until our scattered provinces had been united into one harmonious confederation, not until the wish of his life had been realized in the strengthening of the bonds of national unity and the growing renown of this our great Dominion. He has gone from us but his works follow him, and when in the calm light of after years the historian of Canada looks back upon what in the providence of God he was enabled to accomplish his name will be handed down to the fragrant remembrance of future generations as that of a man who devoted his splendid powers to the task of building up the resources of his country and giving it a place of honor in the eyes of the world. In this crisis of public affairs there is a loud call to Christian patriotism, and I have faith enough to prophesy that the call will not be heard in vain. Never before has there been greater need of putting aside all selfish ambition, all political and religious prejudice and joining hearts and hands together for the sake of the common weal. It is inevitable that different opinions should exist in regard to the future of Canada and the best means of securing its prosperity. But if we are true to the deepest instincts of our nature, true to the stirring memories of our early days of chivalry, true to the magnificent opportunities which Canadian citizenship brings to us we need not fear but He, the living God, who has guided our land through many an hour of peril, will still lead us onward towards the Canaan of abundant reward. Valuable as has been the life just closed and absolutely unique in its influence upon the councils of the state the loss we have sustained so far from plunging us into despair or forming a pretext for pessimistic dirges ought rather to inspire us everyone to a fuller trust in God and a more ardent effort to serve our generation according to His will.

HOW PEOPLE DISGUISE THEMSELVES.

Most of us hide behind disguises.

Some do it innocently, from shyness. They shrink from standing in naked personality before the world. So they cloak themselves in mannerisms. Usually there are lonely souls which brood over themselves. Thus in isolated farm-houses, whither the poets send us for the simplicities of nature, one is likely to find more affectations and tricks of manner than in our city dwellings.

The affectation of a quality, of an accomplishment, is a covert roguery. The overt rogue picks your pocket in his game of hide-and-seek with society. But the man who would win your esteem, admiration, affection, confidence, by appearing to be what he is not, is a rogue so subtile that he often ends in deceiving himself.

There is the sweet infantile creature who simpers and writhes, and drops her chin to look up from under her lashes, and uses all manner of guile to show you how guileless she is. There is the strong-minded woman who talks in chest tones, is always positive, and holds advanced opinions on all points—borrowed opinions, since the strength of her mind is not in the direction of originating any. There are the ignorant people who affect culture.

This sort of dishonesty gulls only the dullard. Such affectations are open advertisements of poverty, since no one affects what he possesses.—Harper's Bazar.

Plunged Down a 170-foot Shaft to Death.

RICHMOND, Que., June 5.—At the New Rockland slate quarry this morning a boy named Willie Owens, 15 years of age, while engaged in carting gravel off the top of the pit lost control of his horse, which backed up, the boy becoming entangled in the reins. Before the horse could be brought to a standstill, the cart and horse slid into the pit, dragging the boy down with them and were dashed to pieces at the bottom, 170 feet below.

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising the in widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realise results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighborhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable, and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them as they please everybody as to quality and price.

THE DEAD PREMIER.

Eloquent Tribute to Sir John's Memory

IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The Hon. Wilfred Laurier's Graceful Words.

Parliament Adjourns for a Week After a Short Debate—All Arrangements Completed for the State Funeral—Program of the Procession—One of the Most Gorgeous Pageants of Modern Times.

OTTAWA, June 8.—The chamber of the Commons was appropriately draped. Sir John's vacant chair was covered with black and on his desk was a wreath of white flowers with the words "Our Chief" when the House assembled this afternoon. The galleries were packed, five of the tiers being occupied by ladies, most of them in dark colors. The members were all in their places, many of them wearing black coats and hats. All the pages wore crape on their arms and nearly everybody in Ottawa is wearing a funeral badge with a small photo of the dead leader attached.

Sir Hector Langevin, as Sir John's oldest colleague, was the first to rise. He spoke from manuscript in a voice that frequently gave way in his emotion.

Mr. Laurier's tribute was quietly eloquent, full of the kindest expressions toward Sir John and eulogistic of him in the highest terms as a statesman.

Eloquent Tributes to the Dead.

Mr. Speaker: I desire to inform the House that in view of the fact that the Right Hon. leader of this House died so late on Saturday night and it was impossible to communicate with hon. members earlier than the present, I thought it was only a fitting tribute to a gentleman who had occupied so prominent a position both in parliament and in the councils of the country for so long a time that we should exhibit some sign of mourning in this House to-day, and I took the responsibility of ordering that the symbols of mourning which are shown here today should be put up this morning, and I venture to express the hope that the honorable members on both sides of the House, irrespective altogether of politics, will sustain me in the action I have taken. [Hear, hear.]

Sir Hector Langevin: Mr. Speaker, having to announce to the House the sad event that has been known for two days, I was afraid I could not trust to my memory, and I therefore thought it desirable to place in writing what I wish to say. Accordingly, I will now read the observations I desire to offer.

Mr. Speaker, as the oldest Privy Councillor, it falls to my lot to announce to the House that our dear old chief, the First Minister of Canada, is no more. After a painful illness of two weeks death put an end to his earthly career on Saturday last. To tell you, Mr. Speaker, my feelings under the circumstances is more than I can do. I feel that by the death of Sir John Macdonald Canada has lost its greatest statesman, a great patriot, a man of whom any country in the world would be justly proud. Her Majesty our gracious Queen never had a more devoted and loyal subject than the grand old man whose loss we all deplore and regret from the bottom of our hearts. For nearly fifty years he has directed the public affairs of this country. He was, among the fathers of Confederation, the most prominent and distinguished. He put his whole soul into that great undertaking, knowing full well that the confederation of all the British North American provinces would give to our people a country and institutions to be proud of and to the Empire not only a right arm but a great and safe highway to her Indian and other possessions. He told me more than once how grateful he was to the people of Canada to have allowed him to have consummated that great work. The fact is his love for Canada was equal to that he had for his own Mother Country. Mr. Speaker, when the historians of Canada write the history of the last 50 years they will have to write the life of Sir John Macdonald, and in writing his life they may not agree with all his public acts, but they cannot fail to say that he was a great man, a most distinguished statesman and that his whole life was spent in the service of his country, dying in the midst of his official duties, not having a day's rest before he passed to a better world. I need not express, Mr. Speaker, my own personal feelings. Having spent half of my life with him as his follower and his friend his departure is the same as if I lost half of my existence. I remember how devoted he was not only to the old province of Canada, but how chivalrous he showed himself to the Province of Quebec and especially to my French-Canadian countrymen. He had only a word to say, and instead of being at the head of a small band of 17 Upper Canada members, he would have all the representatives of his province behind him, but as he told me several times he preferred to be just to his French compatriots and allies, and the result was that when Confederation came the Province of Quebec had confidence in him, and on his death-bed our great chief could see that his just policy has secured peace and happiness to all.

Mr. Speaker, I would have wished to continue to speak of our dear departed friend and have spoken to you about his goodness of heart, the witness of which I have been so often, but I feel that I must stop. My heart is full of tears. I cannot proceed further. I move that in the opinion of this House the mortal remains of the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, G.C.B., should be publicly interred, and that this House will concur in giving to the ceremony a fitting degree of solemnity and importance.

Mr. Laurier's Noble Tribute.

Mr. Speaker: I fully appreciate the motion which the honorable gentleman has just proposed to the House, and we all concur that his silence, under the circumstances, is far more eloquent than any human language can be. I fully appreciate the intensity of the grief which fills the soul of all those who were the friends and followers of Sir John A. Macdonald at the loss of the great leader, whose whole life has been so closely identified with their party—a party upon which he has thrown such brilliancy and lustre. We, on this side of the House who were his opponents, who did not believe in his policy, nor in his methods of government—we take our full share of their grief, for the loss which they deplore to-day is far and away beyond and above the ordinary compass of party strife. It is in every respect a great national loss, for he is no more who was in many respects Canada's most illustrious son, and who was in every sense Canada's foremost citizen and statesman. At the period of life to which Sir John A. Macdonald had arrived, death whenever it comes cannot come unexpected. Some few months ago, during the turmoil of the late election, when the country was made aware that on a certain day the physical strength of the veteran premier had not been equal to his courage and that his intense labor for the time being had prostrated his singularly wiry frame, everybody with the exception perhaps of his buoyant self was painfully anxious lest perhaps the Angel of Death had touched him with his wings. When a few days ago in the midst of an angry discussion in this parliament the news spread in this House that of a sudden his condition had become alarming the surging wave of angry discussion was at once hushed and everyone, friend and foe, realized that this time for a certainty the Angel of Death had appeared and had crossed the threshold of his home. Thus we were not taken by surprise, and although we were prepared for the sad event, yet it is almost impossible to convince the unwilling mind that it is true that Sir John Macdonald is no more—that the chair which we now see vacant shall remain forever vacant, that the face so familiar in this Parliament for the last forty years shall be seen no more, and that the voice so well known shall be heard no more, whether in solemn debate or in pleasant and mirthful tones.

His Loss Overwhelming.

In fact, the place of Sir John A. Macdonald in this country was so large and so absorbing that it is almost impossible to conceive that the politics of this country, the fate of this country will continue without him. His loss overwhelms us. For my part I say with all truth his loss overwhelms me and also overwhelms this Parliament, as if indeed one of the institutions of the land had given away. Sir John A. Macdonald now belongs to the ages, and it can be said with certainty that the career which has just been closed is one of the most remarkable careers of the century. It would be premature at this time to attempt to divine or anticipate what will be the final judgment of history upon him, but there were in his career and in his life features so prominent and so conspicuous that already they shine with a glory which time cannot alter. These characteristics appear before the House at the present time such as they will appear to the end in history. I think it can be asserted that for the supreme art of governing men Sir John Macdonald was gifted as few men in any land or in any age were gifted—gifted with the most high of all qualities, qualities which would have shone in any theatre and which have shone all the more conspicuously the larger the theatre. The fact that he could congregate together elements the most heterogeneous and blend them into one compact party and to the end of his life keep them steadily under his hand is perhaps altogether unprecedented. The fact that during all these years he maintained unimpaired not only the confidence but the devotion and the ardent devotion and affection of his party is evidence that besides these higher qualities of statesmanship to which we were the daily witnesses, he was also endowed with this inner, subtle, indefinable characteristic of soul which wins and keeps the hearts of men. As to his statesmanship it is written in the history of Canada. It may be said without any exaggeration, whatever that the life of Sir John Macdonald from the date he entered Parliament is the history of Canada, for he was connected and associated with all the events, all the facts, with all the developments which brought Canada from the position Canada then occupied—the position of two small provinces, having nothing in common but the common allegiance and united by a bond of paper, and united by nothing else—to the present state of development which Canada has reached. Although my political views compel me to say that in my judgment his actions were not always the best that could have been taken in the interest of Canada, although my conscience compels me to say that of late he has imputed to his opponents motives which I must say in my heart he has misconceived, yet I am only too glad here to sink those differences and to remember only the great services he has performed for his country, to remember that his actions displayed unbounded fertility of resource, a high level of intellectual conception, and, above all, a far-reaching vision beyond the event of the day and still higher permeating the whole a broad patriotism to Canada's welfare, Canada's advancement and Canada's glory. The life of a statesman is always an arduous one and very often it is an ungrateful one. More often than otherwise his actions do not mature until he is in his grave. Not so, however, in the case of Sir John Macdonald. His career has been a singularly fortunate one. His reverses were few and of short duration. He was fond of power, and, in my judgment, if I may say so, that was the turning point of his history. He was fond of power and he never made any secret of it. Many times we have heard him avow it on the floor of this Parliament, and his ambition in this respect was gratified as perhaps no other man's ambition ever was. In my judgment even the career of William Pitt can hardly compare with that of Sir John Macdonald in this respect, for although William Pitt, moving in a higher sphere, had to deal with problems greater than ours, yet I doubt if in the management of a party William Pitt had to contend with difficulties equal to those that Sir John Macdonald had to contend with. In his death, too, he seems to have been singularly happy. Twenty years ago I was told by one, who at that time was a close personal and political friend of Sir John Macdonald, that in the intimacy of his domestic circle he was fond of repeating that his end would be as the end of Lord Chatham, that he would be carried away from the floor of Parliament to die. How true his vision into the future was we now know, for we saw him at the last with enfeebled health and declining strength struggling on the floor of Parliament until, the hand of fate upon him, he was carried to his home to die, and thus to die with his armor on was probably his ambition.

Death and Separation.

Sir, death is the supreme law, although we see it every day in every form, although session after session we have seen it in this Parliament, striking right and left without any discrimination as to age or station, yet the ever recurring spectacle does not in any way remove the bitterness of the sting. Death always carries with it an incredible sea of pain, but the one thing sad in death is that which is involved in the word separation—separation from all we love in life. This is what makes death so poignant when it strikes a man of intellect in middle age. But when death is the natural termination of a full life in which he who has disappeared had given the full measure of his capacity, has performed everything required from him and more the sadness of death is not for him who goes but for those who love him and remain. In this sense I am sure the Canadian people will extend unbounded sympathy to the friends of Sir John Macdonald, to his sorrowing children and above all to the brave and noble woman, his companion in life, his chief helpmeet. Thus, Mr. Speaker, one after another we see those who have been instrumental in bringing Canada to its present state of development removed from amongst us. To-day we deplore the loss of him whom we all unite in saying was the foremost Canadian of his time and who filled the largest place in Canadian history. Only last week was buried in the city of Montreal another son of Canada, one who at one time had been a tower of strength to the Liberal party, one who will ever be remembered as one of the noblest, purest and greatest characters that Canada has ever produced—Sir Antoine Aime Dorion. Sir Antoine Aime Dorion had not been in favor of Confederation. Not that he was opposed to the principle, but he believed that the union of these provinces at that day was premature. When, however, Confederation had become a fact, he gave the best of his mind and heart to make it a success. It may indeed happen, sir, when the Canadian people see the ranks thus gradually reduced and thinned of those upon whom they have been in the habit of relying for guidance that a feeling of apprehension will creep into the heart lest perhaps the institutions of Canada may be imperilled. Before the grave of him who above all was the father of Confederation let not grief be barren grief, but let grief be coupled with the resolution, the determination, that the work in which Liberals and Conservatives, in which Brown and Macdonald united, shall not perish, but that though united Canada may be deprived of the services of her greatest men, yet still Canada shall and will live. I agree to the motion.

The Member For West Assiniboia.

Mr. Davin: I think, sir, it would hardly be becoming, if I may venture to say so, that I should remain silent on this occasion and that no expression should be given of the way the Northwest feels at this supreme hour. For myself it would be hard not to express a sense of grief at such a time as this, because it so happens that for some years I was brought closely into contact with him whom we mourn at this time, and I was able to see into those features of his character which were probably of more value to the world than the great abilities which struck the superficial observer.

Mr. Speaker, the man whom we mourn here to-day was emphatically a great man. When I came to Canada first his friends, misdoubting that they might have formed a provincial conception of Sir John Macdonald, used to come to me and ask how he would compare with the great men in England. I said he could stand up to the greatest of them, and when I knew him intimately and was brought closely in contact with him I became more and more convinced that far from doubting whether he could stand up to the greatest of them, few of them had the varied qualities, the extraordinarily varied and complex qualities that are necessary to make a political leader such as was Sir John Macdonald. Ranging over the field of history and recalling the names of the men who have reached those heights which it takes a lifetime to climb, it is hardly possible to find one who has possessed the varied qualities of the great man who the other day was leading in this House. You may find great power of intellect, great power of statesmanship, far-reaching views, great powers of oratory, but where will you find conjoined with all these that politeness that never fails, that delicate consideration for the feelings of others, that exquisite urbanity that distinguished Sir John Macdonald—that even anon played like light and shade in "le bon tons ironique et la grace qui rit?"

Sir, the measure of his great abilities is the difficulties that he overcame. I remember when I first visited these buildings some 20 years ago a gentleman then occupying one of the highest positions in the Government said to my surprise when I admitted the buildings were grand. "But what an expense, what a waste of money!" Now we find they are hardly equal to their needs, and the fact is these very buildings emphasize the Imperial cast of mind of the great mind who is gone. I remember on the first time I had a conversation with him some seventeen or eighteen years ago, he drew a sketch of the British possessions confederated together, and then in his own emphatic way he said that is the time when I should like to lead.

In truth he was not only a Canadian statesman but an Imperial statesman, the brightest gem in the British crown was polished and set by his hand. I have read somewhere of a child who planted a tree which ultimately shaded his old age and with dews of evening watered his grave. Sir John Macdonald was in that position because he found Canada a pretty province and he leaves it something like an Empire. At this moment a nation of more importance than the nation over which Elizabeth ruled weeps the loss of a statesman who helped to build it up. As I have said it does seem to me that the qualities which were most extraordinary in that remarkable man were the kindness of heart, that alchemistical power which transmuted all that came near him into gold, which made of every foe that came within its influence a friend and a devotee, and when we think of his loss we mourn not merely the statesman who directed the affairs of the country. Not as a friend, sir, do we who knew him thus mourn, but he had that power, which only belongs to highest genius, of making men who never saw feel the extraordinary charm of his personality. We may build statues to him in these grounds, monuments will arise to him in Kingston, but the grandest monument to Sir John Macdonald will be the love that Canada feels it her privilege to cherish for so great a personality, but even should we never erect a statue to his memory humanity will keep his memory green, for he belonged to that rare group of men who enchain the memory of mankind.

Sir, language was applied to a great countryman of his, a great Scotchman, not a statesman, but belonging to another order of activity, which might well be applied to the great statesman we mourn:

> "Dead heroes in marble from memory fade,
> But while hearts shall weep where your ashes are laid
> But thou art of the priesthood that never can die."

The motion was agreed to.

The Motion For Adjournment.

The debate on the adjournment of the House was short.

Sir Hector Langevin: As hon. gentlemen may have learned by the papers to-day, the funeral of our departed friend will take place in this city on Wednesday and in Kingston on Thursday. It will be Friday therefore before we can get back, and under the circumstances I would move that when this House adjourns it stands adjourned until Tuesday week, the 16th inst., at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Laurier said: I would have expected that before this motion was made some gentleman on the Treasury benches would have been able to inform the House as to whether anybody had been summoned by His Excellency to carry on the government of the day. I assume that he has done so, if British precedent is, as it ought to be, followed. Under such circumstances I think the motion to adjourn should have been coupled with such a statement. If the hon. gentleman is ready to show that His Excellency has summoned some one to form a Cabinet I am ready at once to agree to an adjournment. I can well conceive that the new Cabinet would require some days to prepare for the hard labor they will have to do this session, and there would be no hesitation in granting an adjournment for a short time; but so long as no Cabinet has been formed it seems to me that the proper way of conducting business is to have the House adjourn from day to day, except of course the day set apart for the funeral, in order that we may receive at once what communications may be made by His Excellency with regard to the formation of a Cabinet. The honorable gentleman is aware that this has invariably been the practice followed in England.

Sir Hector's Reply.

Sir Hector Langevin: When I mentioned to the honorable gentleman before the House met that I would make his motion I knew that the honorable gentleman would make the remarks he has, and I do not find fault with him for doing so. I may say that we are not aware of any party having been sent for by the Governor-General to form a new Administration, and as I have just said as this week will be taken up altogether with the funeral ceremonies nothing can be done before next week. The honorable gentleman is aware that in this country the English precedents have not always been followed in matters of this kind, and in any case if His Excellency thinks proper to send for some one after the funeral to form an Administration the party sent for would have but Saturday and Monday to carry out his instructions and would not be able to communicate with the case before Tuesday, so that no time will be lost by consenting to the adjournment.

Mr. Mills Thinks the Course an Unusual One.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell): I think that the course suggested by the Honorable Minister of Public Works is a very unusual one. The hon. member says that English precedent has not always been followed heretofore in this country. So far as I am aware it has been very closely followed since the organization of this Confederation and before, and if it was not followed that has arisen from oversight or inadvertence rather than from any intention to depart from the precedents established in the Mother Country. At this moment His Excellency is without a Cabinet. The death of the Prime Minister, has dissolved the Administration as advisers of His Excellency on matters of general policy. They retain, of course, their constitutional right to advise His Excellency individually as privy councillors. Under these circumstances [illegible] English constitutional rule, will without delay, notwithstanding the death of the Prime Minister, which the House deplores, send for someone to whom he will entrust the duty of forming an administration. I do not think that His Excellency can delay that until Saturday. No one can tell at what moment some emergency may arise when it will be necessary that His Excellency should have constitutional advisers enjoying the confidence of parliament, and there would be as much propriety in his sending for someone to assume the responsibility of forming an Administration now as on Friday or on Saturday. When Mr. Perceval, who was Prime Minister of England, fell by the hand of an assassin in the House of Commons steps were at once taken to form an Administration, and the House adjourned from day to day, only remaining in session so as to be in a position to advise the Crown if it were necessary in reference to its proceeding in constituting a Government, and it did actually intervene and carried through the House a resolution in which advice was tendered to the Crown upon that subject, and so we find that on the fall of the Aberdeen Government Her Majesty first sent for Lord Derby, who failed to form an Administration, then she sent for Lord John Russell, who also failed, and after a fortnight had elapsed Lord Palmerston succeeded in forming an Administration. During all that period after the defeat of the Government nothing took place from Jan. 12 until Feb. 16, but during that time there was only one day's adjournment. The House met every day for the purpose of watching the proceedings and intervening as the great council of the nation if it thought fit to do so. Looking at the precedents which we have before us and at those which occurred in England under circumstances somewhat similar to those which now exist here I think the course advised by the Minister might very well have been taken by him if he could at the same time have informed the House that His Excellency had sent for some one to form an Administration, but that information has not been given to the House, and while we owe it to ourselves and to the late Prime Minister to pay all proper respect to his memory we also owe it to the country that we shall not be derelict in discharging those duties, which the law and the constitution and our public responsibility impose upon us.

Sir John Thompson's Address.

Sir John Thompson: I think it would be a mistake for the House to exercise its judgment on the motion to adjourn for a week on the supposition that it is put forward on the ground of inconvenience to His Excellency or with a view of desiring the re-formation of the Government being deferred until the expiration of that time, or until the funeral arrangements have taken place. The motion is made with no such view, with no view that the re-formation of the Cabinet should be deferred. We are not, as the Minister of Public Works has announced, in a position to state that His Excellency has yet sought the advice of anyone in regard to the formation of his Government, but we cannot assume that His Excellency will not do so at the convenient and proper time, at a time to suit the convenience of this Parliament, nor by acceding to the motion to adjourn will the House be acceding to the idea that the re-formation of the Government should be deferred. I think the motion made by the Minister of Public Works on the ground on which I support it, that in view of the funeral observances this House should adjourn out of respect to the memory of him who was so recently its leader until the funeral ceremony is over, should be adopted. The arrangements already made will take the rest of this week. The re-assembling of the House on Monday would be awkward and we thought it would suit the convenience of the honorable members to meet again on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. In the case of the death of distinguished members of Parliament it is not unusual for the House to adjourn in respect to their memory, and we cannot foresee any emergency, any crisis, any danger to the state which would interfere with the adoption of the motion proposed by the Minister of Public Works. I think the House will refrain from tendering advice to His Excellency as to the formation of a Cabinet, because it has full confidence that His Excellency will follow the precedents.

REVERED AND HONORED.

COUNCILLORS PAY TRIBUTES TO THE MEMORY OF SIR JOHN.

A Sad Session of the Town Council—Conservatives and Reformers Alike Unite to Sorrow at Canada's National Bereavement—A Resolution of Sympathy Passed to Lady Macdonald.

The Town Council assembled for a sad and sorrowful session last evening, when a special meeting was called for the purpose of giving public expression to the universal sorrow and regret which overshadows the town at this time when Canada has been bereft of its leading statesman and First Minister.

Mayor Stevenson presided, while the ward representatives present were Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Kelly, Hall, Bradburn, Dawson, Moore, Meldrum, Langford, Kendry and Dennistoun. The session was one of solemn quiet.

The MAYOR said he had called them together to allow them to give an expression to the feelings of regret which they all felt at the loss the country had sustained by the death of the First Minister, Sir John Macdonald.

THE RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY.

Councillor MOORE said he understood that was the object for which the meeting had been called and he therefore moved the following resolution in regard to this sad event:—

Moved by Councillor MOORE, seconded by Councillor CAHILL and, Resolved:

That this Council assembled do place on record an expression of our profound sorrow and our appreciation of the calamity Canada has suffered upon the death of the Right Honorable Sir John Macdonald, Premier of Canada.

That, in his demise, we recognize that our Dominion has lost a legislator, untiring in devotion to duty, who, with his whole strength, has given a life time patriotic service, a man of vast experience and pre-eminent ability, a statesman who stands without a peer in the history of the British Colonial empire, and who, revered, loved and admired by the great body of the people for his generous and genial disposition and fascination of manner, and for his genius in the administration of public affairs, he leaves us not merely the memory of illustrious advancement but also the tender traditions of personal affection and social charms.

That this Council tender to Lady Macdonald, for many years the devoted partner of the joys and sorrows of this distinguished man, and to his beloved children our most tender sympathy in this the hour of their grevious sorrow and irreparable loss.

That this expression of our feelings be engrossed and forwarded by the Mayor and Clerk to Lady Macdonald.

THE FOREMOST FIGURE.

Councillor MOORE continuing said:—Mr. Mayor, in moving this resolution I do not feel like expressing any sentiment upon the sad event which has fallen upon this country. Sir John Macdonald, the late Premier, was the foremost man in the Dominion for many years, had devoted his whole life time to the service of his country and his Queen and I feel we cannot at this time express sufficiently our sorrow at his demise. History will tell of his greatness, and delineate him in true coloring. He was, I say, one of the most illustrious statesmen of the era. In saying he was a man revered and loved by all I feel I but express the sentiments of you all, no matter of what political leanings or opinions you may be. You cannot help but admire his administrative foresight and ability to carry through immense projects which, I believe, will be to the advancement of the prosperity of this country. I say we are not able to understand what his loss will be. He has not only been the foremost figure in the Dominion, but he was the most popular man that has come before the people in this generation. Although not born in Canada, he came here at the age of five years and so to all intents and purposes was a Canadian born and bred. Mr. Mayor, I do not feel called upon to say anything more, for I feel every member of this Board will support this resolution I have submitted and which expresses the general feeling of the country throughout.

A UNANIMOUS EXPRESSION.

Councillor CAHILL rose to second the resolution and said:—Mr. Mayor, in seconding this resolution I feel all I need do is to endorse all Mr. Moore has said. In doing so I feel it expresses the sentiments of the whole town without respect to political feeling or complexion. This Council is composed of Conservatives and Reformers but at this time there is no difference. This town, I feel, is fortunate in having a Council in which no political feeling is ever manifested and this country I think is fortunate in having a people who after a political campaign settle down and forget their party differences. I say it is fortunate for the town and people that we have a Council with no politics in it. Therefore, Mr. Mayor, this resolution will come from the whole Council and will, I hope, be felt as such. I know it will be impossible to find a man to take the place of our late Premier no matter from which party the successor may come. I feel everybody will agree to that.

A REFORMER'S REGRET.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL said:—Mr. Mayor, as one of the members of this Council who was politically opposed to Sir John Macdonald, I agree heartily with the sentiments of the resolution and the mover and seconder. I feel that the country has lost a man whom we all had learned to honor, and whose position it will be hard to fill, because a man of the eminence of Sir John is a man of a century. I have no desire to take up your time but only wish to say that, as a Reformer, I heartily agree with the resolution and the sentiments expressed by the mover and seconder.

A NATIONAL CALAMITY.

Councillor MELDRUM was the next to pay a tribute to the departed chieftain. He said:—Mr. Mayor, I was very glad that the Council was called together on this occasion. It is a great calamity to the country and the people, which we are called to mourn to-day. Although politically opposed to Sir John, I always admired him as the greatest statesman, not only of Canada, but of the American continent. Sir John in diplomatic negotiations always could hold his own, and, as I have seen, even the newspapers of the United States all looked upon him as a great man. I heartily agree with the resolution and all the sentiments expressed to-night. It is a calamity it is hard to feel, and the country will only in future years fully feel the loss it has sustained by the death of Sir John Macdonald.

FATHER OF THE COUNTRY.

Councillor KENDRY was the next to speak. He said:—Mr. Mayor, I feel that the resolution presented to the Council to-night cannot adequately convey the feelings of sorrow which are experienced by the death of Sir John Macdonald. No matter what politics a man has been, all respected him as a man of genius and leader of men. I don't think he had an equal on the whole American continent. I feel myself, as Mr. Meldrum said, that the country has sustained a loss it will feel not so much now as in years to come. By his death the country has lost a friend, one who in this generation it will not be able to replace no matter from which side he may come. Sir John has done more, I feel, than any man who will rise for two generations to come. He has built the country up, with his colleagues to assist him, and has been the father of the country. I don't feel, Mr. Mayor, that I can express my feelings strongly enough to-night.

LEADER OF PUBLIC OPINION.

Councillor DENNISTOUN also made a reference to the sad event. He said:—I wish, Mr. Mayor, simply to endorse all that has been said. There is not a man at this Council board who has ever known the time when Sir John A. Macdonald was not a leader of public opinion in this Dominion. It is one of the very few instances that the the world has ever seen of a man who for half a century has held sway at the head of affairs and who, from the time he commenced his career until he ended it but added to its brilliancy and finally passed away lamented by every class of the community. Of those of us who have been political followers of Sir John it is only natural at this moment that our sorrow should be deep and sincere; but we are also pleased to find those who have been strongly opposed to him in the past unite to-day in ascribing all praise that a statesman could expect, that he lived and died with but one desire and that to advance the interests of his country! It is admitted on all sides that his life was sacrificed for Canada. At no time did he use his position for personal advantage in anything. I say, Mr. Mayor, that the only other thing that we can do now will be due as a matter of respect in testifying the regret of all classes for our late Premier, and that is to be present, or have representatives present at the funeral. I trust that this will be done. I, for my part, will be there. It should be considered whether as a body we will be represented on that occasion in our official capacity.

A PERSONAL FRIEND.

Councillor KELLY said:—I suppose, Mr. Mayor, with the exception of yourself, I have been acquainted with Sir John longer than anyone else here. In 1861 when I left Kingston to come to Peterborough there was an election coming on between himself and Hon. Mr. Mowat. From that time to the present I have been a follower of Sir John. I know him personally to be a very generous man, and no matter who the man was who came to him he always was liberal in giving. It is not necessary to say anything further. His loss is a great one and, as Mr. Kendry has said, a loss which will not be felt now but in the future. I suppose no man born to-day will ever fill Sir John's place so far as to be the leader of men and continue in his position as Sir John has. I think, Mr. Mayor, it is unnecessary for me to go over any more that has already been said. I feel it is a grievious loss. No matter what politics or creed, all will agree it is a loss to the whole country at large.

THE MAYOR'S BEST FRIEND.

Mayor STEVENSON, before putting the resolution, added a few words to those already uttered. He was going to Ottawa to attend the funeral of Sir John, whom he had known since 1844. "The first time," said the Mayor, "that I heard of him was from the late Judge Hall, who at that time was himself a candidate and extolled Sir John, saying he was a young man who would rise to the highest niche and a leading position, a man of a friendly, good natured manner, whom any person could approach and who would do anything for a friend. Some years afterwards I met Sir John and found Judge Hall's statements perfectly correct in every respect. I feel that I have lost the best friend I had in every respect. In fact, the members of the House always thought Sir John took more interest in me than anyone else. For what reason I don't know, although probably because he was always so familiar with me, always having a joke to pass. When I went to him I was never refused if I pressed my request." The Mayor then referred to his relations with the departed Premier, and said in Ottawa Sir John had been honored and loved as the father of the city. In concluding the Mayor's voice was shaken with emotion. He said:—"Members of the House, of both sides, all called Sir John the most unselfish of men. He had kept nothing for himself, simply getting a living, while had he exerted his genius for himself he would have been a wealthy man. But he cared for nothing but the good of his country and leaving a name that he had been the father and benefactor of his country. He died in the harness, as he had wished to die. He had enshrined himself in the love and esteem of all the people of the country, which he had loved so well, as no other man ever can. I only have one expression and that is of the deepest sorrow that he was taken away at the time he was."

The resolution was then put and carried by a standing vote.

WILL BE REPRESENTED.

Councillor DAWSON moved, seconded by Councillor BRADBURN,—That the Mayor and Council attend the funeral of the late Sir John Macdonald in their official capacity.

The Council then adjourned.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sell at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

To Collect an Account.

Mr. Jerry McCarthy was in the Police Court this morning to collect $6.25 from Mr. Thos. Bradburn, for wages which the latter gentleman had failed to pay. Mr. Bradburn, however, produced a judgment for an account secured in 1879. The Magistrate dismissed the case.

TUESDAY, JUNE 9. 1891.

A NATIONAL MEMORIAL.

The Toronto Empire makes a suggestion that will meet with a hearty response from the people of Canada. It is that some national memorial should attest in a tangible form to future generations the life and work of Sir John Macdonald. The [illegible] will doubtless, as on former occasions, make an appropriation to that end, but the people of the Dominion ought to, by free will offerings, erect a memorial to him whom we mourn. In order that it may be a truly national memorial, the Empire suggests that subscriptions as low as 25 cents should be taken and that the limit should be $10. The response already made to this suggestion shows that the people endorse it, and persons in Peterborough who desire to join in the memorial may send their subscriptions to the REVIEW Office and they will be forwarded. The following subscriptions have been received at this office:—

No Sunday Ball Playing.

Three youths were charged at the Police Court this morning with playing ball on Sunday last at Inverlea. They said they were only tossing the ball, but the magistrate is going to stop Sunday desecration and fined them $1 each.

Discussing Wages.

A meeting of workingmen was held last evening in Labor Hall on Hunter-st. The letter which was published in the REVIEW recently called the meeting, and a discussion took place on the wage question along the line indicated in that letter. Some eight propositions for membership were presented for the Knights of Labor and the meeting adjourned for one week.

Municipal Matters.

The committee on the Supervision of Police met last evening and considered the tenders for supplying the police with summer clothing. Messrs. T. Dolan & Co. were given the contract.

The Court of Revision met last night and wound up business for this year. The appeal of the Central Canada Life will be carried to the Judge, the Court confirming the assessment.

Councillor Bradburn will be Chairman of the Property Committee during Councillor Dennistoun's absence for two of the summer months.

A Musical Organization.

The preliminary steps were taken last evening for the organization of a Musical Society in town. The meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, Mr. Wm. Clarkson presiding. The organization will have for its object the practice and performance of oratorio and other concerted vocal and instrumental music and will undoubtedly have an invigorating and elevating effect upon local music. The constitution was read and adopted and about thirty ladies and gentlemen were nominated for membership. Some general business was transacted and an adjournment made until Tuesday evening, 16th next, at eight o'clock.

THE JUDGE'S ADDRESS.

The JUDGE, addressing the Grand Jury, said their did not seem to be any persons in gaol awaiting trial, though there were a number their undergoing sentence and two insane. There were three cases, however, to be tried. One was a charge of seduction, the nature of which he explained. Others were for larceny, a crime the nature of which they understood. He also referred to the Galway assault case and the general duties of the Jury. The Judge then said:—I feel constrained to refer very briefly to the events which have occurred at Ottawa, the capital of our Dominion, during the past few days, and upon which the thoughts, not only of ourselves, but of English speaking peoples throughout the world, have been fixed. I allude to the illness and death of the Premier of our country, the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, which have cast a gloom over this land and brought sorrow and distress to many a heart. The deceased statesman was without doubt the foremost figure in the affairs of our young Dominion from its beginning and prior to that, and while we were divided into separate and isolated provinces his right to pre-eminence amongst the statesmen of the Province of Canada stood confessed amongst us. During his illness he has been acknowledged by all, not only by those of whom he was the beloved and respected chief, but by those who did not so recognise him, to have devoted his abilities, his genius and his life to the advancement and highest interests of this country as a part of the great Empire which we are all so proud. There may be many, no doubt, who honestly think that the line of policy adopted by him and the principles which he advocated were not such as in their view would be best, yet even these will admit that his efforts were always directed, without a particle of selfishness, towards the maintenance of our connection with the Mother Country and towards what he believed to be the true interests of this Dominion. However much men may differ as to his political principles and methods, all will acknowledge his devotion, his sincerity and his usefulness. His name will be written in the pages of Canadian history never to be effaced or forgotten. Before Confederation he was intimately connected with the administration of justice as Attorney-General and Premier of Canada, as it was then, and since that time for a period of about a quarter of a century he has been, with but a very short interval, the First Minister, and it has been upon his recommendation that the judiciary has been appointed. His recommendations have not been confined to his own political party, as witness the elevation of the Hon. S. H. Blake as a Vice-Chancellor and of the Hon. James McLennan as a Judge of the Court of Appeal. I have thought it, therefore, not out of place that I should say a few words from the bench. He has departed from amongst us full of years and full of honors. He has attained to years beyond the allotted span of life. He received high honors at the hand of our Queen and over and over again the honor, which he probably valued the highest of all, of the confidence of his countrymen and this he retained to the last. Lady Macdonald and the members of his family have, I am sure, our deepest sympathy in the loss they have sustained of a kind and loving husband, father and friend. I do not know the exact arrangements which have been made in regard to the funeral of the dead statesman, but should the business of this Court not be concluded, there will be a short adjournment sometime during to-morrow or Thursday.

The Grand Jury then retired.

Lessons From Chinese Gordon.

A very interesting meeting of the local Endeavor Union was held in the Sunday school room of St. Paul's church last evening. Rev. R. F. Torrance presided. The feature of the evening's programme was the lecture delivered by Rev. Dr. Moffat, of Toronto. His subject was "Chinese Gordon" and he made a most interesting and instructive address. He outlined the life of the British soldier, sketching many anecdotes in his career and adduced many lessons from the life for the guidance of young people. A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker at the close of the address.

FROM NATURAL CAUSES

WAS THE VERDICT OF THE JURY ON THE DEATH OF E. J. R. HOPKINS.

The Medical Men Report the Result of the Post Mortem Examination and the Inquest Concluded.

The inquest on the death of Mr. E. J. R. Hopkins, the Englishman who died suddenly on the morning of June 2nd, was resumed at the Police Court room last evening by Dr. Bell and the jury.

FURTHER EVIDENCE.

LEWIS EYE was the first witness called and testified that he had known the deceased twelve or thirteen years in England, New Zealand and Canada. He spent two hours at his (the witness') house on the evening previous to his death. He made no complaint of being unwell, but did not look well and witness fancied that he had a cold and his liver disordered. He left about 7 o'clock. Had never heard him complain of his domestic relations, but on the contrary speak of being very happy.

THOS. HARMER, a neighbor, said the deceased was generally cheerful, and never expressed himself as being unhappy in his family relations.

THE POST MORTEM.

Dr. E. P. BOUCHER said that, with Dr. Clarke, he made a post mortem examination of the body of the late E. J. R. Hopkins. Their report was a follows:—"The body was that of a man about 5 ft 10 or 11 inches in height. To all appearances the body was well nourished. There was considerable pallor of countenance and rigor mortis was perfect. There were no external marks of violence. Post mortem discoloration over the whole back and also on the side and lower part of the neck. Upon opening the chest we found the lungs filling the whole cavity and on removing its contents we found the right lung very much engorged, the left lung being also engorged except a small portion of the upper lobe, the lung structure being friable throughout. The heart was enlarged and the muscular walls thickened, very flabby and somewhat fatty. All the valves appeared to be healthy and the right side of the heart contained considerable liquid blood. The contents of the abdominal cavity were next carefully examined. The right lobe of the liver was very much enlarged, soft and friable, the left lobe being slightly enlarged, the whole structure weighing five pounds. The gall bladder was healthy. The stomach was almost empty and very much enlarged, particularly the left, and the renal capsules adherent. The spleen was congested and somewhat hardened. The pancreas was in a healthy state. The bladder was empty. The brain itself presented no evidence of disease, but its membranes were thickened and adherent to the skull. We are of opinion that death was caused by heart failure suddenly brought on by the great amount of lung engorgement, the recovery from which was rendered more difficult by the obstruction to the circulation in the other organs."

In answer to questions Dr. Boucher added:—They did not open the stomach but had preserved it carefully. Poison did not produce death as rapidly as that of deceased, except it might be from hydrocyanic acid and there was nothing to lead them to suspect it had been taken. In poisoning there might be a different appearance of countenance, but not necessarily so. In this case there was nothing to indicate poisoning or suffering. The condition of the internal organs were such as would be almost characteristic of a person who indulged freely in intoxicants.

Dr. CLARKE corroborated the evidence of the former witness. The organs of the deceased were in such a condition, from the use of intoxicants, that he was liable to die suddenly from the effects of a chill or cold. He had known a case where a man had fallen into a lake and had died soon after. The kidneys and liver were enlarged, which was caused by liquor, especially strong liquor.

Dr. PIGEON was again called and said he had not noticed any odor of prussic acid at the deceased when he called on the morning of his death. If there had been any he would have noticed it.

The Coroner said that Mrs. Hopkins had been subpœnaed and was in attendance, but the jury decided that it was unnecessary to call her.

The CORONER then addressed the jury. He said his object in holding the inquest was to clear the matter up, as it had been represented to him that there were suspicious circumstances sufficient to warrant an inquest being held. There had, unfortunately, been unpleasant rumors in circulation, and people were too apt to give credence to rumors in the case of sudden death. The fact was that sudden deaths were rarely caused by poison. The powders left by the attending physician had been carefully tested by himself (the Coroner) and two other medical men and a competent chemist and were found to be simply quinine, as the physician intended. They had discovered no motive for anyone desiring to cause the deceased's death, and prussic acid was the only poison that could have caused death so suddenly, while at the same time no indications of that poison were found. All the indications in the case, to his mind, pointed to a death from natural causes. If, however, they were not satisfied and desired an analysis of the contents of the stomach, he would submit the evidence to the Attorney General and ask for his authority to have the stomach analysed.

THE VERDICT.

The room was then cleared and in a very short time the jury came to an agreement as to the verdict, which was as follows:—"That the said Edmund John Robert Hopkins came to his death at his residence in the town of Peterborough on Tuesday, June 2nd, 1891, and that death resulted from natural causes consequent upon heart failure, produced by extreme congestion of his internal organs."

A NATION MOURNING.

Respect Being Done to the Memory of Canada's Greatest Statesman—A Half Holiday on Thursday.

Thursday afternoon next will be a public half holiday according to the proclamation of the Mayor. The public funeral of the late Premier takes place at Kingston on that afternoon and the half holiday is proclaimed to allow all to indicate their respects for the departed Statesman by suspending business during the time his remains are being interred. Would it not be an appropriate thing for all the places of business to display signs of mourning at the same time? It would be in keeping with the sentiments of all citizens.

During the time of the late Premier's funeral on Thursday afternoon next from one to three o'clock all the bells of the town will be tolled.

The window of Sailsbury Bros.' store has been draped in black and royal purple, and in it a large bust of Sir John, in respect to whom the symbols of mourning are exhibited.

The engines on the C. P. R. trains which passed through here last night and to-day were heavily draped in mourning in respect to Sir John. The station here has also been draped.

A special meeting of the Board of Trade is called for this evening to give official expression to the universal sorrow caused by the death of the Premier.

Mr. F. Mason, florist, has received an order for a handsome floral design from the Liberal Conservative Association of Smith's Falls, which is to be laid on the casket of Sir John. The remains will pass through Smith's Falls en route to Kingston, and the flowers will be placed on the train.

CHRISTAIN ALLIANCE CONVENTION

A Three Days Convention Opens in the Opera House—Delegates Present.

The Christain Alliance Convention opened in the opera house this morning. There was a good attendance for a morning session, about seventy five persons being present.

The delegates present from a distance were, Rev. Mr. Salmon and Dr. Zimmerman, of Toronto, Rev. Chas. W. Ryder of Providence, Rh. Is., and the Rev. Mr. Farr, of Mulliford, Mass.

The morning meeting was a very interesting one. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Salmon, Dr. Zimmerman, Rev. Mr. Ryder and Rev. Mr. Farr, the subject being "Sanctification, Christ our sanctifier."

At noon to-day Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Whittemore, Miss Lyndenburgher, and Misses Shepherd, of New York, arrived and will be present at the other meetings.

The Convention will continue until Thursday evening. An afternoon meeting will be held to-day, and another meeting this evening. The public are invited.

Mrs. Whittemore, of New York, will be one of the speakers at the meeting this evening. As she leaves to-morrow this will be the only opportunity of hearing her.

Red and rosy cheeks follow the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills. The Picnic of the Season.

On Dominion Day there will be held—in keeping with former years—the annual picnic of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral in aid of the St. Joseph hospital, on the grounds adjoining that institution. It is not necessary to say much regarding the merits of this "annual day of pleasurable rest." Everybody knows and everybody says, and what everybody says must be true, that the pleasure to be had by attending this picnic is of a more enjoyable nature than that of all the picnics of the season put together. The posters will be out in colors of brilliant red in a few days. And just glance over the list of the prizes offered to the successful competitors in running, jumping, dancing, in baseball, handball, football and —no not snowball. Watch and wait for it. Make no calculation towards spending the day out of town until you see what is in store for all those who go over to the St. Joseph hospital on Dominion Day, Wednesday, July 1st, just exactly three weeks from to-morrow. The Rev. Father Rudkins with his usual efficient manner will supervise the picnic. 1d134

Decorate Your Homes.

The great clearing sale of wall paper continues with unabated vigor at the Peterborough Bookstore. Boys may be seen delivering huge parcels of paper in all parts of the town at all hours of the day. The marvellously cheap prices are attracting an endless stream of buyers, but the stock is so large the strain has hardly been felt as yet. Don't miss this opportunity to buy cheap wall paper. People who never thought of it before are decorating their homes with nobby paper from the Peterborough Bookstore. They can afford to do it and never feel the expense, our prices are so low. There are 40,000 to 50,000 rolls of wall paper to select from, of all styles and qualities. The sale will last only about thirty days. Don't delay too long. The best bargains are being picked up every day. J. R. STRATTON. d134tf

Sudden Changes.

A cold, or exposure, may cause the poisonous acids in the blood to clog its circulation. This is Rheumatism. Clark's Lightning Liniment will stop the pain at once. It should be taken both internally and externally if the attack is severe, and it affords instant relief. If the pain appears again, it should be met with the same treatment, until a cure is effected. This wonderful preparation has worked some remarkable cures among Rheumatic sufferers. Where once tried, it is always used after. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

Some of Canada's Merchant Princes.

There are in Canada many merchant princes who would willingly give a handsome percentage of their wealth if they were guaranteed a lease of health, and a few years more of life on earth. In their present condition they are aware that they have not much hope held out to them of long years. In their desire for riches, fame and position, they have become almost physically wrecked. We pity some of them, as we gaze on their sallow, thin faces, their sunken eyes, their nervous twitchings, their trembling hands and unsteady faltering steps. They are also suffering mentally. The brain has become weak and clouded, the memory is failing, and they are tortured by headaches; and fear that something dreadful is about to happen. This state of suffering has been brought on by overtaxing the mental and physical powers; and mark well sufferers, unless you find relief from the true remedy, look out for paresis, paralysis, and dread insanity! No necessity to give away a large slice of your wealth for relief. Paine's Celery Compound is able to accomplish what you so greatly desire. It has restored to new life more desperate cases than yours, and many of these former sufferers still live as witnesses for this great remedy, and their testimony is on record. It is for you to determine whether you will live in suffering, and die later on from, it may be insanity, or by using Paine's Celery Compound, that perfect food for brain and nerves, live in perfect health and extend your life to a good old age.

Catarrh

Is a Blood Disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

THE DEAD PREMIER!

laid down and will do the best in the interests of the country in forming his Cabinet. I hope, therefore, that the House will accept the motion to adjourn simply on the ground that it is proper, that it is expedient and that it is respectful to the memory of the late leader of the House that we should adjourn until after his burial has taken place.

The motion was agreed to.

Quebec Harbor Contracts.

Sir John Thompson: There is an item on the order paper which requires to be disposed of in order that the business of the House may be kept in proper shape. I therefore move that the order of the House in regard to the attendance of Michael Connolly at the bar of the House this day be discharged and that the said Michael Connolly be summoned to appear at the bar of this House on Tuesday, June 16, at 4 p.m.

The motion was agreed to.

The House adjourned at 4.15 p.m.

In the Senate.

In the Senate to-day Mr. Abbott announced briefly but feelingly the death of Sir John Macdonald. Mr. Scott, leader of the Opposition, in the course of his remarks said that it was owing to the late Premier that the Catholic minority of this province enjoyed many of the privileges they now have.

Mr. Tasse also referred to the death of Sir John Macdonald.

A STATE FUNERAL.

Order of Procession—One of the Most Imposing Pageants Ever Witnessed in Canada.

OTTAWA, June 8.—A state funeral involves an immense amount of preparation. Hon. [illegible], Lieutenant-Colonel Smith, deputy sergeant-at-arms, and Major Sherwood, Superintendent of Dominion Police, met this morning to arrange the details of the funeral procession which will leave the House of Parliament at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The cortege will proceed in this order:

Squad of Dominion Police.
Bands of Governor-General's Foot Guards and 43rd Battalion.
The Officiating Clergy.
The Undertakers.
Pallbearers (12 or 14).
Six Bearers, Dominion Police.
Flowers.
Hearse.
Mourners, two coaches.
His Excellency the Governor-General and Staff.

Citizens.

The Council View the Remains.

The members of the Council met at the council chamber this morning at 11 and drove in a body to view the remains of their late colleague.

The Supreme Court met this morning, but immediately adjourned out of respect to the memory of Sir John A. Macdonald.

The Conservatives, immediately on the adjournment of the House, met in their committee room and appointed a committee of one member from each province to draw up a resolution of condolence with Lady Macdonald, which will be presented to her to-morrow. They also arranged to attend by turns, four at a time, for an hour and a half at the bier of the late Premier, while the remains are on public view in the Senate chamber.

A Message From the Count of Paris.

Comte de Paris, who spent a few days in Montreal last fall, sent this message of sympathy to the Secretary of State:

[illegible], June 8, 1891.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau, Ottawa:

Upon learning the death of Sir John Macdonald I unite myself to the national grief of the Dominion confederation of Canada, and I beg of you to convey to your colleagues the assurance of my sympathy.

COMTE PARIS.
Buckingham.

Mr. R. Rosine, Montreal, is engaged draping the Senate chamber for the reception of the body to-morrow.

Following is the inscription on the casket and outer case: "John Alexander Macdonald, born 11th Jan., 1815, died 6th June, 1891."

Preparations at Kingston.

KINGSTON, June 8.—To-day's trains carried many floral tributes to Earnscliffe from Kingston, among the number a beautiful pillow of white roses, carnations, lilies of the valley, calla lilies, fern maiden hair fern and smilax with the words, "Kingston mourns Sir John," in raised letters of natural flowers and an accompanying note which read, "From the Liberal-Conservative Association of Kingston with the profoundest sorrow in this time of national calamity."

Preparations for the reception of the body in City Hall have begun. A large and beautiful catafalque will be erected squarely in the middle of the floor space and on it the body of the late Premier will be surrounded by a guard, which will probably be chosen from the battery or the police. The walls and the premier's large life-size portrait, hung to the right of the main door, will be heavily draped in black. On the wall are the paintings of many of those who were most intimate with the dead man and were associated with him in life.

THE BACCARAT TRIAL.

LONDON, June 8.—Sir Edward Clarke delivered his address on behalf of the plaintiff, Sir William Gordon-Cumming, in the baccarat case to-day. "What was Sir William Gordon Cumming's reason for signing the document, about which so much has been said?" asked the Solicitor-General, looking straight into the Prince of Wales' eyes.

"It was," he said after an effective pause, "to save the Prince of Wales." "Among the mass of the people," Sir Edward continued, uttering each word with startling distinctness, "it is known that a club or inn could be prosecuted for playing baccarat, and in a great part of the community there was a feeling that this unhappy incident ought never to have been allowed to become known, because the circumstances were those which were at variance with the feeling with the conscience of the people.

"Then there was the strange and subtle influence of royalty," still more solemnly and dramatically, said the Solicitor-General, "and Sir William Gordon Cumming's action in signing that document was due to the influence which adorned history and which has made many knights do an unknightly and dishonoring deed to save their king, because they gave their honor as freely as they could have given their lives for the interest of the dynasty or to conceal the foibles of a prince."

A slight ripple of applause, which was promptly suppressed, broke out in court as the eloquent jurist uttered the last words in a most touching and impressive manner.

"The document," continued Sir Edward Clarke with increasing force and amidst the deepest silence throughout the courtroom, "was signed by Sir William Gordon Cumming in order to save the Prince of Wales from scandal. The motto of Sir William Gordon Cumming's race is: 'Without fear.' He came into the witness box without fear, confident of a verdict which would wipe this stain from the noble record of service with his gallant regiment of brave soldiers."

The Solicitor-General then said slowly to the jury: "It is too late to undo the mischief which has been done," and then facing the Prince of Wales and looking the latter direct in the face for about the space of a minute, he continued in a voice apparently shaken with emotion, "and it may be too late to save the reputation of some people mentioned in this case, but," again turning to the jury, "it is not too late for you to prevent the completion of the sacrifice of this gallant officer."

Sir Edward Clarke's speech was regarded as a most eloquent and telling effort and as he closed there was a burst of spontaneous applause, cheering and hand-clapping throughout the court which caused the Lord Chief Justice to shout "silence, this is not a theatre."

The jury, it was plainly evident appeared to be greatly impressed with the speech of the Solicitor-General and as he ended it this remark was heard throughout the court, "Cummings will get a verdict or at least the jury will disagree."

The court was then adjourned till to-morrow, when the Lord Chief Justice will sum up and the case will go to the jury.

The court was crowded long before the opening time and the interest in the case did not seem to have diminished in the slightest degree.

The Prince of Wales throughout the trial has demonstrated the fact that he is sticking to the witness, young Arthur Stanley Wilson, who has been elected a member of the Marlborough Club, the Prince's pet club, upon the nomination of the heir-apparent himself.

The Lord Chief Justice when he took his seat was flanked on either side by about 25 ladies. The galleries were in the main part filled with fashionably dressed ladies. Sir William Gordon Cumming was as dignified as ever and appeared supremely calm.

The most watery county in the United States is Monroe County, Fla. It is chiefly composed of small islands, or keys.

A Maine Debating society is now wrestling with the question, "Is a Sabbath-school superintendent justified in wearing a red neck-tie?"

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising the in widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realize results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erie property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE ASCOT RACES.

The New British Educational Bill Discussed in the Imperial Parliament—Emperor William's Narrow Escape From Death by Lightning—General Cable News.

LONDON, June 9.—The race meeting at Ascot opened to-day with perfect weather. The Prince of Wales, fresh from the baccarat trial, with the Princess of Wales and her daughters, the Duke of Clarence and Avondale, the heir-presumptive, the Duke of Cambridge and the Duke of Saxe-Weimar drove in state from Windsor Castle to the grand stand, being preceded by yeomen prickers (volunteer light horsemen) in dazzling uniforms of green and scarlet headed by one of the baccarat trial witnesses, the Earl of Coventry as Master of the Buckhounds. The royal turnout was greeted with enthusiastic plaudits all along the line, and again on arrival at the royal stand at Ascot. All doubts as to the manner in which the Prince of Wales would be received by the public after the baccarat trial revelations were thus set at rest. The full band of the Scots Fusilier Guards, Sir William Gordon Cumming's regiment, was on the ground, a fact which excited some comment.

The Crimes Act and the Government's Education Bill Under Discussion.

LONDON, June 9.—Mr. Balfour in the House of Commons to-day, replying to a question by Thomas Sexton, said all clauses of the Crimes Act dealing with boycotting and intimidation can be withdrawn from the whole of Ireland excepting County Clare and some of the baronies in which the "plan of campaign" still exists. The debate on the Government's education bill being resumed, Mr. Balfour said Ireland's share of the budget would be applied to freeing elementary education, in much the same way as in England. An early opportunity would be taken to deal completely with the problem of compulsory education. He had little hope that the Irish measure would be passed this session, but it had been introduced in order to enable the members to consider it during recess. The minimum grant for Ireland for this purpose would be $800,000.

Germany's Emperor Has a Very Narrow Escape From Death.

BERLIN, June 9.—Grenadiers were being exercised by the Emperor at morning drill on the parade ground at Tempelhof. While the men were being put through their exercise a vivid flash of lightning, followed by a deafening thunder clap, startled and half-blinded the men on parade and hurled a number of them to the ground. The officer in command, Capt. Von Quaste, and three soldiers were rendered insensible. Two of the latter died almost immediately. Capt. Von Quaste and the other soldiers who had been struck were dangerously injured. It is supposed the rifles and bayonets of the soldiers attracted the electricity which caused such fatal results.

The French and American ministers at Shanghai have called upon the Imperial Cabinet to give efficient protection to European and American residents, hinting that failure to comply with this request will involve hostile action on the part of their respective Governments. The French squadron threatens to bombard Nankin unless the sufferers by the recent riots are promptly indemnified. Horrible details are given of the outrages at Wuhu, on the French mission. Women and children escaped murder only by flying naked from their abodes.

LYING IN STATE AT OTTAWA.

Memorial Service in Westminster Abbey.

All Preparations for the Funeral Completed—Kingston a City of Mourning—World-Wide Sympathy Goes Out to the Afflicted Family of Sir John—Mountains of Floral Tributes on the Dead Statesman's Bier.

OTTAWA, June 9.—The body of the late Sir John Macdonald lay in state all day in the Senate chamber. The chamber wore an air of mourning. The brass rods and railing at each end were draped in mourning. The seats had been removed and the scarlet carpet covered over with linen. In accordance with the wishes of the family simplicity was the characteristic of these signs of sorrow. The casket was placed in the centre of the room on a rest wrapped in black cloth with black silk fringe and silk cords. At the side was a shield entwined with ensigns and bearing a portrait of the Queen. A barrier draped in black ran the whole length of the chamber a the opposite side of the casket. Along the barrier and along the opposite side of the chamber were arranged the scores of floral tributes received. Around the bier were the Conservative members who will remain in turns four at a time to guard the remains of the Chieftain during the time the body lies in state. Stationed at intervals in the chamber and through the corridors were guards from the Governor-General's Foot Guards, the Ottawa Field Battery, the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards and the 43rd Battalion.

The remains were removed privately from Earnscliffe this morning at 8. The evening before Rev. J. J. Bogert of St. Alban's Church read the funeral service of the Church of England, all the members of the family being present. This morning the casket was carried from the house by six stalwart Dominion policemen to the hearse, drawn by four black horses, and taken to the Senate.

Those accompanying the remains were Messrs. Hugh J. Macdonald, M.P., Fred White, Joseph Pope and George Sparks in one carriage, and Lieut.-Col. Smith, Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, and Major Sherwood. The remains of the old Chieftain were met at the door by the first batch of Conservative members, Messrs. McKay, Daly, Taylor and Mills (Annapolis), and escorted to the Chamber. The Chamber was thrown open at 10 o'clock. A few minutes previously Lord Stanley arrived, accompanied by Major Colville, military secretary, Viscount Kilcoursie, Captain Walsh, Lieutenant-Colonel Smith and Lieutenant-Colonel Macpherson, aide-de-camps; Major-General Herbert and Captain Streatfeild, aide-de-camp. The party proceeded to the Speaker's apartments, where the members of the late Ministry were waiting. Joining them Lord Stanley proceeded to the chamber where the dead statesman lay, bearing in his hand a magnificent wreath, which he laid on the bier. It bore a card with the words: "In Loving Memory, from Stanley of Preston, and Constance Stanley."

The body was dressed in the full uniform of an Imperial Privy Councillor. On a stand near the head were the insignia of the office. The face of the Old Man showed signs of the long struggle through which he had passed. It was worn and thin and bore a marked contrast to the well-known features of a fortnight since.

Thousands View the Body.

The general public was then admitted. All day long the corridors were thronged with people anxious to have a last look at the Conservative Chieftain. At night the crush was even greater and the doors were kept open until near midnight. It was estimated that 15,000 people viewed the remains.

A cablegram was received to-day from Mr. Loring, secretary of the Imperial Federation League, London, England, asking if a subscription to a monument to the memory of Sir John Macdonald would be accepted. Mr R. C. Dickson replied that it would, although no scheme had yet been formulated for perpetuating his memory.

The Governor-General, by command of Her Majesty the Queen, has requested Sir Casimir Gzowski, A.D.C. to the Queen, to represent Her Majesty at Sir John Macdonald's funeral both here and at Kingston.

Judge Ross, in opening the June term of the County Court, referred to the death of the Premier as an occasion of real sadness and possibly a critical period in the history of the country and expressed sympathy with the family in their bereavement.

Six marshals have been appointed to take charge of the funeral procession. They are Lieut.-Col. Todd, Governor-General's Foot Guards; Lieut.-Col. Anderson, 43rd Battalion; Capt. Gourdeau, Princess Louise Dragoon Guards; Capt. Bliss, Ottawa Field Battery; Chief McVeritty, city police, and Inspector O'Leary, Dominion Police.

The work of draping the houses, stores, etc., on the line of route was begun early yesterday and was still going on at a late hour this afternoon. In many cases arrangements were most elaborate, and the universality of the mourning both in stores and private houses showed in a marked manner the respect in which the citizens of Ottawa of all shades of politics held the deceased statesman.

AT KINGSTON.

Preparations Completed For the Services on Thursday.

KINGSTON, June 9.—The city has now begun to assume an aspect of mourning. On all public buildings, and on every business house where there is a flagstaff, the national colors float at half mast. At Fort Henry alone is the flag mast head, which is in pursuance of a military regulation requiring the same except in the case of a royal death. Down Princess-street the principal places of business are draped in festoons of black bunting, giving that usually gay thoroughfare an air of solemnity which reminds pedestrians of the national sorrow and causes the merry laugh of the school children to die away on their lips and the older citizens to assume a more thoughtful aspect as they think of it. Many windows contain portraits of the late Premier draped in black. These are constantly encircled by a throng of spectators anxious for one more glimpse of the features so well known to all, and now and again an old acquaintance perchance of Kingston's representative wipes away a tear as he turns away from the scene.

Last evening Mr. McIntyre, Q.C., President of the Conservative Association, and Miss Macpherson, cousin of the late Sir John Macdonald, drove out to Cataraqui Cemetery and selected the site in the Macdonald plot for the late Premier's body. The coffin will be built in with solid masonry by G. Newlands. This is being done to prevent the body being stolen.

Major-General Herbert has issued the following military orders in connection with the funeral on Thursday: "A" and Kingston batteries, "A" and "C" troops of 4th Cavalry and 14th Battalion will line the streets and the cadets of the Royal Military College will furnish the body guard while lying in state. These orders were sent to the officers in command.

Montreal's Representation.

MONTREAL, June 9.—The city of Montreal will be represented at the funeral of Sir John by the Mayor and members of the City Council, the council of the Board of Trade and Corn Exchange Association, the Harbor Commissioners, members of the consular corps stationed here, delegation from the Junior Conservative Club and the Sir John A. Macdonald Club, representatives of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways and a large number of private citizens. Nearly every public body in the city has passed resolutions of regret at the lamented statesman's death and of condolence with his family. The bar of Montreal, the Harbor Commissioners and the consular corps met this afternoon and after passing appropriate resolutions resolved to attend the funeral.

The Canadian Pacific are draping their engines and stations out of respect to the departed Premier, whose policy and administration really called into existence this great corporation. All the principal stations between Montreal and Ottawa will be draped in black.

SPECIALLY HONORED.

A Memorial Service to Be Held in Westminster Abbey in Honor of Sir John Macdonald.

LONDON, June 9.—The death of Sir John Macdonald and the political results to Canada likely to arise from the sad event are still the general topic of conversation here in political, colonial and city circles. Nothing more remarkable has ever been witnessed in London than the universal respect shown for the memory of the deceased statesman. From every corner of the empire come tributes of respect to his memory. This culminated today in the decision to hold a memorial service in Westminster Abbey, which is considered to be one of the highest honors an Englishman can ever hope to attain. A requisition was presented to the dean of Westminster signed by all the leading Ministers of State, the leaders of both political parties in the Imperial Parliament, the Marquis of Lorne, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Alexander Galt, Hon. Charles Colby and others. The memorialists pointed out that they desired to pay a last tribute of respect to one who has rendered so many services to the Dominion of Canada and the Empire in general and asked that their petition be granted. The dean promptly assented, and it was decided that the service should be held on Friday morning next, when all the Imperial Cabinet Ministers and members of Parliament who are able to attend will be present, together with all the Canadians and other colonists at present in London. It is expected that the service will be very grand and impressive, and that the Dean himself will officiate.

In the House of Lords.

Lord Salisbury paid a most graceful tribute to Sir John in the House of Lords last evening, which has much gratified Canadians at present in the city, and cannot fail to be appreciated all over the Dominion. In the course of his remarks Lord Salisbury said that Sir John Macdonald was as great a constitutional statesman as any nation had ever seen. Other members of the House of Lords followed in eulogies of the dead Canadian Premier.

Sir Charles Tupper is still at Vienna and it is not expected he will be able to return in time for the memorial service at Westminster Abbey, though he telegraphed to have his name affixed to the memorial presented to the dean. The High Commissioner has still many important matters to present to the Postal Congress, and it is very unlikely he will leave Vienna until he has completed his work.

My Fellow's Great Race and Victory.

BUFFALO, June 9.—There were 5000 people at the races to-day and about 200 of them made things uncomfortable in the betting ring. For the first time the Canadian delegation got to the front and made a comfortable stake, but many of them dropped part of their pile in the last wage on Hercules.

Hercules was easily the best horse of the lot but had a bad start and ran behind the field for three-fourths of the distance, when he ranged up. In the stretch Pope plied the whip vigorously but Futurity had a good lead, was going easy and Hercules was only able to reduce the gap to two lengths at the finish.

The fourth race, Portchester being scratched gave My Fellow's owner a great chance to land him against Rambler, who won the other day. My Fellow baulked as usual at the post. Tanner had the best start. At the quarter Tanner and Rambler were head and head. At the half Tanner led Rambler by a half-length. Up in the stretch all the horses were running head and head. The backers of My Fellow shouted as Joe Bergen pulled him in, easy winner by two lengths

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

THE VERDICT ADVERSE TO THE PLAINTIFF.

Sir William Gordon Cumming Loses His Suit Against the Individuals Who Accused Him of Cheating—The Judge's Partial Charge to the Jury.

LONDON, June 9.—There was no diminution in the attendance at the baccarat trial to-day, though much disappointment was felt at the absence of the Prince of Wales, who had gone to the Ascot races.

The Lord Chief Justice began his summing up of the evidence. It was noticed throughout that his charge was favorable to the defendants. The audience listened with breathless attention to the words of the address, upon the tenor of which so much depended. The court explained at length the differences between an action for slander such as this one, and an action for libel.

The Lord Chief Justice emphatically protested against the observation which had been made by counsel, that there was more in the case than was allowed to appear upon the surface. The jury must not allow themselves to be influenced by such remarks made in the heat of argument by counsel whose zeal led them to hint at more than could be made evidence. As a matter of fact there was never any more in a case than appeared in evidence. They must confine themselves to the single question at issue and base their verdict upon what they had heard proved by evidence.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge defined the law of libel and that of slander and gave special instructions as to the damages to be assessed in the event of a finding for plaintiff. The tone of his address seemed decidedly in the plaintiff's favor. But when he proceeded to an analysis of the evidence given by Jos. Williams, Earl Coventry and the Prince of Wales, the effect was in the nature of an endorsement of their testimony. He dwelt at length upon Sir William Gordon Cumming's high position and brave career and described his visit to Tranby Croft as an honored guest. Referring to the insinuations against the Prince of Wales, the Lord Chief Justice sarcastically observed that, while people indulged in criticisms as a cheap way of gaining notoriety, it was noticeable that they were all very much pleased to have the Prince, Earl Coventry and Lord This and That at their houses. [Laughter.]

The court then touched upon the position of the Prince in this affair, and the desire for secrecy in regard to the scandal. Was it not natural, said he, that with our monarchical institution such a wish should have existed? It must be remembered that such incidents, with the exaggerations that might arise, were nowadays brought before a hard judging world, and not before the loyal and subservient world of the Tudors, whose sense and judgment had to be consulted. Surely it was not a thing to be said against a man under these circumstances that he was anxious to keep a scandal quiet.

While admitting the prima facie improbability of one in Sir William Gordon Cumming's position and of his wealth cheating at cards, yet the Lord Chief Justice made it a strong point against Sir William that he had failed to confront his accusers.

Lord Coleridge said the Prince of Wales was, he presumed, a gentleman, and the instinct of an honorable man was to range himself on the side of his friends. If the Prince did not believe the story, he would have made a point to show the world that he did not believe it. But he (the Prince) has not met the plaintiff since. Lord Coleridge then turned his attention to Sir William Gordon Cumming, though his eyes were kept continually upon the jurymen and not upon the plaintiff. During this branch of his discourse Lord Coleridge severely criticised the baronet's conduct after leaving Tranby Croft, referring to the events subsequent to Sept. 10, the day when the Tranby Croft party may be said to have been broken up. His conduct then, according to the Chief Justice, was not of a nature tending to indicate that the plaintiff was innocent of the charge brought against him. At another portion of his charge Lord Coleridge, referring to the criticism heaped upon the Prince of Wales since the affair first became public for the share the heir-apparent had taken in the Tranby Croft episode, said that England was not only a free country but a censorious one. The life of the Prince of Wales, like every other person of rank, was continually made a subject of public comment.

Why Didn't He Read His Bible?

"The Prince of Wales," Lord Coleridge added, somewhat pathetically, "goes through many boring ceremonies," and if he did introduce baccarat into that great house in the absence of any portion of the scandal being directly connected with the Prince of Wales Lord Coleridge could not imagine how any harm could be done to the monarchy, to the Prince or to anybody else, adding significantly, "though some people might have asked when they heard of the trouble at Tranby Croft, 'Why did he not read his Bible?' But," said the Lord Chief Justice, "nobody was any the worse by the hardworking man taking his pleasures among his friends." Did the jury believe that the plaintiff signed the dishonoring document in which he stated that he had cheated at cards? And did this save the Prince of Wales? Were not the consequences far too great for the cause?

Lord Coleridge said he could not understand how a man could give away all for which life was valued and all which made life worth living. The Hon. Chief Justice wound up his charge to the jury with the following emphatic not to be easily misunderstood remark, after what he had already said: "I send you, gentlemen of the jury, to do your duty, and adapting the noble words of a great man to this occasion, 'When you pass your judgment upon Sir William Gordon Cumming's honor, I pray you recollect your own.'"

The Jury Retire.

At the conclusion of the charge the jury retired, and the occupants of the court room busied themselves in commenting upon what they had heard and in conjecture as to the probable effect of the charge upon the jury. Only 13 minutes had elapsed when the jury sent word to the court that they had agreed upon their verdict. The suspense was great as the jurors returned to their seats and replied to the usual question.

When the verdict of "Not Guilty" was announced there was a tremendous stir, the court rapping vainly for order. Both applause and hisses were heard, but the former predominated. In a few minutes the room was vacated by the gaily dressed throng, and the sensational trial was over.

Defendants present were warmly congratulated by numerous friends, and seemed supremely happy. The verdict was in accordance with the general expectations. Betting during the morning was strongly in favor of such a result.

While the jury were out Sir Wm. Gordon

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

A NATIONAL MEMORIAL.

THE Toronto Empire makes a suggestion that will meet with a hearty response from the people of Canada. It is that some national memorial should attest in a tangible form to future generations the life and work of Sir John Macdonald. Parliament will doubtless, as on former occasions, make an appropriation to that end, but the people of the Dominion ought to, by free will offerings, erect a memorial to him whom we mourn. In order that it may be a truly national memorial, the Empire suggests that subscriptions as low as 25 cents should be taken and that the limit should be $10. The response already made to this suggestion shows that the people endorse it, and persons in Peterborough who desire to join in the memorial may send their subscriptions to the REVIEW Office and they will be forwarded. The following subscriptions have been received at this office:—

The bidding was slow at first. Mr. Fitzgerald started it by offering 9c for selections, which was raised to 9⅛c by Mr. Cluxton. Mr. Fitzgerald offered 9¼c for selections and Mr. Cluxton then bid 9⅜c for six factories, and secured Ormonde, Westwood, Keene, Pine Grove, Cherry Grove and Lakefield. Mr. Flavelle followed with an offer of 9⅜c for further selections and Warminster, Shearer, Central Smith, North Smith, Warsaw, South Dummer, Missing Link and Peterborough accepted this offer. Mr. Cook then offered 9⅜c for further selections, but Mr. Fitzgerald raised him a sixteenth. Mr. Cook then bid 9⅜c for further selections and secured Norwood, Melrose Abbey, Brickly, Roseneath, North Dummer, Dunsfort and Lakeview. Mr. Cluxton next offered 9⅜c for further selections and got Maple Leaf, Fraserville, Lang, Fleetwood, Millbrook, Cedardale, Ida and Mount Pleasant. Mr. Flavelle bid 9⅜c for selections from Victoria section and secured Fenelon Falls, Star, Lorneville, Bobcaygeon, Dunsford and Gamebridge. Mr. Cook took Stony Lake at 9¼c, and Mr. Fitzgerald Trewern, so that the Board was cleared.

The Board then adjourned.

What Does It Mean ?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations, taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

Any friends who are willing to open their houses will confer a favor by leaving their names and addresses and rate per day with Mr. G. J. Early, photograph, George-st., as early as possible.

Local Legal.

Judge Ferguson gave judgment at Osgoode Hall yesterday in the following case tried here at the last assizes:—Hall v. Charlton.—Judgment in action tried at Peterborough. Action to set aside as void as against creditors a mortgage on real estate made by one Johnson to the defendant Charlton, the plaintiff being the assignee of Johnson for creditors. The learned judge holds, following Gibbons v. McDonald, 18 A.R., 159, that the pressure in this case was such as to divest the mortgage of "fraudulent color." In giving judgment His Lordship said:—"I think it is perfectly plain that the mortgagor Johnston would not have done anything to prefer or favor Charlton or towards defeating, hindering or delaying his other creditors but for the importunities of Charlton and the pressure brought to bear through the creditor and holder of the note, Caldwell. I do not think there was collusion between Charlton and Johnston. What appears is I think that Johnston yielded to importunities and threats knowing, however, the effect of what he was doing. I presume such knowledge exists in most cases in which a man in such circumstances yields to importunity and threats, and, so doing, gives security to a creditor. There was not a voluntary preference. What was done was not a spontaneous act of Johnston the mortgagor. I think the case Gibbons and McDonald, 18 A. R. 159 and the cases there referred to show that the pressure here was such as to divest the mortgage impeached or sought to be impeached of "fraudulent color." According to the authorities I think I can do no other than hold that the case of the plaintiff fails and dismiss the action with costs." Watson, Q. C., and Stratton, (Peterborough) for plaintiff; E. B. Edwards, (Peterborough), for the defendant.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. A Pertinent Question.

"What is home without wall paper," asks a local dealer. Home may have paper on the walls and carpet on the floor and patent, corrugated, anti-friction shingles and cupola chimney, but if it lacks Hawley's teas in the pantry, then indeed is home bereft of a source of joy and satisfaction. Every complete household has Hawley's teas. Try them. d131

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1891.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Personal.

Councillors Moore and Dennistoun left last night for Ottawa to attend the funeral of the late Premier to-day.

Mr. H. Blanchard, Principal of the shorthand department of the Business College, has been successful in obtaining the certificate of the Phonetic Society, England.

Leonard vs. Town of Peterborough.

In this case, which was partly tried at the assizes here on 6th April, in accordance with arrangement then made, the evidence of Mr. Geo. B. Kirkpatrick, of the Crown Lands Department at Toronto, was taken before Mr. Justice MacMahon at Osgoode Hall, on Monday last, and the case was argued by Mr. E. B. Edwards, on behalf of the town, and by Mr. Watson, Q.C., on behalf of plaintiff. Judgment was reserved.

They Were Correct.

Chief Roy, of Prescott, and Constable Strange, of Cardinal, who were in town yesterday, went away highly impressed with the town's beauty. The Chief had travelled all over the States and Ontario but never went into a town that he thought could compare with Peterborough for beauty and business enterprise. Constable Strange was an Englishman and he thought Peterborough was away ahead of any of the English towns. They were both right.

That tired feeling now so often heard of, is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peterborough Orangemen to be Represented.

The semi-annual meeting of Peterborough District L. O. L., was held in Jubilee Hall, on fourth line Smith last night and was well attended. Considerable business was transacted, the principal being in connection with the coming 12th July celebration. A resolution of condolence was passed by a unanimous vote of the Lodge to the family of the late Premier Sir John A. Macdonald, and Bro. Robert Weir, Right Worshipful Grand Master of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter R. B. K. L., and Bro. C. W. Sawers, Recording Secretary, County of West Peterborough L. O. L., were appointed delegates to attend the funeral of the late Sir John A. Macdonald as representatives of the Orangemen of Peterborough.

An Evening's Entertainment.

A very enjoyable and decidedly entertaining evening was given at the St. John's South Ward Mission building last evening. It was an entertainment which combined musical numbers, all excellently rendered, and a number of tableaux which were effectively presented. Mrs. J. G. Macklin had the management of the entertainment on her hands and very efficiently performed her task. The programme was as follows:—

1. Instrumental Duet............................ The Misses Dennistoun.
2. Song...................Summer Showers Mrs. Macklin.
3. Tableau..Fatima in the Haunted Chamber
4. Violin Solo................................ Miss Davies.
5. Tableau.........................The Shepherdess
6. Instrumental Duet.............................. Mrs. Smith and Miss Hall.
7. Song................................I am Waiting Mrs. Macklin.
8. Tableau..................Longfellow's Children
9. Song.......................................Answered Miss Davidson.
10. Statuary..............Faith, Hope and Charity
11. Instrumental Solo.............................. Miss Helen Dennistoun.
12. Tableau...............Italian Gypsies in Camp

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Stine Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

FOR FOUR DAYS.

The 57th Battalion Will Spend Four Days at the Dominion Capital.

The 57th Battalion had a march out headed by the Band last evening. There was a good turnout and the men are taking an interest in the drill, looking forward with gladsome anticipations to a great outing at Ottawa on the first of July. A Battalion drill is called for Tuesday night next and every man should now be on his mettle so that when on parade at headquarters the corps may come out with honors to themselves and the town.

After parade last evening a meeting of the officers was held. The Ottawa trip was considered and it was decided to leave for the capital on Saturday night, June 28, and return on Wednesday night, July 1st. This will make a four days' trip and the boys will have plenty of opportunity to see the sights. They will be camped during their stay and their comfort will be looked after.

Col. Rogers and Capt. Langford were appointed to go to Ottawa and make the necessary preliminary arrangements for the Battalion reception. A glorious trip is looked forward to and will no doubt be enjoyed.

THE CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE.

First Evening Meeting of the Convention—Interesting Addresses.

The first evening meeting of the Christian Alliance convention was held in the Opera House last evening. There was a fair attendance, the reserved seats being filled. Rev. A. B. Simpson conducted the meeting, and after the opening exercises read a portion of Scripture and commented on it, his theme being "Consecration."

Rev. Mr. Farr, of Milford, Mass., was the first speaker. He possesses a clear voice and is a perfect master of elocutionary style. He based his remarks on Exodus xiv., 15, "Go Forward." This command, given to the children of Israel, he applied to the Christians of to-day and urged them to press forward in the work of the Lord. His address abounded in appropriate metaphors and apt similes, and was pleasing as well as impressive.

Mrs. Whittemore, of New York, who had charge of the "Door of Hope" rescue home, was then introduced. She is a lady who notwithstanding a rather sharp feminine voice is a pleasing and very effective speaker. After reading the well known passage "Come unto Me," etc., and commencing upon it, she referred to the rescue work in the New York slums. When first she was influenced to take up that work she shrank back, but she knew God did not expect anyone to do impossibilities and she went forward. She had visited the gilded hells in the north and the lowest slums in other parts of the city, and she could not tell them of the horrors she had seen. She described the worn and faded attire she wore when visiting the slums, which aided her in the work. After six years she had been enabled to open the "Door of Hope," the rescue home which was opened last October. When dwelling upon the work of the home, and the unfortunate inmates who had been rescued and saved, her voice was tremulous with emotion. She related incidents in connection with the work in the slums, and while occasional flashes of humor made the audience smile, her remarks were very pathetic.

The meeting closed with the usual exercises.

The meetings are continued to-day and this evening and the convention will close to-morrow night.

THE COUNTY COURT.

True Bills in the Criminal Cases—The Civil Cases—Adjourned out of Respect to the Dead Premier.

At the County Court yesterday the civil docket was disposed of.

ENGLISH vs. FORSYTHE.—This case stood over to be heard by the judge.

MORROW vs. ELLIS.—An interpleader action brought by R. A. Morrow to test the validity of a chattel mortgage. Judgment for the plaintiff.—Hatton & Wood for plaintiff; Hall & Kimsell, Toronto, for the defendants.

KINCAID vs. SAWERS.—This is an action in which the plaintiff, John Kincaid, claims $145 as share of costs in certain interplead. or proceedings. C. W. Sawers is the defendant. Verdict for plaintiff for $142.16.—Dumble & Leonard for plaintiff; John Burnham, Q.C., for the defendant.

The Grand Jury returned the following true bills:—

Against Wm. Coulter and Thos. Humphries for both burglary and assault.

Against Wm. Young, Thos. Connors, John Colter and Daniel Werner, for both house breaking and larceny, and George Wood for larceny.

Against John Gilman, jr., for seduction.

The Galway case of housebreaking was first proceeded with. At one o'clock the Court adjourned until four, during the time of the state funeral of the late Premier at Ottawa.

The Business Men's Expression.

A special meeting of the Board of Trade was held last evening for the purpose of giving expression to the regret of the business men of the town in regard to Canada's great bereavement. Mr. W. H. Meldrum, President, was in the chair. It was moved by Mr. Meldrum and seconded by Mr. Robt. Fair and carried,—"That this Board would respectfully tender to Lady Macdonald their sincere sympathy in this hour of her bereavement and of national mourning." The Board then adjourned.

Decorate Your Homes.

The great clearing sale of wall paper continues with unabated vigor at the Peterborough Bookstore. Boys may be seen delivering huge parcels of paper in all parts of the town at all hours of the day. The marvellously cheap prices are attracting an endless stream of buyers, but the stock is so large the strain has hardly been felt as yet. Don't miss this opportunity to buy cheap wall paper. People who never thought of it before are decorating their homes with nobby paper from the Peterborough Bookstore. They can afford to do it and never feel the expense, our prices are so low. There are 40,000 to 50,000 rolls of wall paper to select from, of all styles and qualities. The sale will last only about thirty days. Don't delay too long. The best bargains are being picked up every day. J. R. STRATTON. d126tf

IT WILL BE AN ADDITION.

TO PROVIDE THE ACCOMMODATION ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

The Board of Education and Councillors Meet and Discuss School Accommodation—A New Institute Building Not to be Erected at Present—The Absolutely Necessary Increased Accommodation to be Given by an Addition—The Councillors Not Favorable to a Large Expenditure.

The joint meeting of the Board of Education and the Town Council was held last evening and the question of school accommodation pretty thoroughly discussed. The result will be that a four-roomed addition will be built to the smaller of the Central school buildings to relieve the present overcrowded rooms. This is an absolute necessity, following as a result of the increase in Peterborough's population, but it will only be temporary. Probably next year or the year following the people will be called upon to vote upon a by-law to provide thirty or forty thousand dollars for the erection of a proper Institute building suitable for and in keeping with the requirements of the city of Peterborough, as it will be by that time.

It was twenty minutes to nine before a sufficient number of members of the two bodies had arrived to proceed with business. Mr. W. H. Wrighton, Chairman, called the meeting to order at that time. The gentlemen present were Messrs. Dumble, Denne, Dr. Boucher, Hamilton, Corkery, McBain, Ferguson, and Councillors Davidson, Dawson, Cahill, Meldrum, Langford and Kendry, the latter of whom is a member of both bodies.

THE CONDITION OF THE SCHOOLS.

Mr. DUMBLE opened the meeting by making a statement of the condition of affairs for the benefit of the Councillors present. He said the population of the town had grown until the school accommodation was inadequate and some of the rooms were overcrowded. In the South Ward one room had an average attendance of 71 and 120 pupils on the roll. Knowing the increase of the South Ward some additional accommodation would be necessary there in the near future. In the North Ward a new school building had been built with the intention of occupying only three rooms. No sooner was it opened up than the four rooms were required and were now all fairly occupied. The West Ward had a good attendance and the Central school had the same, some of the rooms being too crowded. Mr. Smith had an average attendance in his room of 57 and 65 on the roll. This was too large a number to allow Mr. Smith to do justice to the scholars, and accommodation for another teacher of the same grade as Mr. Smith would soon have to be made. In the lower classes some of the children were in class rooms under ground, poorly ventilated and damp. This was the state of the schools, but another cause for consideration was having the Collegiate Institute in the same building. Mr. Dumble referred to the higher standard of the Institute, and said it was desirable that a building which would create in the pupils an ambition to reach it, which would make the pupils feel they were no longer at school but at college should be erected. Here they were associated with the infants, from the kindergarten up. Young men and women on their dignity did not like to elbow their way through a crowd of five or six hundred little children. Then the proper accommodation, such as laboratory, etc., were not in the present building, and the Government Inspector had considered it as not meeting

THE REQUIREMENTS OF AN INSTITUTE.

As they received some $1,500 from the Government it was not to be disregarded. In view of this and that the county would hereafter pay a much larger share of the expense than in the past he thought the time had come when a better building worthy of the town should be erected, a building which would be creditable and not be bringing them constantly under the condemnation of the Government. The question was what was to be done? It had been suggested that accommodation be secured outside for two or three rooms of the public school and give the Institute the use of these rooms. The entire building would be suitable for an Institute building, but the question of ownership came in. The building was on grammar school property. What was to be done? Seek out land and the High school sell the land of the present building to the common school or the High school buy the building from the Common school. A committee had been appointed to seek out rooms to relieve the present press, but the only building at all suitable was the lower part of Fitzgerald & Stanger's carriage shop. His opinion was that they should buy a site and erect a proper building, such as Campbellford, Lindsay and other places had done. The joint meeting had been called to allow discussion and present the matter to the people in some way or other. The interest on the debt for a new building would not be any more than the present rent and he thought the true policy of economy for the town would be to build a new Institute. The new building would give additional public school accommodation. They should act in unity and carry the people with them.

The Government inspector's report which condemned the present building and which has already been published was read for the information of the Town Councillors.

THE DISCUSSION BEGINS.

In reply to Mr. Dawson the Chairman said they had spent about $8,000 on the present building two years ago.

Mr. DAWSON said that the inspector had appeared to be well satisfied at that time.

Mr. DUMBLE said that they made improvements which saved the grant being cut off. The improvements made would have had to be made for public school purposes.

Mr. DAWSON said it seemed to him that the inspector was bound to make the Board build a new building. He came every year and caused extra expense on the present building. Mr. Dawson said he thought it would be well to make an addition of four rooms to the present building and submit the question of building an Institute to the people.

TO KEEP DOWN THE DEBT.

Mr. KENDRY referred to the improvements which they had been forced to make two years ago and said the strongest objection seemed to be to the Institute and Public school being in the one building and the lack of accommodation. Mr. Kendry said the town had been to great expenditure lately in encouraging industries and to build an Institute costing $40,000 would injure the standing of the town. If the suggestion of making the four-room addition could be carried out, he thought it would be well to economize if possible at the present time.

NO PATCHWORK POLICY.

Dr. BOUCHER said they all supported the Council in bringing industries here but they should remember that if they brought new industries they had an increased population and would have to supply increased school accommodation. The attendance at the Institute had increased greatly and if they desired to have efficient Institute work they should have the two schools in separate buildings. He thought it was false economy to pursue the patch-work policy. It seemed to him that to build a new building would be the course of true economy.

Mr. DAVIDSON asked if the building of the four rooms would relieve the Institute building of the Public School pupils.

Mr. DUMBLE replied that it would not. Two rooms only would go out of the present building and the other two new rooms would be filled up to relieve Mr. Smith's and other overcrowded rooms. They had to substitute the Smead-Dowd system for the present system of heating, which was condemned, and alterations would have to be made to the roof of the present building. These changes would have to be made any way whether the Institute building was erected or not.

WOULD HANDICAP THE TOWN.

Mr. DAVIDSON said it was gratifying to hear of the increase in the attendance at the schools showing a growth in population, but they should remember that an expenditure of $40,000 would handicap the town. Next year sewerage would entail a large expenditure, the annual demand for the schools, the school debt of $50,000, with the other claims which had to be met made a rate of about 13½ mills back of which they only had the railway bonds and the income from the town building, which only amounted to about 1 mill. If the rate was increased to over 15 mills they could not claim as they always had that this was a cheap town to live in. The Council wanted to keep itself free so that it could meet any such company as the Edison if it came along. As far as a $40,000 Institute building was concerned he individually was opposed to it.

Mr. DUMBLE held that $25,000 would build a new Institute. He was surprised, he said, to hear his friend talking of the town being in a poor state. He thought it was in the best condition of any town in Canada.

Mr. DAVIDSON—And we want to keep it that way.

Mr. DUMBLE went on to refer to the favorable financial condition of the town and spoke of school debentures which had been issued and were gradually increasing, so he claimed.

This Messrs. DAVIDSON and LANGFORD indignantly denied and a little warm discussion was rising on the matter.

Mr. HAMILTON, however, dispelled any sign of heated discussion. He said he felt that they were not gaining anything by bringing up old matters. He went on to say that he thought they might get along with the four-room addition. It was easy to run into debt and it might be well to go slow, for he knew the Council had been under great expense for the past few years. He inquired what was the feeling of the Council on the matter.

WAIT FOR A LITTLE.

Mr. DAVIDSON said he had not talked with many of the Councillors, but individually he thought if they could tide over two or three years the Council would go hand in hand with the Board in building a new Institute, which would be required. In two years the town would be relieved of $72,000 of its debt and would then be in a better position.

Mr. KENDRY thought it might be better to wait, for he believed the town would have many new manufactories during the next few years which would put them in a better position to erect a more suitable Institute in keeping with the town.

Mr. DAWSON inquired if the new form, or six room addition, could not be erected on McDonnell st. and thus relieve the crowding of the pupils together as was complained of. As a member of the Council, he would always support education, but he thought with the debts that in a few years $40,000 expenditure would carry, which he did not think it would at present. He would at present favor the addition.

Mr. DUMBLE said there was no cut-and-dried plan and any suggestion would be received. He did not favor the "tiding over" policy.

Mr. MELDRUM did not favor the addition, nor yet did he want to increase the town's debt. While he admitted an Institute building was required, yet he did not think it would be wise to press it this year. Next year or in two years with increased population he believed the expenditure would carry. It would be wise with the sewerage and other expenditures in view to go slow.

Mr. KENDRY thought the expenditure in an addition would be a good expenditure as it would be all required in time for public school purposes.

Principal SMITH, in answer to a question, thought the separate building on McDonnel-st. would be the better, as it would take the little children away from the present building. They wanted two rooms at once.

ANOTHER IN FAVOR.

Mr. DENNE said if a new six room school was going to cost $6,000 he thought they might as well, if arrangements could be made with the county, get the old burying ground and spend $20,000 on a building.

Mr. DUMBLE again pressed a wide policy as they were a municipality. He opposed making an addition, filling up the present grounds, but rather erect an Institute building.

Mr. CAHILL suggested that the two schemes be submitted to the people. No matter which way they faced the question they were met by difficulties. Taking all things into consideration it was a question if it would not be better to adopt the wider policy and erect a new Institute. A few years ago he had opposed High School education, but now he would put nothing in the way of any man's child getting the best possible education. Personally he favored the larger scheme of erecting a new building.

THE RESULT IS A MOTION.

After considerable further desultory discussion a motion was suggested by Mr. Dumble asking the Council to submit a by-law to the people providing for $25,000 to build an addition to the Central school building and a new Institute inside of two years.

It was agreed by all the Councillors that such a by-law at this time would be defeated and the motion was not put.

Finally it was moved by Mr. HAMILTON, seconded by Mr. FERGUSON,—That with a view of providing for the urgent demand for increased public school accommodation four rooms be added to the small public school on the Central school grounds, and that the Smead-Dowd system of heating be introduced into the entire building.

This motion was carried.

On motion Messrs. Bradburn, McBain, Hamilton, Ferguson and Dr. Boucher were appointed a committee to secure specifications and plans for the addition to be submitted at a special meeting of the Board.

The meeting then adjourned.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

Cumming showed no signs of nervousness and sat quietly reading some letters. His friends, however, plainly betrayed their apprehension. The defendants were also uneasy and anxious. When the verdict was announced, Sir William was marvelously cool. He was really to all outward appearances the most uninterested spectator in court. Lord Middleton, his relative, who is reputed to have furnished the money for the prosecution, was quite the reverse. When the verdict was announced Sir William coolly donned his coat and hat and strolled away with Lord Middleton. The charge of Lord Coleridge is regarded as unnecessarily severe against the plaintiff. The evidence was sufficiently one-sided without His Lordship's throwing his personal interpretation into the scale against Cumming. The charge is pronounced by lawyers as practically an instruction to find a verdict for the defendants.

Sir William Gordon Cumming held a consultation with Sir E. Clarke, Mr. Gill and his solicitor in the course of the evening before proceeding home, where he denied himself to all comers. A group of friends still adhering to him met at the Turf Club in expectation of seeing him. Since the scandal became public Cumming has not been seen at the Marlborough or Guards Club of which he is a member, but has occasionally visited the Turf Circle. To-night the members of the Turf Club seemed undecided how to act. Personally, Cumming is liked at the club. He has an honorable record throughout all his dealings with members of the club, and many are adverse to his expulsion. The division of public feeling upon the verdict will be largely a class division, the aristocratic circles siding with the decision and approving Lord Coleridge's charge, while the mass of the public sympathize with Cumming and accuse the judge of gross partiality. The hissing with which the gallery of the court saluted the verdict was repeated outside by an excited crowd thronging the corridors. The defendants on leaving the court were surrounded by a mob and numbers of insulting allusions were addressed to them until they reached the protection of their carriages. Mr. Lewis, their solicitor, had to fly for safety to the adjacent Chancery Court, where he escaped by climbing over a bench. Just before leaving Mrs. Wilson telegraphed the result to the Prince of Wales, adding congratulations. The popular reaction is largely due to Sir E. Clarke's outspoken and fearless address. When he appeared in the lobby of the House of Commons to-night he was greeted with congratulations, on the ground that he had done the best that could be done against the enormous difficulties. His friends fear that the increased distinction he has acquired in the trial will not commend him to the court.

A group of Radicals in the House of Commons, after a private conference, have decided to raise a discussion with special reference to the Prince of Wales, by motions upon the army estimates. Mr. Morton has already given notice that in committee on the estimates he will move a reduction of the salary of the commander in chief, in order to raise a general debate on the case.

As Sir William Gordon Cumming entered his carriage the crowd raised a loud cheer. The demonstration was all the more noticeable from the fact that the Wilsons had driven off a minute before amid silence. The effect of the verdict is that Sir William must be cashiered from the army and expelled from the clubs.

Sir William Gordon Cumming is about 43 younger perhaps, and a lieutenant-colonel in the Scots Guards, one of the crack regiments of the British service, their special duty to guard the person of the sovereign. There are all kinds of traditions and legends twined around his family tree, but as blood goes, blood in direct descent and alliances, the family of Gordon Cumming is better than that of the Prince of Wales. There was a De Comyn who was killed at the battle of Alnwick. Malcolm was also slain in the siege of Alnwick Castle, and De Comyns at his side—so we may know there was fighting blood in his family 800 years ago. There was likewise a Bruce—dear to all Scotchmen—Robert the Bruce, a renowned sovereign who died in 1329 to the lasting sorrow of Scotland. He had a daughter, Margaret, who married a Sutherland, and among other matters of detail was the production through various ancestries of Sir William Gordon-Cumming. Likewise through another ancestor there is a link with James I and by these ties, interlaced with Austrian archdukes, the royal Stuarts, the Plantagenets and other species of princes to a degree quite incalculable. The coat of arms is a complicated affair, his motto, "Sans Crainte—Without Fear"—borne likewise by Baronet Tyrell, the same family as did service to Crook Backed Richard at Bosworth field. There is a crest "courage" and quarterings of the Gordons, Badenochs, Setons, Frasers and Sutherlands.

Cumming is an inborn sportsman. The Highland blood tingled in every vein. He scorned a part of the forest and the moor. He had dared the tiger in the jungle, the elephant in the Indian forests, and traced the Rocky Mountains and the Mexican Cordilleras in his craving for sport. He has won fame as a gallant soldier in the army, his daring deeds in the Soudan and Africa being matters of history.

New Era in the Sudbury District.

NICKEL CITY, June 8.—The opening of the works of the Algoma Reduction Co. here marks a new era in the history of mining in this district. The works are under the able management of Mr. R. H. Ahn, who has identified himself with the prosperity of the district. The ore to be treated will come mainly from the townships of Fairbank and Creighton and from the rich deposits of gold quartz in the neighborhood of Garson Lake and the Vermillion River. In several places the veins have been stripped, showing immense bodies of auriferous quartz. A notable feature is the presence of streaks of galena, carrying both gold and silver. The veins occur in a Talcose formation in the Huronian rocks in that part of Algoma. Geologists pronounce the rock accompanying the gold-bearing quartz to be a schist. The country is somewhat hilly and the means of communication are not yet good. The Vermillion River is navigable, but there are several formidable obstructions between Nickel City and Larchwood, principally the McPherson and Stobie Falls. These, however, furnish fine water powers which will be utilized. Negotiations are pending for putting in a complete electrical plant on the property of W. D. McPherson, the Toronto solicitor, the power to be supplied by the McPherson Falls on his property.

Unparalleled Butcheries in Port-au-Prince

NEW YORK, June 8.—A despatch from Port-au-Prince says rumors of a revolution against President Hypolite having reached the ears of the chief executive he caused the arrest of about 80 suspected persons. Thursday, May 8 (Corpus Christi), was the national holiday, and it having been reported that Hypolite in order to effectively terrify the populace, had ordered a gatling gun to be taken to the prison and the 80 persons summarily executed, the friends of the prisoners organized and freed all the prisoners, 250 in all. Then by order of the president began a shocking assassination. Between 40 and 53 citizens in all were shot down.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Advices from the fourth quinquennial Universal Postal Union Congress, now in session at Vienna, say the long-desired accession of the Australian colonies has been effected. This means a reduction of more than 50 per cent. in the rates of postage to those countries, the Postal Union rate being only 5 cents per half ounce for letters and 2 cents for postal cards.

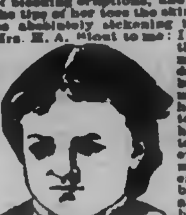
AWFUL SKIN DISEASE.

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.



A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from her hips to the tips of her toes the skin was as raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. E. A. Stout to me: I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospects of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she is entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

IT IS NEWS TO MANY WOMEN

WHAT IS ?

THE "SURPRISE WAY" of washing clothes with "SURPRISE SOAP" without boiling or scalding a single piece—snowy white linens and cottons—colored goods brighter, woollen softer and a saving of half the hard work. A great many women wash this way with these results—you can too. "SURPRISE" is not a high priced Soap. Ask your grocer.

READ the Directions on the Wrapper. | "SURPRISE SOAP" can be used for any and every purpose a Soap is used.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

AT TURNBULL'S.

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of Dress Goods that were formerly from 20 to 50 cts. a yard. They are odd lines and are now being cleared out at 15 cts. a yard. They can only last a short time. Call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

THE PREMIER'S FUNERAL.

THE CEREMONIES INAUGURATED AT NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The Immense Crowds Necessitates Considerable Delay — The Remains are Further Exposed and are Then Removed to St. Alban's Church—Sent By Special Train to Kingston.

OTTAWA, June 10.—The mortal remains of the late Sir John A. Macdonald were borne another step to their long resting place to day. The body lay in state in the Senate Chamber all morning. Thousands from all parts of Canada viewed those well-known features for the last time. Ottawa itself was in mourning. Business was practically suspended. Stores, dwellings and public buildings in all parts of the city were draped in mourning. At noon, the casket was closed and preparation for the funeral procession was made. Col. Sir Casimir Gzowski, A.D.C. to the Queen, laid upon the coffin a magnificent wreath at the request of Her Majesty. Shortly after noon the funeral procession was formed. It proceeded from the eastern gate of the grounds by way of Elgin, Maria, Theodore, King and Daly-streets to St. Alban's Church, where the funeral service of the Church of England was performed. The procession took precisely half an hour to pass a given point. An immense throng gathered to see the cortege wend its way to the church. The streets along the route were packed and buildings and offices were crowded. Returning, the procession proceeded along Daly, Cumberland, Rideau, Wellington and Queen-street west to the C.P.R. depot.

For the greater part of the day it had been oppressively hot, but about three o'clock a change came. The sky became rapidly darker. Immense black clouds rolled up. Just as the head of the procession passed the main entrance to the Parliament buildings the rain began to fall. A terrific peal of thunder was heard and the spectators scattered in all directions. Those who remained in the procession were thoroughly drenched.

The cortege started in this order:

1. Major Sherwood, Chief Marshal.
2. Squad of Dominion Police.
3. Squad of dragoon guards, four abreast.
4. Carriages for the pallbearers.
5. Six bearers chosen from the Dominion Police.
6. Band of Governor-General's Foot Guards.
7. Band of 43rd Battalion.
8. Militia officers in uniform.

51. Citizens generally.

Among the militia officers were Major Delamere, Major Sankey, Capt. Murray, Capt. Macdonald of the Queen's Own, Lieut. Ewart of the Royal Grenadiers.

As the funeral cortege entered the sacred edifice it was met at the door by the officiating clergy, Rev. J. J. Bogert and Archdeacon Lauder, each of whom wore a black cassock, white surplice and a green stole. The surpliced choir, 40 in number, lined up the aisle and chanted the solemn sentences of the funeral service. All that was mortal of the late Sir John Macdonald was borne into the church and up the centre aisle to the chancel, the casket being deposited on the catafalque. The rector said, "I am the resurrection and the life"; then the choir moved towards the altar, the organist playing Chopin's "Grand Funeral March." Next was sung the psalms, "I Said, I Will Take Heed in My Ways" and "Lord, Thou Hast Been Our Dwelling place in all Generations."

As Archdeacon Lauder, as Bishop's commissary, read the lesson the congregation was hushed to silence and listened with mournful attention. They were from I. Corinthians, XV. chapter. The choir then sang, "Now the Laborer's Task is Done." Then came the sentences according to the Anglican form, beginning with, "Man that is born of woman," followed by the anthem by Franz Abt, "Oh Lord, Most Holy," with responses by the choir. The solo was rendered by the youngest member of the choir, Master Robert Gormully, a lad of barely 11 years, who sang in a clear soprano tone the most difficult composition. The sentences were read by the Rev. J. J. Bogert, the choir rendering the responses in beautiful harmony. During the prayers the scene was most impressive and will long be remembered by all who were present. At the conclusion a seven-fold amen was rendered, and as the large audience left the building to allow of the cortege being formed the choir rendered a nunc dimittis. The six stalwart constables raised the casket to their shoulders and the tones of the organ pealed forth the Dead March in Saul, and the procession re-formed on its way to the Union depot.

The clergymen present and assisting in the choral service were Venerable Archdeacon Lauder, Venerable Archdeacon Jones of Kingston, Canon Kingsford of Montreal, Revs. Bogert, Garrett, Muckleston, Mackay, Pollard, Snowdon, Hannington, Nesbitt, King, Smith, Gorman. The committal was omitted by Archdeacon Lauder at the service to-day, it being arranged that Archdeacon Jones shall pronounce it at the funeral in Kingston to-morrow.

The church was most artistically decorated. The massive stone sides of the memorial window in the chancel were one mass of roses, tulips, hyacinths and other flowers embedded in smilax. This window was the gift of Lady Macdonald in memory of her mother, Mrs. [illegible] Bernard, wife of ex-Governor Bernard of Jamaica, and represents the birth, crucifixion and ascension of Christ. The altar was set with bluish-purple hangings trimmed with white silk with two bouquets in gold vases standing at either end. The face of the altar was surrounded with rows of tropical ferns, palms and similar hot-house plants, rich in their dark colors, there being about 100 of them. On the side windows were four heavy wreaths of smilax. The two candelabra were also wreathed in smilax. Along the organ above each choir were long festoons of smilax with wreaths surrounding each gaselier. The reading desks were wrapped with bluish purple trimmings and wreaths of smilax, while the base of the chancel contained two rows of tropical plants. The pulpit was surrounded with purple velvet, in front of which drooped a bannerette of the same shade with a centre of old gold bearing the Greek lexicon, under which the casket rested, clothed in Imperial purple, the four pillars being draped in the centre and around the outside of each embossed wreaths of laurel in bullion gold being entwined. The inside of each pillar was similarly treated with oak leaves and acorns. At the juncture of each pillar with the canopy there hung bannerets of purple and gold bearing a centre design of the Greek lexicon. The sides of the canopy were covered with a gold azure, the top of black crape and the interior of pleated purple. At the base of each pillar were fine specimens of palms. The casket rested on mahogany pedestals in gold and black.

Sir John's seat during his lifetime was immediately in front of the reading desk in the second tier and contained neither cushion nor hassock, an indication of the dead Premier's religious tastes. To-day the seat was filled by a structure covered with purple and old gold festooned in front, a wreath of smilax on the entry side, and on top a superb cross fully two feet in size, composed of white and cream roses, tulips and immortelles, a gift from the young ladies of St. Alban's.

The font was filled with superb tropical plants of the Yucca palm and ferns, and adorned with lilies and smilax. The whole building presented an effective spectacle, touching in its sombre shades, but beautiful in all its floral loveliness.

Embarked for Kingston.

After the service, which lasted nearly an hour, the cortege re-formed and proceeded to the Union Station, where the remains were placed on a special train and borne to Kingston.

The funeral train consisted of one buffet car for representatives of the press, Government private cars "Ottawa" and "Cumberland," for Cabinet Ministers, Canadian Pacific car No. 417, specially fitted up for the remains; Canadian Pacific private car "Metapedia," for Lady Macdonald and family. All the cars were heavily draped.

Mr. John Ross Robertson of Toronto, Grand Master, Mr. Otto Klotz of Preston, Past Grand Master, and Col. A. Stevenson, Montreal, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons, represented that body, of which the late Sir John Macdonald was an old member. At the time of his death he was the representative of the Grand Lodge of England in the Grand Lodge of Canada.

AT KINGSTON.

Notwithstanding the Late Hour Thousands Assemble at the Station.

KINGSTON, June 10.—Kingston is in gloom to-night. Its streets are bright with lights, but its buildings are black with crape and mourning emblems. Nearly every business man has hung out the weeds of woe. Thousands of people are out to view the solemn scene. Some of the work is most artistic. Many windows are in black, relieved by purple bunches and busts or pictures of Sir John. The hotels are crowded and hundreds are now en route from all quarters of the country. It was 10.20 o'clock when the funeral train rolled into the station in front of the City Hall. The great crowds grew silent while the police force carried the body of the dead chieftain across the way into the magnificently draped hall. Their burden was deposited under a catafalque in the centre of the building. The catafalque was supported on four posts, with a four-sided roof slanting down them. It is covered with velvet, trimmed with heavy folds of cashmere and has ostrich feathers on the four corners and surmounting the peak. The floor is covered with white canvas with black border, and long streams depend from the ceiling to the various corners and centre of the walls on the side and end. The effect of the light reflecting on the oil paintings and tinted walls sets off the dark surroundings to a remarkable degree. The walls are looped with black velvet dropping below the gilt frames of the ex-mayors and about the windows. Between each frame depends a tassel of the same material neatly finished. The doors are covered with black, while the same material is floated above them. The stage has two raised platforms covered, upon which rest the myriads of floral tributes brought from Ottawa. The life-size picture of the deceased Premier as he appeared in 1868 stands in the centre of the stage. It is entwined with black and beneath it the words, "Our late beloved Premier." The outside of the hall is elegantly draped from basement to dome.

The people uncovered their heads as the heavily covered coffin passed through the lines of "A" Battery men. The Cabinet members followed the body into the hall and the doors were closed. Soon after great streams of people viewed the remains. A guard of the Royal Military College was placed over the corpse and they were relieved at stated hours during the night. Great crowds are around the city and to-morrow will witness one of the greatest pageants this city has ever seen. Every arrangement is completed. From 8 o'clock until noon thousands of persons will view the body and at 2 o'clock the funeral occurs. It will be headed by cavalrymen 8 abreast. The guards on each side of the state lines will be composed of local forces in single file, the infantry men with arms reversed.

A HUMAN PINCUSHION.

Her Fate Will Prove a Warning to Dressmakers.

YORK, Pa., June 10.—Lillie Miller, daughter of Henry Miller of this city, died to-day after suffering with a peculiar malady that for a time baffled the physicians. The young woman was a seamstress and wore very tight-fitting habiliments. She had a habit of sticking pins and needles in her dress. Many of the needles and pins worked their way into her body and came out in the upper part of the arm and body. The deceased was about 25 years of age, and had continued the habit for the past three years, until it resulted in dropsy and blood-poisoning, which finally ended her life.

Horrible Murder in Yorkshire.

LEEDS, June 10.—Barbara Waterhouse, aged 5, a quarryman's daughter, mysteriously disappeared from home last Saturday. At midnight last night the police discovered her body wrapped in a bundle lying in the street close to the town hall. The abdomen had been ripped open so that the intestines protruded and the legs and arms had been almost severed from the body and were covered with deep gashes.

Found Guilty of Bribery.

NEW ORLEANS, June 10.—McCrystal, Detective O'Malley's assistant, was to-day found guilty of attempting to bribe McCabe, a tales juror in the Hennessey murder trial.

SIR WILLIAM MARRIED.

CUMMING NOT MUCH PUT OUT BY THE TRIAL.

An American Girl Who Did Not Believe in the Guilt of the Baronet was Quietly Married to Him Yesterday—Comments of the London Press on the Verdict of the Jury.

LONDON, June 10.—All the world and his wife are talking of the verdict pronounced yesterday in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, which verdict, in so many words, declares that Sir William Gordon Cumming, until now an "officer and a gentleman," is socially and militarily degraded for having cheated at cards in a game of baccarat played at Tranby Croft last September.

There is no getting away from the fact that Lord Coleridge's charge was dead against Cumming. Perhaps, considering the unanimity of the evidence, this could not have been otherwise, but Cumming's friends hoped Lord Coleridge would at least allow some portion of the airy structure of defence, which Sir Edward Clarke erected with such consummate skill, to stand. It was a vain hope, for Lord Coleridge demolished it with as much ease and as little compunction as a child in the nursery kicks over its house of toy-bricks. Cumming evidently saw from the outset how the stream was running. He lost for a few moments the air of easy composure which he had maintained throughout the trial, turned in his seat, looked steadily for several seconds at each member of the jury, then he shut his teeth, folded his arms and awaited his fate with the stoicism of a trained soldier.

If the talk of the jurors after leaving the court room is to be believed their minds were made up before Lord Coleridge began to say anything at all. His charge was a mere waste of time so far as influencing the verdict was concerned. On the first ballot every juror but one declared unhesitatingly for the defendants, and this one frankly admitted that he could scarcely give a verdict for the plaintiff in face of such evidence, but intimated that he would like to discover some way of letting Cumming down easy. The jury was out only 13 minutes.

A quite different reception awaited Solicitor Lewis and the defendants in the action. As they came from the court-room into the corridor the crowd hissed, hooted and jostled so menacingly that they all dodged into Justice North's court until arrangements could be made to get them out of the building without further annoyance. This was a small affair of itself, but it accurately represents the popular feeling over the degrading spectacle the Prince and his swell set have made of themselves in this case. Without attempting to shut their eyes to the evidence that Cumming cheated, they believe that the trap that the Prince and his associates subsequently laid for him was unsportsmanlike and unfriendly.

The feeling was shown in a marked manner at Ascot to-day, when the news reached there. By some blunder the first despatch received there said that the verdict was in Cumming's favor. When this news reached Tattersall's inclosure, all the sporting men cheered, especially the bookmakers who had put their money on this result or on a disagreement. A few minutes later, when the first report was corrected by a despatch stating that Cumming had lost his case, the jeers of the crowd were too plainly audible to the Prince as he chatted with his friends in the royal inclosure.

Now that the seal of silence is removed from the press and public, the Prince will soon learn what the people of England think of the part that royalty has played in this Tranby-Croft business. Already one religious body in Wales has pronounced its protest against the position in which the heir to the throne is revealed.

"Tay Pay" As a Moralist.

T. P. O'Connor leads off, for the democratic press, with the following strong language in his new newspaper:

"It is not, of course, this mere single game in one country-house that accounts for the feeling of dismay in some circles, of disgust in others, which this case is exciting. It is that this small incident is a symptom sidelight into the whole region of darkness. Beyond doubt the society of London is not improving; on the contrary, it is deteriorating, and deteriorating more every day. Gambling is more rampant; adventurers with money gained heaven knows how, find easier acceptance and more social distinction. Wealth is not only getting more vulgar but more potent, and finally there is a profound change in the way in which society in the upper classes, or in the middle classes that are trying to reach the upper crust, looks at some of the worst breaches of private morality. It really does look as if we were coming to a reign of adventurers and adventuresses in London. There will always be vice: there will always be folly; young men will ruin themselves at the card table; their elders will take advantage of their youth and of their inexperience; society will always be ready to welcome to its drawing-room the same kind of women that, in other circles and under different circumstances, is sent to the pavement and ends in the river. But all these things in such a country as England depend very much on the example set by those on the throne and close to it."

England's Degradation.

"It is a sad confession to have to make, but undoubtedly it is true that servility to royalty has reached a pitch in England that is a degradation to the country and that marks us out among all people of the world as a nation of snobs, toadies and tuft-hunters. We see ladies of the highest station ready to perform for the Queen duties that should be left to cooks and chambermaids. Our most venerated statesmen, in the evening of their days, are compelled to make long journeys for the purpose of going through empty formalities, and the Sovereign is considered justified in drawing the most magnificent Civil List in the whole world and at the same time neglecting nearly every duty of sovereignty. Of late years the Prince of Wales has succeeded in establishing over social London a despotism, the completeness of which nobody outside society can fully appreciate, and it is not a despotism for the good. He seems to surround himself, by preference, not with the best but with the weakest elements of society.

"It is time some one should call attention to the moral deterioration which is coming over London and English society as a result. We live in days when even crowns and dynasties are not above discussion and are not safe from destruction. The springtides of popular revolt have carried on their wreckage before now—the tinsel, the [illegible], the shattered woodwork of thrones—and the end and disaster always came suddenly from a slight cause, a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]."

The Post says: "We do [illegible]

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Begole, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Phebe Mosher, 68 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

A NATIONAL MEMORIAL.

The Toronto Empire makes a suggestion that will meet with a hearty response from the people of Canada. It is that some national memorial should attest in a tangible form to future generations the life and work of Sir John Macdonald. Parliament will doubtless, as on former occasions, make an appropriation to that end, but the people of the Dominion ought to, by free will offerings, erect a memorial to him whom we mourn. In order that it may be a truly national memorial, the Empire suggests that subscriptions as low as 25 cents should be taken and that the limit should be $10. The response already made to this suggestion shows that the people endorse it, and persons in Peterborough who desire to join in the memorial may send their subscriptions to the Review Office and they will be forwarded. The following subscriptions have been received at this office:—

REVIEWS.

St. Nicholas.—The opening poem in the June St. Nicholas is by Mr. C. P. Cranch, whose Last of the Huggermuggers will be recalled by the fathers and mothers of the present generation of the magazine's readers as one of the greatest delights of their childhood. John Burrough's Talk About Wild Flowers will show botanists how to make their science understanded of the people, and may also suggest to them a few particulars upon which fuller information is desirable. Harry Fenn's strong and accurate drawing will delight those who see no reason why flower drawings should be insipid. Josephine Pollard tells, in A Free Circus, all about the baby elephant which lately walked upstairs and insisted upon sharing the apartments of a quiet colored family in New York city. In A City Playground Frank M. Chapman describes the sports of city children in the streets. Sophie Swett shows how uncomfortable is the lot of the sister who is Being Responsible for Tuffy, but the cheerful ending of the story will repay the sympathy expended upon the hapless Tudie, who lost all her stock in trade while trying to rescue a kitten. We can only refer to the significant little sketch, Why Bees Make Honey, by Mrs. Rollins, and the ingenious Shadow Lesson, by M. H. Ballard, before calling attention to the bright poems by the late Emily Dickinson, by Margaret Johnston, by Elizabeth L. Gould and Mary A. Mason. The Swimming-Hole Stories, two of which appear in this number, promise to be delightfully humorous and to recall many good times to the boys. Besides the features already mentioned, the three serials, the departments and the beautiful pictures must not be overlooked.

The Great Benefit

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidney and liver.

The Picnic! The Great Picnic!!

The picnic of the season. Already the sod has been prepared and the walks and beautifully shaded groves of the St. Joseph's Hospital grounds in Ashburnham wear an inviting appearance. We understand that two of our best local baseball teams have been and are practicing hard, both eager to win in the great game which will take place on that date. Booths are being erected where "lemonade as cold as ice and twice as nice, and ice cream nicer still" will be vended out to the thirsty and temperate public. We once more repeat it, make no other engagement until you see the programme of the Cathedral picnic on the 1st of July. d138tf

Sudden Changes.

A cold, or exposure, may cause the poisonous acids in the blood to clog the circulation. This is Rheumatism. Clark's Lightning Liniment will stop the pain at once. It should be taken both internally and externally if the attack is severe, and it affords instant relief. If the pain appears again, it should be met with the same treatment, until a cure is effected. This wonderful preparation has worked some remarkable cures among Rheumatic sufferers. Where once tried, it is always used after. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

CANADIAN ARCTIC REGIONS.

Adventurer Pike's Sojourn in the Far and Frozen North.

Washburton Pike, after two years' wanderings in the most northerly Canadian territory, arrived in Alberta last week, and was interviewed by a Calgary Tribune reporter. The report said:

"Leaving Calgary in June, 1889, Mr. Pike proceeded to Athabasca Landing and from there to Fort Resolution, on the Slave, which is situated about 300 miles northwest of Edmonton. Here he secured the services of two Indian guides and helpers and started out for the Barren Lands in search of musk ox, cariboo and other large game, "packing" provisions and wood via dog trains, and altogether had a very successful hunt, killing about forty musk ox and as many cariboo as they were in a position to handle. On this trip Mr. Pike went as far north as Fish river, this being the river on which Franklin's first expedition to the North Pole was lost. He experienced many adventures and says that when an Esquimaux hut was discovered his assistants at once wanted to return to their own land and showed every sign of being very much afraid of the Arctic inhabitants. When asked to describe the Barren Lands, Mr. Pike said that it was an immense tract of barren rock on which grew a kind of moss and shrub on which the deer that run by the thousand feed, and appear to be very fond of. There are numerous lakes among the rocky bluffs, the waters freezing in the cold season to the depth of from seven to nine feet. He reports the temperature as low as 60 degrees in the winter, but the summer months July and August, he says are very hot. Six months during the year the sun never shines on those barren parts. Mr. Pike carried nothing to comfort him in this cold region save one pair of blankets, and never used any more wood at one time than was sufficient to boil his kettle. He reports moose very scarce, but says there are large numbers of musk ox and thousands of cariboo deer, the latter taking to the woods in winter. Mr. Pike, we are told, is one of the few white men who have succeeded in killing the ox and the only white man who has ever trod the path of the Franklin sufferers on the Fish river. In the fall, or rather winter, he returned to the fort on Slave lake and remained until the following spring, when he again set out on a second hunt which was alike successful. Returning to Resolution in September, 1890, he started to travel by canoe to McLeod lake, a Mr. Johns and two guides accompanying him. It was his intention on this occasion to cross the mountains into British Columbia and to make his way south in that province to the C.P.R. In November they reached Hudson Hope, at which place they remained until the 20th, when abandoning their canoes they packed what provisions they thought would be sufficient to carry them to McLeod lake and started out on foot, and passed through the Findlay rapids in December. After journeying for some twelve days what must have been as they supposed on the McLeod river they were on what afterwards turned out to be the Nation. Here the guides admitted they were lost, and nothing remained for the party to do but to retrace their steps, which they did with but enough provisions for a few days. Now came the trial of their lives. In two days they were out of grub, and to make a long story short, they starved fourteen days. Mr. Pike absolutely refuses to say anything of their tortures during this time, but we have gleaned many facts from those who saw them on their return to the rapids and who were compelled to feed them as they would a babe. We, like Mr. Pike, do not care to say anything of the tortures we have learned were endured; but as an example of the terrible state of affairs we will say that some hundreds of miles were tramped with bare feet on the ice, and that their frozen condition when rescued was simply horrible, while some of the party were so reduced from cold and hunger as to be totally helpless. It was afterwards learned that they were but a short distance from the lake, and that had they been in a position to have understood the location, their destination could have been reached in very short time. Still Mr. Pike is to-day a jolly man, and when asked about his northern trip will cheerfully say that he had not too bad a time. Travel during this trip was almost entirely done on foot, dog trains being used for the carrying of provisions and wood. There are no laws in this country but those of the Hudson's bay company, and business is carried on entirely without the aid of money, their currency being so many skins—a skin being valued at 50 cents. Mr. Pike arrived in Calgary on Sunday evening last and was accompanied by Mr. Johns, who, we believe, has been a resident of the north for about twelve years. Mr. Brick, the son of a Methodist missionary of Peace river, was also one of the party, and has gone through to the coast. Mr. Pike will have no doubt many an interesting story to relate to his friends, who have not heard from him for twenty-two months, on his arrival home, and we are sure he will have many a willing listener."

A Railway Across the Great Desert.

French scientific men and engineers are discussing the feasibility of a railroad across the desert of Sahara to develop the North African provinces that France holds. A more wonderful triumph of skill, and one more far-reaching in its benefits than any Sahara railway can be, has been the introduction of that great remedy, Paine's Celery Compound—nature's great bridge or highway for the safe passage of humanity from the shores of sickness and disease to the land of health, joy and peace. By this triumph of medical skill the victims of nervous disorders, clouded brain, insomnia, headaches, neuralgia, dyspepsia, moroseness and morbidness, are enabled to shake off the tightening grasp of disease, and cross over to a new state and condition of perfect health, robustness, perfect digestive vigor, and long life.

Sufferers who have not yet tried this justly popular bridge of escape, are warned not to tarry too long in the land of uncertainty and suffering; else their condition may become so hopeless, that no earthly power will be able to rescue.

COUNTY COURT RISES.

The Galway Assault Case—Prisoners Discharged—John Gilman Fails to Appear.

The attention of the County Court was occupied all day yesterday with the Galway housebreaking case, in which Thos. Humphries and Wm. Colter were charged with having on the night of the 27th of May broke into and stole from the house of George Booth in the township of Galway.

The particulars of the case as far as the evidence of the prosecution went, was fully presented last week at the time of the preliminary trial and are still fresh in the minds of the readers. It will be remembered that on the night of the 27th about ten o'clock, Booth said, a gang of twenty-five or thirty men with blackened faces attacked his house while his wife and he were in bed. They were driven upstairs by the shower of stones and then the raiders forced open the doors, came upstairs and carried or dragged the frightened couple outside, calling at the same time to "bring on the rail." Booth recognized Humphries and Colter, the latter by his voice and the former by his general appearance.

Yesterday Booth and his wife told the story of attack the same as at the preliminary trial. Robert Wilson, a neighbor, to whose house the terrified couple had fled, testified to them coming to his place that night and seeing the wrecked state of the house next morning. Richard Stewart, the owner of the house, also gave evidence in regard to the damaged condition of the the house the next day. County Constable Cochrane, who arrested the two prisoners, told of the arrest and of the attempt the two young men had made to avoid being caught. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution.

Mr. W. A. Stratton defended the prisoners. The defence was to prove an alibi and to blacken the name of Booth and his wife. Henry Colter swore to having seen Humphries at his barn about 9.30 o'clock, about a mile and a half from Booth's. Elgin Colter testified he was with Humphries on the night in question from 9.30 to 10.10 o'clock. Elliott English left Thos. Humphries, he swore, at 10.10. John Colter, father of one of the prisoners, swore his son was in the house at 10 o'clock, and Andrew Lambert testified that he was at Colter's house when he came in. John Lambert swore he had walked home with Wm. Colter and had talked with him until after 10 o'clock. Josiah Lambert swore that he and John were at Booth's on the Sunday night previous to the attack and that Wm. Colter was not with them as Booth had sworn.

After the counsel and judge had addressed the jury they retired, and after an absence of over half an hour they brought in a verdict of not guilty.

THE GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

Yesterday morning the Grand Jury brought in their presentment and were discharged. The presentment read as follows:—

To His Honor Judge Weller:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOR,—The Grand Jury desire to thank Your Honor for your explanations regarding the cases that were to come before us, as they have been of great assistance to us in the performance of our duty.

We visited, as is customary, the gaol and inspected the premises. They were in excellent order throughout and reflected credit on the gaol management.

We regretted to see persons whose only crimes were age and poverty confined in the prison and we would urge upon the Town and County Councils the necessity for securing a proper place for such unfortunate people.

We, with Your Honor and the people of Canada generally, deeply regret the death of the Premier of our Dominion, as we feel that the death of any of our leading men is a deep loss to the country, and this is especially so when the one called away has been so long connected with the councils of the country, so pre-eminent among our legislators, so distinguished by marked abilities and was one who had served his country so faithfully.

WM. COLLINS,
Foreman.

Peterborough, June 10th, 1891.

This morning the two prisoners were arraigned to answer to the charge of assault in connection with the same excitement. They were found not guilty without taking any evidence and were discharged.

John Gilman, who was charged with the seduction of Hannah Huffman, failed to appear when he was called and it is said he has left for parts unknown. The girl was in court. The case was laid over.

This ended the docket and the Court rose.

Monthly Weather Notes.

Mr. Thos. Telford writes:—How pleasant to survey the landscape with the eye, no matter in what direction turned, at every turn the rich green foliage of the forest, the fading blossoms on our fruit trees and bushes as their place is taken by their fast forming respective fruits, with the fast budding and shooting forth of our gardens and fields, all bespeak a kind Providence who watcheth over and supplyeth the wants and necessities of man. Although the draught has somewhat retarded their growth, as flowery May now gone has been one of the dryest I believe on record, rain falling on 5 days, but only to the depth of 26-100 of an inch, being a little over a ¼ of an inch. But of frost we had more than enough, but only a little snow on 2 days. We had frost on several mornings, but the severest was on the mornings of the 5th and 24th, being accompanied with thick ice. Again we had some hot days; at 2 p.m. the thermometer on the 9th standing at 84 in the shade, on the 10th at 87 degrees, on the 20th at 85 degrees, on the 29th at 85 degrees and on several days between 70 and 80 degrees, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 65 degrees. We had 2 thunder storms, but only a few drops of rain; an awful gale on the 4th, aurural lights on the 6th, the 7th and 23rd. The swallow, our last migrating bird, only put in its appearance on the 3rd. The following is the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month respectively, namely, west 5 days, south-west 5 days, north-west 11 days, north 6 days, east 1 day and north-east 3 days. We had frost again on Sunday morning the 7th instant.

Decorate Your Homes.

The great clearing sale of wall paper continues with unabated vigor at the Peterborough Bookstore. Boys may be seen delivering huge parcels of paper in all parts of the town at all hours of the day. The marvellously cheap prices are attracting an endless stream of buyers, but the stock is so large the strain has hardly been felt as yet. Don't miss this opportunity to buy cheap wall paper. People who never thought of it before are decorating their homes with nobby paper from the Peterborough Bookstore. They can afford to do it and never feel the expense, our prices are so low. There are 40,000 to 50,000 rolls of wall paper to select from, of all styles and qualities. The sale will last only about thirty days. Don't delay too long. The best bargains are being picked up every day. J. R. STRATTON. d1341f

Sarsaparilla belongs to the smilax family of plants, and is found very generally over the American continent; but the variety that is richest in medicinal properties is the Honduras root, of which the famous Ayer's Sarsaparilla is made.

THE MOURNING NATION.

PETERBOROUGH PUTS ON HER EMBLEMS OF SORROW.

Draping by Several of the Business Men—The Tolling Bells, and Suspended Business During the Time of the Funeral of the Dead Premier.

Peterborough was in a mourning garb this afternoon out of respect for the late Premier whose remains were being laid at rest with public honors at Kingston. At one o'clock the two town bells and the church bells began to toll in slow and mournful tones and continued to send forth their funeral knell until four o'clock. During this time a spirit of mourning spread throughout the town. Business was suspended, blinds were lowered and the whole town turned from its ordinary routine to do honor to the memory of the greatest of Colonial statesmen. Political opponents and political friends alike paid this tribute to the memory of a great man who was a patriotic Canadian.

On George-st. many of the windows of the stores had been dressed in mourning, while in numerous windows portraits of Sir John were exhibited draped in sombre crape.

Mr. J. J. Sheehy had a window of mourning which had been most artistically draped. It was hung in black and white, while on a slight eminence in the centre stood a statute of the dead Premier, standing with a life-like pose in the customary attitude in which he addressed the House. Last night the window was viewed by hundreds of citizens who gazed with sadness upon the statute of the man whom the solemn surrounding emblems of death told was no more.

Next door Mr. Robt. Fair had draped a window out of respect to the departed Chieftain. His window was hung in black and royal purple and in the centre was exhibited a draped portrait of the great statesman.

Mills Bros. also have a fine bronze bust of Sir John exhibited with sombre surroundings.

Work was suspended in many of the leading manufactories. The Lock Works was closed down the machinery of the Peter Hamilton Works was resting in a solemn silence, and work was suspended in the Bridge Works and other industries.

Among the other business places the front of the store of Mr. Thos. Kelly was draped with black. Opposite similar emblems of mourning hung from the front of the REVIEW office.

Many citizens left last night to attend the funeral at Kingston. The C.P.R. midnight train was made up of eleven coaches all crowded with sorrowing citizens going to pay a last tribute to the departed Chieftain. The Grand Trunk also ran a special train which carried a large number to the Limestone City.

THE ALLIANCE CONVENTION.

Meetings Held in the Opera House—Good Attendance—The Speakers.

The Christian Alliance Convention continues in the opera house and the meetings are all being well attended and are fraught with great baptism and blessing to those who are attending.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon Dr. Simpson, of Toronto, gave an hour of questions. The questions were interesting and it proved to be one of the best hours of the convention. Then he also spoke of his own call to the work, and his elucidation of the conception caused many to understand the work better than ever before.

Miss Lindenburgher gave her experience and Rev. Mr. Hyden told the story of his conversion and healing. He had been healed from heart disease, spinal trouble and paralysis.

THE EVENING MEETING.

Despite the suffocating heat of the night, the evening meeting was well attended and promised to be of a very interesting character. Dr. Simpson took charge of the meeting and in opening made an address in which he referred to Rev. Mr. Dowie, whose emphatic denunciations and strong language attracted attention here a short time ago, and while he had nothing against Mr. Dowie as a Christian man, yet he said that gentleman had nothing whatever to do with the Christian Alliance or its work.

Rev. F. W. Farr gave an interesting address and Miss Shepherd gave a talk on the 15th chapter of John, concluding her remarks with a relation of her own experience. She spoke with pathos and feeling, and her story affected many in the audience who could not retain their tears.

This morning Rev. Mr. Salmon conducted the first hour of prayer and testimony. Rev. Mr. Simpson gave a Bible reading on Faith, and Miss Lindenburgher followed with an address on the same line.

This afternoon and evening the closing meetings of the convention will be held.

Red and rosy cheeks follow the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills. The Vigilant Fruit Grower.

Many of the fruit growers in this country are profiting by the information acquired last winter and are spraying their apple trees with carbonate of copper for the apple scab and with Paris green for the detection and annihilation of the persevering codlin moth. These prescriptions, it is averred, never fail to effect a complete cure.

A box of Ayer's Pills have saved many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments, and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

Brevities.

—The flowers are being placed in the central beds in the Court House Park.

—There was no police court this morning.

—The Farmers Picnic was well patronized this morning.

—A good crowd went to Chemong Park this morning. It was the annual picnic of St. Paul's Sunday school.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

The Liberal-Conservative Association Mourns the Chieftain's Death.

Correspondence of the Review.

At a special meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of the East Riding of of the County of Peterborough called by the President of the Association, Mr. W. H. Stephenson, and held in the Town Hall, Norwood, at 7 p.m. on Monday evening, it was moved by Mr. Fred. W. Wilkins, D.L.S., seconded by Mr. Robt. Scott, and resolved:

"That we, the Liberal-Conservative Association of the East Riding of the County of Peterborough in special meeting convened, having heard with the deepest sorrow of the death of our beloved chieftain, the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, G.C.B., etc., Premier of the Dominion, which sad event took place at a late hour on Saturday night, the 6th inst., at Ottawa, desire to express at this the earliest possible opportunity the undying love we bear for the illustrious dead, to express, with the vast majority of this fair realm, the almost irreparable loss which we, in common with all other Conservatives and all true hearted citizens, sustain in the untimely removal by the grim reaper, death, of the greatest of Canadians—the father of his country.

"To Lady Macdonald, fitting helpmate as she was to our ever-to-be-revered leader, our most heartfelt sympathy is extended; and with her we bow our heads in submission to the decree of the Divine Will, knowing that in His own wise way the Lord of lords has ordained this seeming affliction for the good of all.

"That the spirit of our renowned leader, the most unselfish of men, will be ever with us, we unfeignedly believe, and that his spirit will ever lead us on to victory, even as in his life time invincible as against the enemies of this country, as well as of ours, we firmly confide in, feeling that if we are as true to ourselves and ours as he was that we will ever be on the side of right and of country. Grief and sorrow unquenchable is ours."

It was also moved by Mr. W. C. Plant, and seconded by Mr. Hugh Spence, and resolved:—

"That the following gentlemen be appointed as delegates from the Association to attend the last sad rites which take place respectively at Ottawa and at Kingston on the 10th and 11th inst:—Messrs. W. H. Stephenson, President, E. A. Peck, H. Calcutt, H. T. Strickland, R. C. Strickland, Dr. Fraser, John Moloney, Fred. W. Wilkins, D.L.S., Dr. Ford, J. B. Pearce, A. R. Anderson, R. J. Stewart, Wm. Finley, John Breakenridge, Frank Birdsall, Geo. Read, Wm. Campbell, W. Burnett, A. McAuly, Wm. Anderson, James Andrews, Edward Mellveny and George Kirk."

SCHOOL BOARD.—A special meeting of the School Board was held on Saturday evening, all the member present excepting Mr. White. Miss Sherin and Miss Everett, the two primary teachers, tendered their resignations, which were accepted. The Secretary was instructed to advertise for two teachers in the Globe and Empire to fill the vacancies.

A QUORUM LACKING.—There was no meeting of the Council this week for want of a quorum.

GOLDEN CITY EXCURSIONS.—This popular steamer is receiving a large share of the excursions this season. So far as arranged for they are as follows:—June 11th, North Smith Union excursion to Hall's Bridge; June 23rd, Pansy Mission Band (Presbyterian) to Burleigh, &c.; July 1st, Methodist Sunday school, to Burleigh, &c.; July 7th, Baptist Sunday school, to Burleigh, &c.; July 15th, Millbrook Methodist Sunday school to Burleigh, &c.; and the Warsaw Baptist Sunday school on a date not yet fixed.

PERSONAL.—Messrs. Eastland, Dench and Graham are in Toronto this week attending the meeting of High Court of Foresters.... Mr. C. J. Blomfield is in Toronto attending the Anglican Synod.... Mr. M. A. Jamieson, Grand Secretary of the True Blues, is in Lindsay attending the Grand Lodge of the Society.... Mr. W. M. Graham will attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church which meets in Kingston.

PANSY EXCURSION.—The Pansy Mission Band will hold an excursion and picnic on Tuesday, June 23rd, per steamer Golden City, to Burleigh, Mount Julian, Boschinck, &c. Every effort is being put forth to make it a pleasant day's outing. The fare will be 25 cents for the round trip.

OPEN MEETING.—The Royal Templars will hold an open meeting in their new hall on Monday evening, June 22nd, to which the public are very cordially invited. Admission free.

MUNICIPAL.—Your correspondent had a call last Wednesday from M. Sanderson, our worthy Reeve of the township. He, along with Mr. H. C. Garbutt, Deputy Reeve, and two of the councillors, were out on a tour of inspection examining the roads as far as Buckhorn, Burleigh bridge and this place. They met the Ontario Government Inspector of roads at Buckhorn and arranged re the money, some $200, which is to be laid out along with the county grant, on the road to Buckhorn and to Burleigh bridge with Mr. M. E. Sanderson as road commissioner, the right man in the right place, as he will see justice done.

LIVERY RIGS.—On Sunday last a young man was driving a lot of girls in and around this village with a livery rig seated back to back, and a pair of horses, showing off. I think when anyone hires a livery rig from Peterborough to drive out here the horses ought to be fed and rested without driving them all around the county, so I caution the livery men to keep track of this and anything your correspondent can do for the poor, hard worked horse he will gladly do and he will be only too glad to keep a sharp lookout and report to them by letter or telephone.

Some like it with sugar and water, and some like it with syrups. But Monserrat Pure Lime Fruit Juice, is the ideal summer drink, however you take it. The great point is take it. It will cure you. It will effectually quench your thirst, and that is more than a hogshead of alcholic drinks will do.

TOWNSHIP COUNCIL.—The Council met on June 1st as a Court of Revision, all the members present, Reeve Forster presiding. There being no appeals against the assessment roll, with a few changes it was confirmed as the the revised roll for 1891. The Council then went into session for general business. The minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. On motion the Clerk was instructed to notify Wm. Pearson, J. H. Stephens and John Bell to move their fences off the public highway. Moved by Mr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Brownscome, that if the town of Peterborough will build a drain on the gravel road to the boundary between the town and township this Council will carry it as far as necessary to properly drain that section of the road.—Carried. A by-law respecting public morals and other matters and also a by-law appointing a constable received their several readings and were passed, signed and sealed. Moved by Mr. Dunlop, seconded by Mr. Johnston, that the whole Council be a committee to examine the roads in the municipality and find the necessary repairs required to be made on the same.

BOARD OF HEALTH.—The Council met on June 5th to appoint a board of health. On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Dunlop, the Reeve, Clerk, Newton, Maher, David Doig and Wm. Collins were appointed Board of Health for the township, Dr. Yelland Medical Health Officer and James Davidson Sanitary Inspector. A by-law confirming said appointments was duly passed.

PRESENTATION.—On Tuesday evening Mrs. Harrison was kindly remembered by the parents and guardians of the members of the Band of Hope. Mrs. Harrison has had charge of the Band and has given a great deal of time and attention to it, and this deserved recognition of her services took the form of a handsome gift of silverware and a leather covered portmonaie.

S.S. PICNIC.—The union Sunday school picnic on June 17th promises to be very successful.

SIGNS OF MOURNING.—The death of the great Chieftain was deeply mourned here as elsewhere, and flags at half mast testified to the sentiments of the people.

THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 1891.

SIR WILLIAM MARRIED.

to the anguish over the sad ending of a brilliant career, but the fact remains that the signing of the document rendered it impossible for eminent and dexterous counsel to rehabilitate the honor which Cumming himself treated so lightly. Lord Coleridge took a just aspect of the Prince of Wales' connection and of the morality of baccarat. We think the whole party displayed a want of clearheadedness or they would not have created difficulty by playing the second night."

The News says: "It was really second to the affair of the diamond necklace, the accusation being secondary in importance to its surroundings. In our judgment no other verdict was possible. Cumming's signing of the paper was damning. The public disappointment is due, not to dissatisfaction, but to the inadequateness of the verdict to meet the varied aspects of the scandal. The Prince of Wales failed in the middle course he adopted, but it has yet to be proved that his attempt was more than a grave indiscretion. The pity of it all is not there, but in the presence of the heir to the throne at the head of the baccarat table. The Prince is bound to a pure, simple and cleanly life as an example to his future subjects. Woe to a monarchy when it can no longer perform what may fairly be called its last surviving use. It is grotesque to have a Prince carrying about baccarat counters wherever he goes as a Mahommedan carries his praying carpet."

The Telegraph pays a tribute to the dignity, tact and sound judgment of the court, and urges that pity be mingled with condemnation over the miserable end of a brilliant career. The Telegraph warmly defends the Prince of Wales against everything but indiscretion and great error of judgment. From a military point of view it says the signing of the paper was a condonation; but the error was prompted by such an obvious leniency and kindness of heart that his generous and true-hearted countrymen will speedily forgive and forget.

Commenting on the result of the baccarat trial The Chronicle condemns the jury's finding and the partiality of Chief Justice Coleridge, and says there is no evidence inconsistent with the hypothesis that Cumming merely played the well-known coup de trois. The Chronicle says that the verdict means, according to the jury, that Cumming deliberately courted his illustrious but impecunious friend by a trick requiring long and tiresome years of practice to acquire.

The paper asks what steps will be taken to vindicate justice in regard to the crime which the Prince compounded by signing a compact with Cumming, or whether the scandal will be forever hushed up.

The other papers express the belief that no other verdict could have been given on the evidence. The Sun says it is a pity the Prince of Wales was at the gaming table and that he should show a cleanly life to his future subjects. The Times regrets the connection of the Prince with the affair and The Standard says the defendants are somewhat tarnished.

The flat assertion made by The Daily Chronicle, that until the Prince of Wales swears on oath as "his confederates" did that he (the Prince) did not violate the solemn pledge he gave to Sir William Gordon Cumming, the heir-apparent rests under an imputation of dishonor quite as shameful as that which the jury put upon Sir William Gordon Cumming, reflects the general feeling.

LONDON, June 10.—Sir William Gordon Cumming was married at 11 o'clock this morning at Holy Trinity Church at Chelsea to Miss Florence Garner, daughter of the late Commodore William Garner of New York. Lord Thurlow gave the bride away. Major Vesey Dawson of the Coldstream Guards was the best man. Rev. Robert Eyton officiated. The marriage was practically a secret one. Only 12 persons were present at the ceremony. The bride looked charmingly happy and Sir William was proud-looking, cool and entirely self-possessed. There was no trace in his personal appearance of depression and commotion resulting from yesterday's verdict in the Court of Queen's Bench. Lady and Sir William Gordon Cumming left this city shortly after the ceremony for the bridegroom's estate at Altyre, near Forres, Scotland, where they will spend the honeymoon.

Resigned From His Clubs.

LONDON, June 10.—Sir William Gordon Cumming has resigned from all his clubs. The costs taxed against him amount to £2000.

The New Moderator.

KINGSTON, June 10.—The eighteenth annual session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church opened this evening in St. Andrew's Church, a handsome stone structure on the corner of Princess and Clergy-streets. Ten years ago the assembly met in Queen's University. It was in St. Andrew's Church in 1844 that the disruption occurred, now happily cemented. At 7.30 o'clock the opening service occurred. At it the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. Laing of Dundas, preached a forcible sermon from Ephesians iv., 7-8.

There were a number of nominations made for position of moderator and the choice fell upon Rev. Dr. Wardrope of Guelph. Rev. Dr. Cowan was nominated, but withdrew. The choice lay between Dr. Wardrope and Rev. Thomas Sedgewick of Tatamagouche, N.S. Dr. Wardrope had a very large majority. He has long filled the position of convener of the Foreign Mission Committee. The assembly will adjourn from 12 until 7 o'clock to-morrow evening, so that the members may attend the funeral of the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

Where is Mr. Crabb?

VICTORIA, B.C., June 10.—Superintendent of Police Sheppard has received a communication from W. T. Boyd of Toronto seeking information respecting a Mr. John Crabb, who with his wife Martha formerly kept an hotel at Chatham, Ont., and removed to Victoria some years since.

Killed the Editor.

BUTTE, Mont., June 10.—W. J. Penrose, editor of The Mining Journal and a member of the Legislature, was shot and killed early this morning near his home. He was found dead on the sidewalk with a bullet hole in his temple. There is no trace of the murderer. Belle Browning has been arrested on suspicion. The general belief is the crime was committed for revenge by someone who has been offended by an article in Penrose's paper.

Infanticide.

WINDSOR, June 10.—Edward Stuart Moore, a colored man, was engaged to clean the closet of Mrs. Simons in Albert-street. He dumped the barrels this morning and the first thing that met his notice was the upturned face of an infant. The body was wrapped in some old clothes. It was that of a white male of mature age. Around its neck was a strap or part of a man's necktie, by which it had been strangled to death.

Ratified the Convention.

LISBON, June 10.—The Senate to-day, 28 to 8, ratified the convention with England. It was signed to-day and goes into operation immediately.

The Vesuvius Eruption.

NAPLES, June 10.—The eruption of Vesuvius continues. The eruption is mild as yet, but it is expected it will become violent soon. Tourists are flocking to this city to witness the eruption.

Ate the Expedition.

PARIS, June 10.—The natives of Matonga have massacred, roasted and devoured a French expedition from Loango under M. Crampel.

Bishop of Waterford Dead.

DUBLIN, June 10.—Most Rev. John Egan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Waterford, died to-day of influenza after eight hours' sickness.

A Famous Appeal.

LONDON, June 10.—The now famous appeal of the Bishop of Lincoln, Rev. Edward King, D.D., against the decision of the Archbishop of Canterbury in regard to charges made against the Bishop of Lincoln of having offended against the established ritual came up for first hearing to-day before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The Bishop of Lincoln said in opening his case that the appellant complained that the Archbishop in giving judgment had not followed the Privy Council's decision in previous ecclesiastical appeals.

May Have Been Murder.

WINNIPEG, June 10.—There is suspicion that Constable Byron, Calgary, might have been murdered instead of suicide, and suspicion rests on two comrades, who were with him shortly before the shot was fired. Deceased was son of H. J. Byron, the English playwright.

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising the in widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realize results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL!

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

AT TURNBULL'S.

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of Dress Goods that were formerly from 20 to 50 cts. a yard. They are odd lines and are now being cleared out at 15 cts. a yard. They can only last a short time. Call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them as they please everybody as to quality and price.

THE NEWS OF CANADA

SHOCKING INJURY TO A GUNNER AT CHATHAM.

Fires in Many Towns—A Brakeman Killed at Bright—A Little Boy Loses a Hand While at Play—A Woman Burned to Death with Coal Oil.

CHATHAM, June 11.—While the minute gun (an old relic of the Crimea) was being fired in Tecumseh Park this afternoon a terrible accident occurred. The gun had been discharged, swabbed out, and a new charge rammed home, when as Frank Murdoch, aged 30, was in the act of withdrawing the ramrod the charge exploded, hurling him 50 or 60 feet down the slope towards the river. When picked up he was found to be terribly burned and lacerated about the head and upper part of his body. He was removed to the hospital, where but little hope for his recovery is entertained.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Not so Serious as Reported—M.C.R. Ice House Burned.

THAMESFORD, June 11.—About 6 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the McCartney House, Thamesford. In an incredibly short time the building was a hopeless prey to the flames and in an hour nothing remained but a smouldering mass of ruins. For a time it was feared that the flames would spread and the Ingersoll fire brigade was telegraphed for assistance. The building was a two-story frame with a Masonic Hall attached. It belonged to Mr. James McCartney and was occupied by his brother John. Everything was destroyed except the Masonic Hall furniture. The hotel was insured for $3000 and the contents for $600. The Masonic Hall was insured for $750.

M. C. R. Icehouse Burned.

INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE, June 11.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon the M. C. Railway icehouse caught fire, it is supposed from a spark from a passing locomotive and in a very short time it was a mass of flames. The fire spread to a car repair shop and a blacksmith shop. The three buildings were burned to the ground. Loss $3000.

Escaped With their Lives.

SIMCOE, June 11.—About 1 o'clock this morning the residence of Mrs. Watts was discovered to be on fire. Mrs. Watts and family narrowly escaped. Origin of fire unknown.

KILLED WITH KEROSENE

A Young Woman Burned to Death While Kindling a Fire.

INNERKIP, Ont., June 11.—Mrs. Toombs, wife of a young man on the "Glen" stock farm, attempted to light the fire with coal oil yesterday. She was pouring coal oil with one hand while she struck a match with the other, when the can exploded, scattering the blazing oil completely over her and setting her in a blaze from head to foot. She rushed screaming outdoors and tried to tear off her clothing, but the effort was too late to be of much avail, as her body and limbs are everywhere burned in a dreadful manner. Dr. Clement was soon present and did all he could to allay her sufferings, but she died this morning.

She came with her husband from England about a year ago and she had one child, an infant five months old.

Fun on the Track.

SHELBURNE, Ont., June 11.—Charlie Snider, 3 years of age, son of Mrs. Snider, Adeline-street, was playing at the railway track, putting pins on the iron rails in front of a car that was being shunted. He let his left hand remain on the rail too long and one car wheel passed over it, mangling it terribly. Doctors amputated the hand.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

THE GOVERNESS AND THE FUTURE EARL.

A Big Suit for Breach of Promise Pending—Newfoundland Delegates at the French Capital—Italians Panic-Stricken Owing to Earthquake Shocks.

LONDON, June 11.—The case of Valerie Weidmann, a German governess, against Robert Horace Walpole, the future Earl of Orford, for breach of promise of marriage, came up for hearing to-day in the Court of Queen's Bench. The plaintiff also charged Mr. Walpole with criminal libel, inasmuch as he said she was an adventuress and a thief.

According to the evidence the parties met at Constantinople, where Miss Wiedmann was professionally engaged as governess. After courtship and promise of marriage Mr. Walpole went to Liverpool, leaving her a signet ring in pledge of his troth, which ring, Mr. Walpole insists, was stolen from him by the plaintiff. Miss Wiedmann went to Cannes, saw Mr. Walpole's mother and told that lady she was about to become a mother. The plaintiff also avers that a detective employed by Mr. Walpole not only stole but utterly destroyed letters which were written by the defendant to the plaintiff.

DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.

British Tories Still Determined that no Such Bill Shall Pass.

LONDON, June 11.—The promoters of the Deceased Wife's Sisters Bill took advantage of the fact that a large number of the opponents of the bill were at the Ascot races today to attempt to rush the measure through the committee stage by surprise. They were antagonized by a small but determined group of Tories, who talked against time, and the result is that instead of advancing the bill its friends have rendered it impossible for it to be brought up again at this session with any chance of passing.

ANOTHER "TURK"

And This One Will Probably Outdo the Turkish Brigands

BERLIN, June 11.—A peculiar story of domestic trouble in the family of a well-known banker of this city has been revealed as a consequence of the recent capture of a party of tourists by Turkish brigands. When the news of the daring outrage by banditti was first published it was accompanied by details of the agonizing grief displayed by Mme. Graeger over the fate of her husband, who was one of the prisoners, and who was carried off to the banditti's stronghold, while she was left behind and obliged to remain at Adrianople in suspense, not knowing for many days whether or not she would ever be permitted to see her beloved spouse again. It so happened that Herr Graeger had left his wife in Berlin when he started on his eastern journey, and that worthy lady read with much surprise the story of the grief of the lady who was known to the authorities of Adrianople as the wife of the imprisoned tourist. She caused inquiries to be made in a quiet way, and discovered that her husband had been joined at Pesth by a handsome young lady, with whom he continued on his travels, introducing her as his wife. Herr Graeger is now on his way home, having been released along with his fellow-unfortunates in consideration of a large payment of ransom. It is needless to say that he will receive a warm welcome.

Newfoundlanders See Ribot.

PARIS, June 11.—Sir William Whiteway and Messrs. Harvey and Evans, the Newfoundland delegates, have arrived in this city and have had an interview this afternoon with M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs. During the course of this interview the Newfoundland fisheries question was discussed.

Sir William "Cut."

LONDON, June 11.—Sir William Gordon Cumming and his bride were absolutely cut by society at Wolliston Hall, Nottinghamshire, the county seat of Lord Middleton, to which they went yesterday after the wedding. Not one of the neighboring families has called on them.

Earthquakes in Italy.

ROME, June 11.—Repeated earthquake shocks were felt in Verona to-day, especially at Tregnago and Badia Calavena. Many houses collapsed. The inhabitants are panic stricken.

Chat From Over the Sea.

According to a private despatch received in Hamburg, Emin Pasha has arrived at Tabora.

Prince Alfonso of Bavaria, while drilling a body of troops to-day, fell from his horse and sustained a fracture of the leg.

There has been an outbreak of pleuro-pneumonia among cattle at York. The authorities have ordered 280 head to be killed.

Premier Mercier of Quebec has arrived at Caen. He was warmly welcomed to the city by the Catholic residents, and a banquet was given in his honor.

In reply to a Jewish petition Lord Salisbury promises to consult the Turkish ambassador to ascertain whether British influence would induce the Sultan to consent to Jews settling in Palestine.

Herr Arendt and Herr Wolff, two brokers on the Berlin bourse, were yesterday fined for starting false rumors in regard to the health of Emperor William with the object of depressing funds.

Herr Brandenburg, a member of the Centre party in Bersenbrueck, has been elected without opposition to fill a seat in the Reichstag made vacant by the death of Dr. Windthorst, the Centrist leader.

Sir Henry Isaacs, former Lord Mayor of London, has been forced to resign his aldermanship owing to the scandals caused by his connection with companies whose records have been subjected to severe criticisms in the press.

The strike of the carpenters and joiners in London has now been in progress for six weeks. The employers are importing men from Germany to take the places of their former hands, and it looks as if they would be able in this way to obtain a full working force.

In the Lower House of the Berlin Diet Herr Rickert made a motion that the Government should submit to the House the material upon which Chancellor von Caprivi based the recent speech upon the grain duties. The Chancellor opposed this motion, declaring that the enquiry had been confined to official quarters in order to avoid creating excitement.

Drowned in a Millrace.

LONDON, Ont., June 11.—The 7-year-old son of W. Haskin, named Roy, was drowned yesterday afternoon just above Hunt's mill. The boy was playing on a raft and, falling into the water, was carried under the log by the swift current and held there by a splinter, which caught his clothing and kept his head under water close by the log.

POISONED BY ARSENIC.

Rev. James Thompson of Honeywood With His Wife and Child Narrowly Escape Death.

SHELBURNE, Ont., June 11.—The people of Honeywood were thrown into a state of excitement by the announcement that the Rev. James Thompson (the Methodist minister who was suspended a few months ago on the charge of heresy) had been poisoned, together with his wife and one child. It seems that Mrs. Thompson had prepared some arrowroot for dinner, and before sitting down to the table had partaken of a spoonful of it. Shortly afterwards she was taken sick, but not before Mr. Thompson had taken a spoonful or two of the arrowroot himself and also given some to the child. Soon all three were taken violently ill, and a neighbor was sent for Dr. Lawrence. The doctor pronounced the symptoms to be those of arsenic poisoning, and the proper steps were taken to restore the sufferers, with the result that all three are now in a fair way of recovery. Fortunately the other children were away at school at the time, and they escaped the poison entirely. It is not known how the poison got into the food.

International Football.

BERLIN, June 11.—The great international football event of 1891 took place this evening in Berlin and resulted disastrously to Canada's representatives.

Canada won the toss and took advantage of the light wind. At 6.30, when play began, the home team at once were aggressive and for 10 or 15 minutes it seemed as though the Canadians would have little trouble with the American defence but, as it proved later, the latter had not settled down.

After a few minutes' play the game became fast and furious and Jeffrey once more got in a good run. Rost misjudged and the centre forward had no trouble in scoring the first goal for the Americans.

Buckingham, while a dispute was taking place as to whether the ball was out in touch or not, rushed down his wing and by a swift, strong shot scored the first goal for Canada.

Then followed some grand play on both sides. Twice the leather was driven in on Sims, but on each occasion he saved well, but the third attempt was too well placed for him and Canada's colors were lowered a second time.

The Americans were having the better of the game at the close. The Canadian halves were working nobly, and though charges were made dangerously close on the American citadel no further goals were scored, and Canada had lost her international match by a score of 2 goals to 1.

The Americans surprised everybody by their excellent combination and rare heading and they deserve their victory, though it is a matter for sad reflection that Canada was so severely handicapped.

General Assembly.

KINGSTON, June 11.—At the morning's general assembly of the Presbyterian Church this forenoon, Dr. Gregg of Toronto reporting for the Hymnal Committee, intimated that over 27,000 copies of the hymn book had been sold during the year, and that from proceeds obtained nearly $1200 had been given to the Aged and Infirm Ministers Fund.

On motion of Principal Grant, seconded by Dr. Reid, the General Assembly recorded with profound sorrow the decease of Sir John A. Macdonald, expressed sympathy with Lady Macdonald, prayed that the demise might be sanctified to all who take part in public affairs, and with the people of the Dominion, agreed to give up the afternoon sederunt out of regard for Sir John to give the moderator and clerk and members an opportunity to attend the funeral.

The evening sederunt was devoted to the two important subjects of home missions and augmentation as conducted in the eastern and western sections of the church. In the Maritime Province home mission field the income was $11,388.58, an increase of $612 on the previous year, and of $3414 on the year preceding that. The number of workmen employed here was 67. In the western section, from Quebec to the Pacific, the revenue amounted to $54,244.24 and work is conducted in 389 preaching stations. In the Maritime Provinces 88 congregations were added last year by the augmentation fund to the extent of $6685. In the western districts the income amounted to $22,752, and although a slight deficit marks the fund this year, the fund is not by any means in a discouraging condition. Capital addresses were given during the evening by Messrs. MacMillan, Morrison and Lock from the east, and from Drs. Cochrane, Bryce, Warden and Robertson from the western section.

He Wants His Children.

NEW YORK, June 11.—In the Supreme Court, Kings county, the claim of Insurance Broker J. H. L. Pelletier of Montreal for the custody of his four children came up yesterday. The little ones, the oldest of whom is 8 years, were in court. The children were permitted to accompany their aunt, Mrs. James Stillsman, to Brooklyn in December last. The father said he had been unable to recover them. Mrs. Stillsman, who lives at No. 291 Clermont-avenue, alleged that Mr. Pelletier was not a fit person to have the custody of the children. Affidavits as to character from the Archbishop of Montreal and from Judge Loranger of the Superior Court were put in by Mr. Pelletier.

De Lesseps to be Prosecuted.

PARIS, June 11.—Le National announces that Mr. De Lesseps will be prosecuted for misleading investors who subscribed money for carrying on the work of the Panama Canal Company. Sixty shareholders in the Panama Canal Company have filed a complaint against officers of that company. The prosecution of these officials will open with placing Mr. De Lesseps, his son and two other directors on trial. The action of the prosecution is based especially upon the last issue of Panama Canal shares.

SIR JOHN BURIED.

IMPRESSIVE SCENES ALONG THE STREET.

KINGSTON, June 11.—The mortal remains of the late Sir John A. Macdonald were committed to their last resting place to-day. The day was truly a memorable one for Kingston. It marks an event that cannot fade from memory. Cataraqui graveyard becomes a historic spot and thousands in the coming days will make pilgrimages here to view the resting place of the greatest governmental ruler Canada ever had in her earliest day. The day was hot, the sun shining brilliantly. The rain came down vigorously after 6 o'clock, but did not interfere with the proceedings. The city was crowded. The people began flocking in as early as 4 o'clock in the morning. They came from all parts of Canada. The entire morning was spent in viewing the remains in the City Hall; 20,000 persons in double lines passed the bier. The guards were composed of Royal Military College cadets. They remained on duty from 9 last night till 9 this morning, when they were relieved by another party. At noon the great floral heaps were removed to a prepared car. For hours the display was witnessed by all eyes. At 1 o'clock the procession began forming, and was one of the grandest ever seen in Kingston streets. It was over two miles in length and occupied over 40 minutes in passing a given point. The parade moved at 2.45 o'clock. At this time three miles of Princess-street was lined with spectators. Not less than 40,000 persons viewed the solemn advance to the grave. The parade was under civic control. The stores were closed and draped. Order of the parade was thus: Route—Direct from the City Hall along Ontario-street to Princess-street and direct to Cataraqui Cemetery.

The Masons made a great turnout, 380 strong, under marshalship of James Greenfield of Toronto. Among the distinguished representatives were J. Ross Robertson, Grand Master, R. T. Walkem, R. Gull, E. T. Malone, R. L. Patterson, W. R. Hance, R. Davidson. Zetland Lodge, Toronto, had 27 members, Belleville 50, Napanee 20, Deseronto 15, Sussex and St. Lawrence Lodges, Brockville, Gananoque, Brighton, Odessa and Kingston had representatives. The Kingston brethren wore crape on their arms.

There were representatives from many lodges in Eastern Ontario. The Independent Order of Foresters was represented. The Catholic orders numbered 400. They were dressed in black, wearing silk hats and having a badge with the words "In Memoriam" in the lapel of their coats. Nearly every member of the fraternal societies had on a mourning emblem. It took 18 minutes for them to pass walking four abreast. The pallbearers were members of the Cabinet and Hon. J. C. Aikins. The guards extending along the entire line were composed of men of "A" Battery, R. M. College, Kingston Field Battery and 14th Princess of Wales' Own Rifles. The infantry men carried their arms reversed. Col. C. Cotton, representing Her Majesty, was accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Smith, A. D. C. to the Governor-General. Sir Alexander Campbell, Hon. Oliver Mowat, Moderator Wardrope of the Presbyterian Assembly, and Archbishop Cleary occupied carriages. Nearly every city, town and village in Ontario was represented.

The men in line, numbering 7000, stepped off at slow pace to the music of "A" Battery and 14th Princess of Wales' Own Rifles bands combined and the Gananoque band. The solemn strains floated back as the cortege moved far into the country. Slowly the cortege proceeded and in a few minutes the thousands of spectators who had proceeded to the cemetery by rail could see the glistening helmets of the cavalrymen as they reached the top of the hill. They descended the dusty road towards the little village of Cataraqui, the streets of which were lined by the villagers and hundreds of ruralists who had driven in to see the event. The cemetery looked its very best, the soft green sward, the warm summer sun and the beautiful foliage of trees contrasted artistically with the beds of bright flowers which dotted the hillside here and there where the grave was located. The sad procession passed through the throngs of people bowed and with uncovered heads. The hearse was flanked by eight artillerymen, who on arriving at the last resting place reverently took up the remains of Canada's great statesman and carried the casket to the grave. As Archdeacon Jones stepped forward in clerical robes the harsh rattle of the timbers was heard as the workmen uncovered the grave, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the large surrounding multitude as the casket was lowered into its last resting place. Hugh J. Macdonald, Prof. Williamson and Hon. J. A. Chapleau were prominent at the edge of the grave, and their sorrow was plainly visible as they bravely tried to bear up in their affliction. Impressive and affecting was the beautiful burial service of the Church of England, as read by Archdeacon Jones: "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." The words came solemnly from the preacher's lips, followed by the benediction, and Canada's greatest man was in his long last resting-place. The grave was then securely sealed with several large pieces of stone-work set in the sides to make it perfectly safe, the cavity was filled in and the floral tributes placed around it. The crowds slowly dispersed and, as if to fittingly close the last scene of a great career, a brilliant rainbow circled around the eastern sky through the sprinkle of rain then falling, and nature seemed to naturally say: "Peace to his ashes."

A guard of "A" Battery will remain in charge for a month.

An interesting feature of the parade was the presence of Indian delegations from Tyendinaga, Tuscarora and Oneida reserves. The Indians loved "Old To-Morrow," as he had been lovingly nick-named, and by their presence they desired to manifest their grief with the nation.

A Nice Point of Law.

OTTAWA, June 11.—A case involving a nice point of law is coming upon the County Court. Gilmour, beer dealer of Ottawa, sues Dougan, a hotelkeeper of Greenville Junction, for a bill of beer. Dougan says he has paid, but further contends that, as his place is in a Scott Act county, he cannot be made to pay, even should the plaintiff collect.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

MEETING OF DAIRYMEN.

An Exhibition of Milk Testing Given at Lakefield by an Expert of the Dairy Department at Ottawa.

A very interesting and instructive meeting of cheesemen was held at the Lakefield factory on the afternoon of June 2nd. The following factories being represented:—Shearer, Keene, Peterborough, Warminster, South Dummer, Maple Leaf, Pine Grove, Central Smith, Warsaw, Cherry Grove and Trewern. Owners, patrons and particularly cheese makers, about fifteen of them, were present, who all should be alive to the best interests of this great industry.

Mr. Galvin, President of the Lakefield Dairy Company, in introducing Mr. J. B. McEwen, of the dairy staff to the meeting, stated that he supposed all were interested in the cheese business and had come to learn something, also to exchange ideas which he hoped would prove of mutual benefit to all. He went on to say that some years ago, the raising of grain in this country had failed to a certain extent in proving remunerative to the farmer, on account of other countries opening up where grain could be grown at much less cost, consequently the farmer was compelled to turn his attention to something else. During the last number of years the dairy industry, more especially the cheese business, had been making great strides, and to-day Canada ranks at the front in producing a fine quality of cheese, but on account of competition we have to apply our best skill to hold this position. One step in that direction had been made by the Dominion Government in appointing a Dairy Commissioner and staff at Ottawa.

TESTING MILK.

Mr. McEwen prefaced his address by giving an exhibition of testing milk with the Babcock tester on several samples of milk, showing quite plainly the merits of the invention in determining the amount of butter fat in milk and said he hoped and believed it would eventually do away with the present system of pooling milk at cheese factories, and the farmer would be paid according to the quality of his milk. He considered the present method had a tendency to induce breeding for quantity not quality, consequently the result was it took more milk to make a pound of cheese and they did not get an article as rich as was possible. Continuing, he said he would like to impress upon those who furnished milk to cheese factories the importance of taking the best care of their milk. The thorough aeration of the milk through the entire season immediately after milking was one of the great factors in helping the cheese maker to produce a good article and if patrons would pay more attention to this matter it would in the end be money in their pocket. Speaking of eastern in comparison to western Ontario he found factories and their equipments were not so good here as in the west but was well pleased with appearances here at this factory. Mr. McEwen went on to advocate strongly the scheme of the dairy department to induce the factory men and farmers to go more into asserting the farmer did not make the money out of his cows which he should. He considered that by paying more attention to feeding and with the proper use of the silo cows could be made to milk ten months as well as six, and if it paid to milk them six months it would assuredly pay better for a longer time. I believe all there enjoyed the meeting especially the cheese makers, who during the process of making, were anxious to receive and willing to impart any new ideas they could.

I think it would be beneficial to us as cheese makers if it could be made practicable to all meet at a different factory, say once a month during the season. It might be the means of helping us to make a more uniform article as we that were at this meeting must know that where a number of us meet in such a manner, we cannot help but become more enthusiastic over our work, and I feel sure such meetings would have the propensity of instilling in us greater pride in our occupation, and by our united efforts and the assistance of the practical men of the dairy staff, such as Mr. McEwen, it would help to make our business more lucrative and still keep our cheese at the top, where it can be retained only by working, thinking and applying our skill.

Hoping the good work commenced by the Dairy Department may go on with great results for the advancement of one of our countries best industries.

W. W. GRANT,
Secretary Lakefield Dairy Co.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

INTERESTING PARAGRAPHS CULLED FROM VARIOUS FIELDS.

Over Population is Coming—The Startling Statistics Produced at a Meeting of the British Association—Electricity in Killing Mosquitos.

At a recent meeting of the British Association E. G. Ravenstein produced an elaborate set of statistics to show that the world will, in the ordinary course of things, be fully inhabited in about 180 years, which estimate considerably extends the period at which some learned men believe humanity will be crowded out.

Having previously swept away the arctic and antarctic regions as not being essential for his argument, he parceled out the remainder of the earth into: Cultivable land, 28,469,000 square miles; steppe, scrub, poor grass, etc., 13,901,000 square miles; barren deserts, 4,180,000 square miles; a total of 46,350,000 square miles. The population living upon this he reckons at a little over 1,467,600,000, divided thus: Europe, 380,200,000; Asia, 850,000,000; Africa, 127,000,000 (a much lower estimate than most people compute); Australia, 4,730,000; North America, 89,250,000; South America, 36,300,000.

Mr. Ravenstein showed how, supposing the standard of life among the various people to remain the same, supposing the population increases at the rate of 8 per cent in every decade, and supposing there are no extraordinary improvements in agriculture, the population of the world in the year 2072 will be 5,994,000,000. In speaking of the populations that these areas would bear (mentioning 207 individuals to the square mile as a fair average), he suggested that the productiveness of the earth might be better utilized when people understood economy.

In expressing a general opinion that tropical countries are not fit for Europeans he granted exceptions to the rule as, for example, in certain now well-known highlands of Africa. One of the theories propounded is that there is a gradual migration of people southward, so that in time a race of European origin may arise who will be acclimatized in the tropics. On the whole, Mr. Ravenstein does not despair that the world will be overpopulated, because as new developments occur new adaptations will be found to meet them.

Rev. John Mackenzie expressed the opinion that the Zambesi will all in course of time be suitable for European residents. J. W. Wells, who has traveled 3,000 miles in Argentine and Brazil, thought that there is every prospect of a speedy construction of a vast system of rail and fluvial communication all over the country. The sum total of the discussion so far was an assurance that there are plenty of places in the world fit for population, that there is a demand for population all over the world, and that we need not particularly worry ourselves as to whether the globe will be overpopulated in generations to come.

The Manchester Ship Canal.

The Manchester ship canal will not be completed within the time or for the amount originally estimated. The company has applied to the corporation of Manchester for financial assistance, its own borrowing powers under the Act of incorporation being exhausted, and a report of the matter has been prepared by a committee appointed by the city. The committee has made careful investigations, and has considered reports submitted by its own engineers and by the canal officials. Up to the end of 1890 over $45,000,000 had been spent; while about $30,000,000 more are required, making a total of $85,000,000, against the original estimate of $40,000,000. Unless substantial assistance is promptly given, the works must stop, as the present funds will only last for a few months, and the company has been unable to get the public to subscribe for $3,000,000 of debentures.

Curiosities of Animal Punishment.

In the Middle Ages the lower animals were frequently tried, convicted and punished for various offences. Mr. Baring-Gould has collected some curious cases of this kind. In 1266 a pig was burnt at Fontenay-aux-Roses, near Paris, for having eaten a child. In 1386 a judge of Falaise condemned a sow to be mutilated and hanged for a similar offence. Three years later a horse was solemnly tried before the magistrate and condemned to death for having killed a man. During the fourteenth century oxen and cows might be legally killed whenever taken in the act of marauding; and asses, for a first offence, had one ear cropped, for a second, the other ear, and if after this they were asses enough to commit a third offence, their lives became forfeit to the Crown. "Criminal" animals frequently expiated their offences, like other malefactors, on the gallows, but subsequently they were summarily killed without trial, and their owners mulcted in heavy damages. In the fifteenth century it was popularly believed that cocks were intimately associated with witches; and they were somewhat credited with the power of laying accursed eggs, from which sprang winged serpents. In 1474, at Bale, a cock was publicly accused of having laid one of these dreadful eggs. He was tried, sentenced to death, and, together with the egg, was burned by the executioner in the market place amid a great concourse of people. In 1694, during the witch persecutions in New England, a dog exhibited such strange symptoms of affliction that he was believed to have been ridden by a warlock, and he was accordingly hanged. Snails, flies, mice, ants, caterpillars and other obnoxious creatures, have been similarly proceeded against and condemned to various punishments—mostly in ecclesiastical courts. And, stranger still, inanimate objects have suffered the same fate. In 1685, when the Protestant chapel at Rochelle was condemned to be demolished, the bell thereof was publicly whipped for having assisted heretics with its tongue. After being whipped it was catechised, compelled to recant, and then baptized and hung up in a Roman Catholic place of worship. Probably similar absurdities may have been perpetrated in our own country, for it must be remembered that only in the present reign was the law repealed which made a cart-wheel, a tree, or a beast which had killed a man forfeit to the State for the benefit of the poor. It had been said that punishment is not likely to be efficacious unless it swiftly follows the offence. This was improved on by a Barbary Turk, who, whenever he bought a fresh Christian slave, had him hung up by the heels and bastinadoed, on the principle, it is supposed—though the application is decidedly singular—that prevention is better than cure.—All the Year Round

Sudden Changes.

A cold, or exposure, may cause the poisonous acids in the blood to clog its circulation. This is Rheumatism. Clark's Lightning Liniment will stop the pain at once. It should be taken both internally and externally if the attack is severe, and it affords instant relief. If the pain appears again, it should be met with the same treatment, until a cure is effected. This wonderful preparation has worked some remarkable cures among Rheumatic sufferers. Where once tried, it is always used after. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

The Children's Day Out.

The annual picnic of St. Paul's Church Sunday school was held at Chemong Park yesterday and a great day's outing was enjoyed. Notwithstanding the wet morning about three hundred happy children and parents and friends spent the day in the beautiful park washed by the waters of Chemong Lake. Games and boating gave everyone some excitement or pleasure during the day. Towards evening the rain interrupted the reign of pleasure for a short time, but was not sufficient to mar the day. Home was reached before seven o'clock and all were unanimous in the verdict that the outing had been a glorious one.

Five boys were charged at the police court this morning with bathing in the Goose Pond. They were fined $1 each. Cleanliness and a bath in the summer is all right in the right place, but the magistrate said he would deal severely with any further offenders.

Mr. Timothy Blodgett was charged by John Wright with assault at the Police Court this morning. The complainant was a boy of ten or twelve years and it was said had been annoying an afflicted son of Mr. Blodgett's, when the latter gentleman gave him a shaking. The magistrate heard the evidence and dismissed the charge.

CRASHED IN COLLISION.

Two Mogul Engines on the C.P.R. Crash Into Each Other With Their Trains.

A railway collision occurred on the C.P.R. less than two miles west of the station here yesterday afternoon, but fortunately the tale can be told without lamenting over any loss of life.

It was a freight and a gravel train that came together. The gravel train was drawing from the pit east of here and was ballasting westward up the track. It left here under orders to go up, unload and return. While it was gone a freight bound west came in drawn by one of the big moguls, No. 423. By some misunderstanding of orders or an unfortunate mistake the freight drew out and proceeded west. About a mile and a half west of here Driver Scruton, of No. 423, was horrified to see the gravel train dash around a curve coming madly towards his big monster which was dashing as madly onward to

A CERTAIN, AWFUL CRASH.

The engine of the gravel train was backing down, so that the tender was towards the approaching freight. Both drivers saw their danger, whistled their alarm, reversed their engines and jumped. The train hands all did likewise, with the exception of Brakeman Dwyer of the freight. Miraculously not a man of either crew was seriously injured. The crash which followed as they made their leap for life was terrible. The engine of the freight crashed into the tender of the gravel train, demolishing it and tearing the front out of itself. Four of the flat cars of the gravel train leaped upward and were piled on top of the engine that had been drawing them, tearing and ripping it

IN TERRIBLE SHAPE.

The freight was made up of twenty-three loaded box cars, and the gravel train was composed of thirty-six empty flat cars. On No. 435, the engine of the gravel train, were Driver Shields and Fireman Neilson, while the crew of the train were Conductor Jones, and Brakeman Bennington and Marshall. No. 423 was driven by Driver Scruton and Fireman Campbell, and the train was manned by Conductor Coker and Brakeman Dubois and Dwyer. Their escape was nothing short of the miraculous. Had either the firemen or drivers stood to their posts they must have been instantly killed, for the cabs of both locomotives were completely wrecked.

An auxiliary train came up from Havelock and no time was lost in getting the track clear. Another auxiliary went to the scene and brought the damaged freight cars and the overturned locomotives to the yard here.

Both the big three wheelers were standing in the yard to-day and were viewed by many hundreds. It will be an expensive accident to the company.

The crews of both trains are at the head office to-day giving an account of the accident.

The last day of the Christian Alliance Convention opened yesterday morning at nine with a prayer and testimony meeting. The meetings seem to grow in interest and power as they draw to a close, and already the results of the presence of these people in town had been seen.

Rev. Chas. Warren Ryder gave a talk on the "Ability of God," from II Cor. ix, 8.

Rev. A. B. Simpson then gave a Bible reading on "Faith." Those in attendance were surprised and delighted at the clear exposition of the matter of believing God.

Miss Lindenberger closed the morning session with a talk on the same subject.

IN THE AFTERNOON.

Again the first hour of the afternoon was spent in answering questions, after which Rev. Mr. Simpson gave a Bible reading on divine healing. He particularly emphasized the fact of its being in the atonement, as shown not only in type and prophecy in the Old Testament, but applied directly to us in the New Testament.

Rev. Mr. Salmon spoke on healing also, referring especially to the last part of the 5th of James.

Dr. Zimmerman followed on the same subject, from I Cor. 6, 19, 24. He touched on the question of Christ being for the little ones also, and said if anything went wrong he would have a little enquiry meeting of the members of his family to see if they were all right with God, and if they were he said that God always delivered them.

THE CLOSING MEETING.

The evening meeting was a wonderful one, especially at the last, when hundreds stood up on their feet for a deeper spiritual or physical blessing, and then bowed in prayer.

The subject of the evening meeting ran on the line of the Lord's pre-millenial coming. Rev. Mr. Simpson spoke first, referring to the power and blessing such a hope should have in Christian lives. Then each of the speakers in turn gave a short parting word and Rev. Mr. Ryder closed with a short reference to the Alliance and the regular meetings held in town. Then he gave a very powerful exhortation to those present to immediate consecration of spirit, soul and body to God.

NOTES.

There was a good attendance in the afternoon, and in the evening the Opera House was nearly filled.

They left on the midnight train for Ottawa, where they will hold a similar convention opening to-day.

They have almost every day until October filled up with conventions in the United States.

Sarsaparilla belongs to the smilax family of plants, and is found very generally over the American continent; but the variety that is richest in medicinal properties is the Honduras root, of which the famous Ayer's Sarsaparilla is made.

Storm of Rain and Electricity.

The heavy rain storm which passed over the town yesterday afternoon did an immense amount of good to the surrounding country. Verdure was refreshed and the parched ground thoroughly drenched. The electrical outburst which accompanied the rain were terrific, one thunderbolt seemingly being very near. The concussion was so great that a flag floating from the staff at, Mr. J. J. Turner's on George-st, was split from end to end and residents in the vicinity directly felt the shock. No damage in the immediate vicinity has been reported.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

A LARGE GATHERING.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE PICNIC AT JUBILEE POINT.

A Very Large Attendance Despite Unfavorable Weather—Addresses at the Point—An Enjoyable Day.

The annual picnic of the Farmers' Institutes of East and West Peterborough and East and West Northumberland was held at Jubilee Point yesterday, when there was a large gathering and a day of enjoyment.

The steamer Golden Eye and palace barge took the Peterborough party and people from this neighborhood to the scene of the festivities. The boat got under way shortly after 8 o'clock, and a pleasant sail down the Otonabee and past the fine scenery on the route was enjoyed. Mr. Butcher's orchestra was on board and, with Mr. Jas. Coughlin as master of ceremonies, the barge floor was occupied with lovers of the dance. At different points on the way down the number of passengers was increased and the Golden Eye with between 300 and 400 on board. Just ahead of the Golden Eye the steamer Pearl drew in with a scow loaded with probably a hundred from the lower landings on the river, and the Daisy made three or four trips, from Bewdley, Hall's Landing, Harwood, and other places, bringing 200 or 300 more. The Sunbeam brought a heavily laden barge from Keene and other points and added about 300 to the merrymakers. The Beaver ran from Hastings, and Robins', McCrackin's and Humphries' Landings and brought to the Point about 400 picnickers. In addition to those who went on the steamers, a large number made use of small boats in reaching the Point, and altogether there was a very large gathering at the beautiful picnic ground.

On reaching the Point the first consideration was dinner, an important part of every picnic, and the tables under the trees were soon occupied, while many spread their cloths on the green sward in the usual picnic style. Others patronized the well managed dining room of the Point hotel, while some of the Golden Eye's passengers had dined at the well-served tables in the saloon of that steamer.

AMUSEMENTS.

The dancing pavilion was taken possession of and to the music of Mr. Butcher's orchestra and Prof. Crowe and family's orchestra the dancers enjoyed the pleasure of "tripping the light fantastic toe" during the afternoon. The swings on the grounds were utilized, and boating and other amusements were indulged in, while many enjoyed strolling through the fine grove.

THE SPEAKING.

Shortly after dinner the platform erected for the speaking was occupied and several excellent addresses were delivered. Mr. F. Birdsall, President of the East Peterborough Institute, presided, and among those on the platform were Messrs. N. Awrey, M. P.P. for South Wentworth and President of the Central Farmers' Institute, Prof. Fletcher, Entomologist at the Ottawa Experimental Farm, Thos. Blezard, M. P. P. for East Peterborough, D. Kennedy, President of the West Peterborough Institute, Robert Vance, of Ida, President of the Provincial Agricultural and Arts Association, Jas. Russell, President, and R. Cullis, Secretary, of the West Northumberland Institute, J. R. Ewing, Secretary of the East Northumberland Institute, Jas. Moore, Reeve of Asphodel, John Buckham, Reeve of South Monaghan, Wm. Collins, Secretary of the Committee, John Stothart, Treasurer West Peterborough Institute, Wm. Rutherford, Vice-President West Peterborough Agricultural Society, W. H. Meldrum, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, Jas. G. Macdonald, Town Clerk of Peterborough, E. Peplow, of Hilliard & Peplow, Peterborough, W. J. Westington, ex-President West Northumberland Institute, Jas. Davidson, Smith, J. J. Bennett, North Monaghan, J. Smithson, Geo. Taylor Henderson and W. J. Miller, Otonabee, Robert Burgess, Belmont, Watson, of Harwood, Geo. English, Asphodel, E. McLeod, R. Macklin, T.B. Westington, Alex. Russell, West Northumberland, John Carlow, Robt. Armour, David Carlow, East Northumberland, Wm. Stewart, Walter Sharp, Samuel Nesney, East Durham. The Chairman read a letter from Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., regretting his inability to be present.

Mr. Thos. Blezard, M. P. P., was the first speaker introduced by the chairman. He expressed the pleasure it gave him to be present, and said that although the farms have suffered from drought they should have patience, for rain would come. They had always had seed time and harvest in this great country of theirs, and had never suffered from a famine and need not fear one. They would have had others speakers present from a distance but for a circumstance which they all mourned, the death of the Premier of Canada. However, their were other speakers present and he would not take up their time.

Mr. R. Vance was next introduced, but after a few congratulatory remarks gave way for the other speakers.

Prof. Fletcher, after a few preliminary remarks, outlined the Dominion Experimental Farm system and the work at the central farm at Ottawa. It was organized to carry on experiments for the benefit of the farmers of the country and the farmers should make use of it by sending for the reports and bulletins and by sending seed to be tested. The officers were the hired laborers of the farmers of Canada. Referring to grass seed and the different kinds of grasses, he illustrated and emphasized the importance of having the seed tested before it was purchased and sown. The weeds and insects that were most injurious were introduced from other countries and the weeds were often brought with seeds. There were beneficial and injurious insects, and injurious insects had their parasites that destroyed them, but insects were brought from other countries and the parasite not being present, they multiplied and destroyed, and this made it necessary that the lives of the insects should be studied to discover means of getting rid of them, which was done at Ottawa. The farmers were losing 10 per cent. of their income by insects, and it was unnecessary. For instance the turnip fly was a destructive insect, but it was an easy one to fight. To kill it mix one pound of Paris green with fifty pounds of land plaster and apply it along the rows. The cabbage maggot, that attacked the roots of the cabbage in the first week of July, could be killed by mixing 5 cents worth of hellebore with two and a half gallons of water, pulling away the earth at the root and pouring some of the mixture on the root. Cut worms did a great deal of damage to tomato and cabbage plants. To prevent that grasp a piece of paper around the stem of the plant as it was about to be placed in the ground and put some earth around it to catch and hold the paper. If they wished to learn about any of these things they could procure the reports or bulletins from Ottawa or write to the farm about them.

Mr. N. Awrey, M.P.P., congratulated the Institutes on the magnificent gathering. He mentioned a number of trade and business organizations, and said it was right that the farmers, the most important part of the community, should have organizations. They should not be led blindly, but should weigh all arguments carefully, and on the other hand they should not hastily condemn innovations. He had heard farmers complain that farming did not pay. There were several reasons for that. They should not hold to the old methods of twenty or thirty years ago. They could not now tickle the soil with a harrow and cause it to produce golden grain, and they must return to the soil some of the fertility that had been taken from it. They could not grow wheat profitably, but they should turn their attention to other lines, as they had done with cheese. If they had butter of equal quality with the cheese to export they could sell $10,000,000 worth in the English market every year. Another reason why they did not make money was that they were more extravagant than formerly, and bought ten times as much machinery as they ought to and often did not take proper care of it. They should remember that they would not make money by driving fast horses or neglecting their business, and they should educate their boys. He did not believe that a boy with a classical education made a worse farmer, but he advised them to attend the Ontario Agricultural College, where the curriculum was especially suited to farming. The professions were crowded, but there were not enough farmers, and the success of the country depended on farming, for there was land enough. The speaker then made a graceful reference to the death of Sir John Macdonald. While he (Mr. Awrey) differed with the late Premier in politics, above all other things they should learn from his career to have faith in their country and in its prospects. Sir John had had implicit faith and confidence in the country, and that, he believed, had won for him victory in many hard fought battles. They should derive inspiration from his life, and by having faith in their country and working for it they would have success.

The speakers were attentively heard and frequently applauded, and at the close of Mr. Awrey's address the Chairman thanked them on behalf of the Institutes for attending and the proceedings closed with cheers for the Queen.

The boats soon after left the wharves on their homeward journeys, and the Golden Eye, after a another pleasant sail, reached its wharf at about 9 30. The master of this steamer, Capt. Clare Calcutt, and his assistants handled the boat well and were energetic in attending to the requirements of the occasion.

Some rain fell while the Golden Eye was going down the river, and just as she was leaving the Point there was a heavy shower, but the picnickers were favored with fine weather while on the picnic ground.

A Pertinent Question.

"What is home without wall paper," asks a local dealer. Home may have paper on the walls and carpet on the floor and patent, corrugated, anti-friction shingles and cupola chimney, but if it lacks Hawley's teas in the pantry, then indeed is home bereft of a source of joy and satisfaction. Every complete household has Hawley's teas. Try them. d131

You Take no Risk

In buying Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it is everywhere recognized as the standard building-up medicine and blood-purifier. It has won its way to the front by its own intrinsic merit, and has the largest sale of any preparation of its kind. Any honest druggist will confirm this statement. If you decide to take Hood's do not be induced to buy anything else instead. Be sure to get Hood's.

For the Boy's Sport.

Goughs, the great clothiers, this week announce a big thing for the boys. With every suit of boy's clothes, or in fact with any purchase up to $1.00, Goughs will give a baseball and a bat. This is so much clear profit to the boy who will get splendid value in the clothes anyway, and the bat and ball are the neatest thing of the kind made, good, serviceable and well finished. There is only a limited supply of bats and balls and not enough to go round the boys of the country, every one, but those who come first will get the best. Buy your boy's clothes while the gift sale is on, and remember that is only at Goughs' that you can do so well. Gough Bros., the Wonderful Cheap Men. 1w24-2d127

Decorate Your Homes.

The great clearing sale of wall paper continues with unabated vigor at the Peterborough Bookstore. Boys may be seen delivering huge parcels of paper in all parts of the town at all hours of the day. The marvellously cheap prices are attracting an endless stream of buyers, but the stock is so large the strain has hardly been felt as yet. Don't miss this opportunity to buy cheap wall paper. People who never thought of it before are decorating their homes with nobby paper from the Peterborough Bookstore. They can afford to do it and never feel the expense, our prices are so low. There are 40,000 to 50,000 rolls of wall paper to select from, of all styles and qualities. The sale will last only about thirty days. Don't delay too long. The best bargains are being picked up every day. J. R. STRATTON. d124tf

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. Pamphlet free. If you are thus afflicted, we will send you a Belt and Appliances on a trial.

The Visit of the 57th to Ottawa.

The Ottawa Journal speaking of the proposed four days visit of the 57th to Ottawa says:—"They have been advised, however, that the sights of the Capital are not sufficiently numerous to keep them employed four days, and possibly their plan may be altered in consequence, although in any event they may be sure of a hearty welcome from the Guards and the city." This from an Ottawa paper may be taken as a friendly hint, to prevent any disappointment that might arise from making too long a visit. Better have a good two days trip than a tiresome four days of it.

Red and rosy cheeks follow the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills. They are nature's remedy for driving out all diseases resulting from poor and watery blood, enriching that vital fluid, building up the nerves and promptly correcting irregularities, suppressions and the ills peculiar to females Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing The Dr. Williams Med. Save Your Hair

By a timely use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation has no equal as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, and preserves the color, fullness, and beauty of the hair.

"I was rapidly becoming bald and gray; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—Melvin Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. H.

"Some time ago I lost all my hair in consequence of measles. After due waiting, no new growth appeared. I then used Ayer's Hair Vigor and my hair grew

Thick and Strong.

It has apparently come to stay. The Vigor is evidently a great aid to nature."—J. B. Williams, Floresville, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles street, Haverhill, Mass.

"I have been using Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and believe that it has caused my hair to retain its natural color."—Mrs. H. J. King, Dealer in Dry Goods, &c., Bishopville, Md.

ROMANCE IN COURT

Alfred S. Schneider's Gay Career Ended by a Suit at Law.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Supreme Court yesterday heard a romance. Suit was begun against A. S. Schneider, a good-looking German of 35, for the recovery of 80,000 marks, the property of his wife. In addition, it is said, Schneider will be prosecuted for bigamy. Mrs. Schneider for over a year had lived in widow's weeds, weeping night and day for her husband, whom she believed to have died in Spain. One day last Christmastide, however, on Broadway, she walked unexpectedly into her husband's arms, who was escorting a pretty Spanish girl.

Schneider originally said farewell to his wife in October, 1889, when he sailed away to Germany with power of attorney to obtain 80,000 marks bequeathed to her by her father. Months passed, but no word reached her of her husband's whereabouts. At last, in the following spring, a letter came to the effect that his ship had been wrecked on the Spanish coast, but that he had been saved. Later came the sad intelligence, in a strange hand, that her husband was dead. With the letter came 1000 marks, all that he had left of her fortune.

USED A PIANO AS A HOUSE.

Evidences That a Man and Woman Eloped in a Piano Box From Toronto.

VICTORIA, B.C., June 11.—A piano case, supposed to contain a piano and consigned to W. R. Wright, Victoria, came through from Toronto some months ago and a claimant not putting in an appearance the case was placed in the freight shed here awaiting an owner. Yesterday the company decided to examine the piano, but when the case was opened, instead of an instrument being revealed, the interior of the case was found to be fitted up as a comfortable little apartment and bearing traces of having been occupied by a man and woman during the trip across the continent. A good soft mattress was on the bottom of the box and several articles of male and female apparel were scattered round. The sides of the box were adorned with hooks for clothes and some morsels of food were scattered around. Several air holes in the box and cover were fitted with hinges, so as to easily open from the inside. As the case came through in a bonded car the occupants of the box could of course escape detection. The case is believed to have been occupied by an eloping couple, but who they are is a mystery.

WHAT THE TIMES THINKS.

Devotes a Leader to Reviewing the Canadian Political Situation.

LONDON, June 11.—The Times devotes its first leader to-day to the Canadian political situation. The Times thinks Sir Hector Langevin is impossible as the successor of Sir John Macdonald not only because he could not lead a party mainly recruited from vehement Protestantism, as The Times holds the Conservative party is. The same objection The Times applies to Sir John Thompson, while the fact of his being a Nova Scotian by birth will operate both against him and Sir Charles Tupper in the other parts of Canada. Sir Charles Tupper, The Times says, is probably the ablest man, but Lord Stanley may wisely decide to choose a politician less exposed to criticism. Mr. Abbott, The Times thinks, will probably be accepted as a provisional chief.

This is the line adopted in The Canadian Gazette yesterday, which suggested that Mr. Abbott should be chosen temporary leader and the session be speedily wound up and a full reconstruction of the Cabinet left till the recess.

All Vessels Violating the Terms of the Agreement to Be Seized.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A telegram received at the Treasury Department from Capt. Cooper, commanding the revenue steamer Corwin at San Francisco, says the vessel is ready for sea. Secretary Foster had a conference with the President to-day in regard to the seal fisheries and it was decided to take immediate steps for enforcing the agreement with Great Britain for a closed season and to have the revenue steamers and naval vessels co-operate with the English fleet in establishing an effective patrol of the sealing grounds. It is expected the Corwin will sail in a day or two with orders for the revenue cutters Rush and Bear to warn all sealing vessels away from Behring Sea, and thereafter to seize all vessels found violating the terms of the agreement. Similar orders will probably be issued to the English fleet now near Esquimault, B.C.

Killed on Pelee Island.

WINDSOR, June 11.—During a thunder storm on Pelee Island John Percy Mills was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Two other persons received mild shocks. The storm is considered to be the worst experienced on the island for many years.

Died in a Lock-up.

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., June 11.—John Thompson, whose parents reside in Madoc, county Hastings, died in the lock-up here of typho-malarial fever. He was in a dying condition when he got off the boat, from Spanish River, without money and without friends, was arrested as a vagrant and run into a cell, in which he had scarcely room to turn.

Lightning's Singular Freak.

GALT, June 11.—During a thunder storm that visited this locality early this morning a herd of 12 milch cows lying in a field on the farm of Peter Bower, between Galt and Preston, were instantly killed by lightning, not one of the whole herd escaping.

Typographical Union.

BOSTON, June 11.—At the International Typographical Union convention to-day the proposition to create a "law officer" was reported favorably from committee, but was defeated. The committee's report setting apart 33⅓ per cent. of the capita tax for a burial fund, $30 to be allowed for burial expenses of each member, was adopted.

W. B. Prescott of Toronto, Ont., was elected president on the second ballot, his opponents being Marion Johnson of Fort Worth, Tex., and S. L. Freeman of Birmingham, Ala.

A Sunstroke Not an Accident.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Judge Phillips of the United States Circuit Court has decided an interesting point in a suit on an accident policy. Willoughby Dozier, who died about a year ago from the effects of a sunstroke, was at the time carrying an accident policy and suit was brought on the policy by the beneficiary. He sustained the demurrer of the defendant on the ground that a sunstroke is not an accident but a disease of the brain arising from natural and known causes.

Found Dead.

OTTAWA, June 11.—Charles Sharpe of Russell, near Ottawa, one of the oldest and most respected settlers, was found dead in bed this morning. Death is supposed to have resulted from heart disease.

Postoffice Robbed

ORILLIA, June 11.—Burglars effected an entrance into the postoffice last night. They drilled two holes in the safe, but abandoned the job. The burglars left their tools and lamp scattered about promiscuously as if they had decamped suddenly.

Died in Jail.

WOODSTOCK, June 11.—Moses Green, a poor old colored man who was sent to the jail here some time ago from Ingersoll as a vagrant, died there yesterday. The coroner's jury found that death was due to natural causes. He was 88 years of age.

Fatally Injured.

BRANTFORD, June 11.—This morning Mr. Dodds, a milkman living north of the city, was driving into the city with his sister and while coming down the hill near the hospital a portion of the harness gave way, and the team became unmanageable, running away. Mr. Dodds, who is partially paralysed, was unable to get out of the rig, which was badly smashed. He was picked up insensible and it is thought his injuries are fatal.

A Brakeman Killed.

BRIGHT, June 11.—Brakeman H. Dodd of Stratford was killed at 5.20 this evening while his train was shunting in the yard. He missed his footing and fell between the cars, one car passing over his neck. Death was instantaneous. He leaves a wife.

Nature proves a remedy for all ills, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is natures remedy for the ills peculiar to the female system. Suppressions, weakness, nervousness and all diseases resulting from impoverished blood, speedily yield to their treatment. Sold by dealers, or sent on receipt of price—50c. per box, or 5 boxes for $2—address The Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising in the widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realize results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL!

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Brin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Yesterday's Sederunt [illegible] Home Missions [illegible] Missions.

KINGSTON, June 12.—This morning when the General Assembly resumed work attention was given to matters arising out of the Home Mission and Augmentation reports. The augmentation fund having been found at the close of the ecclesiastical year to be deficient to the amount of $4000, it was moved by Dr. Campbell that a reduction be made of not less than $30 nor more than $50 from income to those participating in the fund. After a long discussion extending over almost the whole forenoon the assembly did not endorse this proposal, but instead thereof gave special instructions to presbyteries to take an increased interest in augmentation and seek to bring up the fund in another year to a higher state of efficiency.

On motion of Dr. Caven the moderator was asked to prepare an address to be printed and read from pulpits and extensively circulated, with a view to the improvement of augmentation finances.

Sanction was given by the assembly to the formation of young men's and congregational societies in aid of Home Missions and Augmentation.

Rev. A. Findlay, on a vote of 120 to 52, was allowed an increase of $200 on his salary as superintendent of missions for the home mission field in the Muskoka district.

The old scheme of the distribution of probationers was reported unfavorably and by request of the committee the assembly allowed this committee to be discontinued. A new scheme was proposed and handed to a committee for examination to be reported on at a future sederunt. Twelve applications have come before the assembly from ministers belonging to other churches in England, Scotland and the United States to be received into the Presbyterian Church in Canada. These applications will be dealt with later on in the session.

The evening session was devoted to foreign missions. Financially speaking the foreign mission fund has had for the past year a fund of $130,000, while ten years ago the amount was but $40,000.

The foreign work conducted by the Presbyterian Church in Canada is in India, China, and the Northwest Indians, the New Hebrides and Trinidad.

The speakers this evening were Dr. Wardrope, E. Scott, Principal Grant, A. B. Baird, Mr. John A. McDonald, missionary elect to the Indians of British Columbia; Revs. Hugh McKay of Broadner, W. H. McRae from Trinidad, Mr. Barclay of South Formosa and Naryan Sheshadrai the converted Brahmin from India.

Just as the hour of adjournment had come the clerk informed the assembly through a telegraphic despatch of the death of Dr. Weir at Quebec.

Fifty Years in the Public Service.

MONTREAL, June 12.—The following is the return of the traffic earnings of the C.P.R. from June 1 to June 7: 1891, $372,000; 1890 $316,000; increase for 1891, $64,000—earnings of the New Brunswick Railway included in both years.

A Blaze at Westport.

WESTPORT, Ont., June 12.—The buildings of the Westport Stove Co. and bookstore of John McGuire were burned this morning. Loss to the stove company $6000, insured for $1500. Mr. McGuire's loss was $2000, insured for $500.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT.

MESSRS. THOMPSON AND ABBOTT SUMMONED.

They Had a Consultation with the Governor-General Yesterday, But No Definite Result Achieved Up to the Present—Interviews with Several of the Ministers.

OTTAWA, June 12.—The great political problem, who will form the next Ministry, has not yet been solved. A prominent Ontario Conservative said to-night that whatever the solution might be the party was ready to accept the choice loyally.

Sir John Thompson had an hour's interview with the Governor-General at his office in the eastern block at noon to-day. Being asked afterwards whether he had been summoned to form a Cabinet, he replied: "I was merely consulting His Excellency on departmental business. I have no instructions on that point." This afternoon Sir John Thompson had another long interview with Lord Stanley, this time being accompanied by Mr. Abbott. At the conclusion of the interview he made the announcement to the press that he and Mr. Abbott had been consulting with His Excellency regarding the formation of a new Government, but no decision had been reached.

To-night no definite settlement has yet been reached. Sir John Thompson said to a reporter at a late hour that nothing had transpired to be made public.

To-day's Citizen says: We take it that no Conservative, no well-wisher of his country, no high-minded and unselfish Canadian would for one moment, will for one moment consider his personal interests except as merged into the general interests of the commonwealth. This being so, the strongest possible man, the man drawing around him the collective strength of the party, the man best known to the electorate at large, the man identified with Canada since Confederation—should first be considered. That man is beyond doubt Sir Charles Tupper, and whether he would accept or decline the position we are perfectly unaware. Nevertheless, we are bound to speak according to what we believe to be a national sentiment, and do so irrespective of other individual claims or aspirations. Personally, other men may be preferred, and it is quite within the range of probability that Sir Charles Tupper, unless urged by the united strength of the Conservatives, and even then, might prefer escaping from the active turmoil which some years ago threatened to carry him off before his leader. Still, if we know those now eligible, we are convinced they have no ambition that would lead them into any other path save that of duty, save that which promised to strengthen the hands of those who believe in the policy left as a sacred heritage by the great leader, whose life was one of self-denial and labor, and who on the threshold of Confederation relinquished his claim to the position of Prime Minister in order to conciliate and strengthen both friends and opponents, in his struggle to bring about the union of the provinces. We feel that the country's interests must stand first, and that these demand a union of all the intellectual forces of the dominant party. In saying this, we express one opinion only; we do not profess to reflect that of Conservatives generally, and no matter who is called to form a government from the Conservative majority we feel assured a loyal and generous support will be accorded. We are bound to say, however, that

A Provisional Prime Minister will be a public proclamation of weakness—a flag of truce never yet displayed by Conservatives.

And why? The answer must be patent to all. It is an admission from which conclusions the reverse of correct may be drawn. The party is united, firm, solid, unwavering. It wants a leader who is going to stay, and given that leader his supporters will keep him there. As we have said, the party is strong, united, willing and compromises would not alone prove dangerous but be unworthy of those into whose charge the destinies of the nation were entrusted little more than two months ago. Compromises make fair umbrellas, but very poor roofs; hence the man who is to lead should at once be installed as the permanent frontispiece, the responsible head, looking to the future as well as the present. The hour has arrived—the Conservative party awaits the man.

OTTAWA, June 12.—Chapleau does not hesitate about expressing his views very freely about the present crisis. Interviewed by a reporter he said: Under the present circumstances I do not think any provisional arrangement should be made. We are fresh from the electorate and we can form a strong ministry. Sir John Thompson, to my mind, is the only man who can give a guarantee of stability in reorganization of the government and party. He will meet with difficulties but we believe that our Ontario friends will see that it is their duty and interest to join and co-operate at this juncture. Sir John Thompson is essentially an Englishman and a Britisher. As the ex-Minister of Justice has frequently pointed out in his speeches this Government is governed by political not religious principles. The selection of Sir John as Premier would besides meet with general acceptance both in England and the United States. There are various international questions still unsettled, and with Sir John Thompson at the head of affairs the prospects for a satisfactory solution of all difficulties would be greatly improved.

"What about Sir Charles Tupper?" asked the correspondent.

"His nomination would be open to two objections. Despite his well-known abilities it is well known that the unpleasantness existing between himself and a powerful corporation might become more intensified. Again, his selection would mean the withdrawal from active public life of his talented son, whose services the party cannot afford to lose.

C. H. Tupper said: "Sir Charles Tupper does not seek the Premiership. His inclinations are all the other way and if a contingency arose necessitating his presence here we would not come unless the Conservative party as a unit expressed itself in a most unqualified manner. If it were thought he could best direct affairs Sir Charles would, I have no doubt, make personal sacrifice. If his inclinations had been consulted he would not have participated in the election campaigns in 1887 and 1891, but personal reasons were made subordinate to what he considered, politically speaking was a deep sense of duty both to the Premier and the Conservative party.

Mr. Abbott said to your correspondent, "I am not in a position to communicate any intelligence with regard to the situation. Thus far I am not aware that Lord Stanley has taken any action. I may tell you that there are men in the late ministry more capable than myself at this juncture to form a government. Personally I do not favor any provisional arrangement. I shall cheerfully support the Governor-General's choice."

A MANITOBA MURDER.

A Young Englishman Murders His Employer's Sister-in-Law.

MARQUETTE, Man., June 11.—James Tadgell, a farmer living near Woodland's post office, left his house at 6 p.m. yesterday to attend a trustee meeting, leaving his sister-in-law and a young Englishman about 17 years of age, whom he was bringing up, at home. When he returned about 7.30 o'clock he could find neither. On a search being made blood was found near the door, covered with earth, and also on the kerbstone on the well, and on a pail of butter down in the well. A light was lowered into the well and the young girl's body was found head downwards in the water. Tadgell's watch and gun were gone. A neighbor named Edward Langley heard two shots fired shortly after 6 o'clock, and there is no doubt the young Englishman is the murderer.

The woman's name was Mrs. Anna Rodway and her home is in Philadelphia. Her murderer, whose name is Pattenden, has been arrested and has made a full confession.

SONS OF IRELAND.

Meeting of the Grand Lodge at Orangeville Yesterday.

ORANGEVILLE, June 12.—The Grand Lodge of the Sons of Ireland Protestant Association opened its annual meeting in Tyrone lodge room yesterday. The following grand lodge officers were present from Toronto: A. E. Whiston, grand president; A. R. Williamson, acting grand vice-president; John McFaul, grand secretary; Follis Johnston, grand treasurer; Rev. J. C. Madill, grand chaplain; Robert Dunlop, Thomas Rooney, grand lecturers. Each lodge of the association was represented by its full complement of delegates. Reports were received showing substantial progress in each lodge of the association during the past year and a rapid growth in membership. Grand President Whiston, Grand Secretary McFaul and Treasurer Johnston submitted their annual reports, which were found satisfactory and adopted. The Grand Lodge devoted its attention to the proposed amendments to the constitution, adopting some and rejecting others. Those pertaining to the benefits were exhaustively discussed, and the changes tend to the material advancement of the order. The election of officers for the ensuing term resulted as follows: A. E. Whiston, Toronto, grand president; Robert Dunlop, Toronto, grand vice-president; John Phillips, Toronto, grand secretary; Follis Johnston, Toronto, grand treasurer; Rev. J. C. Madill, Toronto, grand chaplain; Robert Kerr, A. R. Williamson, Toronto, grand lecturers; William Harding, Orangeville, grand director of ceremonies; Joseph Nelson, Thomas Rooney, Samuel Wright, Toronto, grand trustees; A. Hughson, Orangeville, J. M. Dixon, Toronto, auditors.

FELL FROM THE BOAT.

While Testing His Invention a Port Hope Man is Drowned.

PORT HOPE, June 12.—James Donaldson, aged 50, rowed out on the lake last evening to test a new boat which he had built himself and just launched. When last seen he was sitting on the edge of his boat and it is supposed he overbalanced and fell into the lake. His cries for help were heard by a couple of small boys but before assistance arrived he had gone to the bottom. His body was found after an hour's search.

A PECULIAR DEATH.

Remarkable Death of An Orillia Man from a Trifling Wound.

ORILLIA, Ont., June 12.—Charles Sweet in company with several other gentlemen went over to Horse Shoe Island to camp. One of the party had been cutting tobacco and left his knife on the ground inside the tent. Mr. Sweet in turning over ran the blade of the knife about a quarter of an inch into his arm. Nothing was thought of it at the time as the wound did not bleed at all, and was not painful, but the next day Mr. Sweet complained of it and a doctor being consulted pronounced it a case of blood poisoning. He gradually grew worse and died in a few days.

Swept Over the Falls.

OTTAWA, June 12.—A gang of men employed on the Gatineau by Ald. Bingham were engaged at the head of Aylen's chute, about one and a half miles below Kazabazua Creek, yesterday morning bringing down the logs. This chute has three falls narrowing at the bottom, each one of which is worse than the Chaudiere. By some means two men named Paquette and Tremblay were swept over the boiling waters and dashed to death below.

Had His Jaw Taken Out.

HAMILTON, June 12.—James A. Snider, flour and feed dealer, York-street, has been suffering from pains in his lower jaw, and it was found that Mr. Snider was suffering from a cancer in the jaw. To save his life it was decided that the affected portion of the jaw must be removed. The operation was performed by five city physicians. The left side of the lower jaw, from the ear to the chin, was cut out. In order to facilitate the operation it was necessary to cut a hole in the tongue, through which a string was run to tie the organ out of the way. Mr. Snider is in a critical condition.

Drowned in the Thames.

BOTHWELL, June 12.—A girl named Annie Austin, aged 12, was drowned in the River Thames about two miles from here to-day. She had taken off her shoes to wade across. The current had evidently taken her off her feet. Some parcels were found and a search was then made for her body, which was found about half a mile below where she had undertaken to cross.

Dropped Dead.

THE RECENT RAINS.

Bradstreet's Weekly Report on the Business Outlook.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's from many of the leading business centres point to the approach of the customary midsummer dullness in general trade. From nearly all points come reports of a declining movement of staple merchandise, slow or only moderately fair mercantile collections and conservatism on the part of lenders of money west and northwest. Wheat harvesting is progressing favorably in Kansas and California, with promise of a large yield. In Texas the crops are all improving and in Louisiana some of the effects of the drouth have been overcome.

In the Canadian Dominion recent rains have helped the cereal crops and thereby improved trade prospects, but country merchants are asking re-discounts more than could be wished. General trade is not active in any line. The Dominion reports 22 business failures this week, against 11 last week and 12 this week last year. The total number Jan. 1 to date is 911, against 885 last year.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL IN THE COMMONS.

Religious Bodies in Various Sections of the United Kingdom Score Wales Unmercifully for His Share in the Affair—The End is Evidently Not Yet.

LEEDS, June 12.—The police have arrested a weaver named Turner on charge of murdering the little child Barbara Waterhouse.

The Baccarat Scandal to be Brought up in the House of Commons.

LONDON, June 12.—It is understood the Prince of Wales is keenly stung at the adverse press criticisms which have been showered upon him from all quarters. Especially is this the case in regard to newspaper comments, which practically accuse him of revealing the secret of the Tranby Croft scandal, and referring to the fact that the Prince was not asked if he had spoken of the affair to anybody after Sir William Gordon Cumming signed the incriminating document, while this question was put to all the other witnesses for the defendants. The Prince of Wales emphatically denies that he divulged the secret to anybody.

In the House of Commons Monday next William Summers (Liberal) and Henry Peyton Cobb (Radical Nonconformist) will question the Secretary of State for War as to what action he intends to take in regard to the three officers, the Field Marshal the Prince of Wales, Gen. Owen Williams and Lieut. Berkeley-Levett of the Scots Fusilier Guards, who signed the document which practically allowed Sir William Gordon Cumming to remain an officer of the British army, although he was believed to have cheated at cards, and as to what action he intends to take in regard to the same officers for having broken the army regulations requiring that such a case should be brought to the notice of the commanding officers.

Several Radical members of the House of Commons have met and decided to put a series of questions to the Government bearing upon the responsibility which the Tranby Croft party incurred in concealing Sir William Gordon Cumming's offence, and the question of military discipline involved. If the replies are unsatisfactory they will move an adjournment. It is understood the Liberal leaders will hold aloof from the contemplated censure of the Prince of Wales.

The Official Gazette announces, under date of June 10, that the name of Sir William Gordon Cumming had been removed from the list of officers in the army, as Her Majesty has no further occasion for his services.

The Southern Baptist Association has passed a resolution condemning the Prince of Wales for the part he took in the baccarat scandal and instructing the secretary of the association to send the Prince a copy of the resolution.

Sir William Gordon Cumming has requested the people of Forres, Scotland, not to take any steps to celebrate the arrival of Lady Gordon Cumming and himself at their future residence.

REQUIEM IN THE ABBEY.

Impressive Memorial Service at Old Westminster in Honor of Sir John.

LONDON, June 12.—A requiem in honor of the late Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian Premier, was sung in Westminster Abbey this morning. A number of most distinguished people, representing by proxy the Queen, the Prince of Wales and the various members of the Royal family, were present. Among the prominent persons who attended this ceremony were the Marquis of Lorne, ex-Governor-General of Canada, and the Right Hon. William Henry Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, representing the Government. Westminster Abbey was crowded with distinguished people, who sincerely mourned the loss of the great Canadian statesman.

The Maple Leaf League.

MONTREAL, June 12.—There is a movement on foot here to perpetuate the name of Sir John Macdonald by establishing an organization to be known as the Maple Leaf League of Canada, on the same principle as the Primrose League of Great Britain, namely, the maintenance of integrity of the empire, the upholding of religion, etc. It is also proposed that June 6 be observed as a national holiday in commemoration of the late Premier; that every member of the league on that day wear a maple leaf, etc. It is proposed that ladies should take a prominent part in the new organization.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering 8 Years

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1883 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

NO DISCRIMINATION.

THAT unrestricted reciprocity with the United States would involve discrimination against Great Britain as well as other parts of the world was for a time denied by its advocates. But Sir Richard Cartwright's words at Pembroke, and in answer to a direct question at Whitby, made it clear that discrimination must be a part of unrestricted reciprocity. To such a policy, in any part of the Empire, the Imperial Government is opposed, as was shown by its action in regard to the treaty negotiated between Newfoundland and the United States. In a report of the Privy Council of Canada on January 29th last this statement was made:—

"The Canadian Government has declared its policy to be that no commercial relations with a foreign country should be acceded to by Canada which would involve tariff discrimination against the mother country, and this principle has had the approval of Her Majesty's Government; but it will be difficulty to induce the people of Canada to continue to believe in the importance of that principle, as a safeguard to the interests of the Empire, if Great Britain now makes a convention for Newfoundland under which the United States is able to discriminate directly against Canada."

The Imperial Government felt the force of that view, and withheld its sanction from the draft treaty. In concluding his despatch on the subject Lord Knutsford, the Colonial Secretary, said:—

"I trust I have made it clear that while Her Majesty's Government are willing to assist a colony in negotiating a separate commercial arrangement, they cannot conclude such an arrangement as long as it is not compatible with those other Imperial interests and obligations which it is their duty to regard."

This is not a new policy on the part of the Imperial authorities, but it is a confirmation of their adherence to the principle of no discrimination against the mother country or other colonies, and it makes clear the fact, which has been recognized, that unrestricted reciprocity with the United States would involve separation from Great Britain. The people of the Dominion, however, pronounced against that scheme last March and any light that has been thrown on the question since then emphasizes the good judgment displayed in that decision.

THE day on which Sir John Macdonald was laid to his final rest was also the eighteenth anniversary of the arrival in Montreal for burial of the remains of his old friend and colleague, Sir George Cartier. Most prominent among those who followed Sir George Cartier to the grave was the dead Premier, says the Montreal Gazette, and with him walked the old friend and colleague of both, Sir Hector Langevin, who has been spared to render a like last tribute to Sir John. Among the others who, as pall bearers or colleagues, took a chief part in Sir George Cartier's obsequies, death has been busy. Sir John Macdonald survived most of them, having lived to see the death of Sir Francis Hincks, Judge Polette, Hon. Thos. Ryan, Sir A A. Dorion, and Hons. L. Letellier, James Ferrier, J. H. Pope, John O'Connor, Christopher Dunkin and L. V. Sicotte.

STORIES IN SEASON.

SNAKES AS OBSERVED BY THE PRESERVATION OF TRUTH SOCIETY.

The Snake With Sense, as the Texas Man Knows Him, and the Snake with an Ear for Music That Causes His Death.

The tall man from Texas and the short man from Kansas were guests of honor at the weekly meeting of the Society for the Preservation of Truth last night, and when refreshments had been served they were asked to favor the society with some true snake stories.

"The man that says snakes ain't got sense don't know anything about snakes," began the tall man. "Some snakes has more sense than others and, just like men, the best looking ones don't always have the most sense.

"For a snake with plenty of good, hard snake sense, every-day sort of sense, give me the big, black chicken snake every time. They are ugly-looking creatures, but there is no harm in them; they are not poisonous and can't hurt you.

"Well, these snakes eat nothing but young chickens and eggs when young chickens and eggs are in season, and between seasons they fast and plan new schemes for catching food next year. I've known them to do lots of cute things, but the best trick of all was the one worked by a big black snake that lived in my barn down in Texas off and on for five years.

"One spring, when he first came out of his den, he was awful poor, so poor he was a mass of wrinkles. The first thing he did was to look around the barn for chickens and eggs. It had been a hard winter, and the only hen that had commenced to lay had just gone to sitting on sixteen eggs in one corner of the barn. The snake found the nest and ran the old hen off, but he did not swallow the eggs, no, sir; he had too much sense for that.

"He coiled up on that nest full of eggs and kept them warm for three weeks, never once leaving the nest, and then he hatched fifteen as healthy chicks as you ever saw. I expected him to swallow the whole fifteen of them in about two minutes, but he didn't; he had too great a head on him for that.

"What he did do was just to crawl around with those young chicks and scratch for them same as their own mother would have done. He didn't exactly scratch, but it was just the same in results. He would crawl under a board or plank and turn it over, exposing the worms underneath, and the little chicks would gobble them up. You never saw chicks grow any faster than that brood did.

"Nothing happened to the young chickens until they were 8 weeks old and as fat as they could be. You never saw prettier frying chickens, and then they began to disappear, one every day. I was deeply interested in the brood by this time, and watched them every day to learn their fate. I soon discovered that they were being swallowed one each day by that snake. Great head that reptile had, I tell you.

"Instead of making one meal out of those sixteen eggs he hatched them out, then hustled for the chicks until they were fat and juicy—result, fifteen square meals for as many days. Yes, sir, he swallowed one chick a day until all fifteen of them were gone. What became of the snake? Oh, I have him in training now to enter a contest to eat one quail a day for forty days."

When a fresh bottle had been opened the short man from Kansas observed that snakes, in common with other reptiles, birds and animals were fond of music.

"At my place in Kansas, some years ago, we discovered a small, brown colored mouse snake that was a real genius. He took to music just as natural as a duck takes to water. We discovered him only after he had run all the women and children out of the house and given our house the reputation of being haunted.

"My two daughters were taking music lessons. One night we were all reading in the parlor, when suddenly the piano began to play. No one was near it and the lid was down. We all sprang up amazed and startled. One of the girls went over to the piano and started to raise the cover, when she suddenly remembered she had locked it half an hour before and had the key in her pocket.

"'It's a ghost!' she screamed, and ran out of the room. I felt sort of squeamish myself, but there sat the piano playing away, and I noticed it was playing the same tunes the girls had been practising on. I determined to investigate, and getting the key I unlocked the piano and opened it. I could see nothing, and then I thought of ghosts myself. I locked the piano, and in five minutes it was playing again. The playing continued for two hours.

"Next day the girls would not touch the piano, and the invisible performer played at intervals all day. The next day I sent for a man to come and tune the instrument. I did not tell him about the strange performances, and he went ahead and took the instrument to pieces. Coiled among the strings he found the little mouse snake. He was about to kill it, but I stopped him. Well, when my girls found out what it was that had played the locked piano they took the snake and made a pet of him.

"They taught him a number of popular pieces, and he soon became so tame he would go to the piano and play any tune he was asked to. He played by crawling back and forth over the keys and striking them with his tail. But the poor little snake, just like men and women of genius, had a tender heart and was very sensitive. When pathetic music was played he would shed real tears. One day the girls took him to hear Blind Tom play. When the great blind musician struck up one of his sad and melodious gems the little snake went into a trance and died."

After a vote of thanks to the tall man and the short man the society adjourned.—New York Sun.

Cast off the Demon.

A well-known American writer says: "It is fair to say that of the adult population not one person in ten is free from dyspepsia, and yet it is an entirely preventable disease, one for which there is absolutely no excuse."

Doctors who are called upon by dyspeptic people often err in their diagnosis, and treat for some other ailment. To those who suffer from this dreaded trouble, it is almost unnecessary to describe the symptoms. It will be well, however, to remind the sufferer of nausea, gnawing at the pit of the stomach, heartburn, variable appetite, dizziness, furred tongue, constipation and sallow skin. For dyspepsia and attendant troubles, that great scientific discovery, Paine's Celery Compound, goes direct to the root of the difficulty, and gives permanent relief. No other remedy of the present day has been so successful for the cure of this terrible disease. It does its work thoroughly, and builds up the body with flesh, bone and muscel; it gives strength to the nerves, and a look of freshness to the countenance which no other medicine can give. Try it dyspeptic sufferer, the result will make you happy.

THEY KISSED EACH OTHER.

While the Scoundrel Who Deceived Both Was Sent to Prison.

HAMILTON, June 12.—At the Sessions today Daniel Hickey, a gallus-looking young man, was put on trial for abducting and seducing Sarah Jane Badgley, a very pretty young girl about 16 years of age. Hickey had deserted his wife and two children in Toronto and came here. The prisoner went to board at the Badgley house, 167 John-street north, and passed as a bachelor. On May 6 he persuaded the girl to elope with him and took her to a hotel in Stuart-street, where they stayed all night and then went to Dunnville.

The prisoner's wife was in court, but was not called. Chief McKinnon found her at 49 Broadway-street, Toronto, yesterday, where she is living poorly, supporting her two children by her own work. There was a very affecting scene in the Crown Attorney's room when the wife and the girl who had been seduced by the prisoner met each other. Mrs. Hickey is very good-looking and lady-like in appearance. The two young women kissed each other and had a good cry together.

The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to the full extent of the law, two years lacking one day, in Central Prison.

REMNANTS OF A RACE

All that Remain of the Tribes of Alabama Indians.

The Alabama Indians came from east of the Mississippi river over one hundred years ago. They have been gradually reduced in number to about 280, of which there are now about sixty warriors. The name of the chief is John Scott, and there are four leading or rather subordinate chiefs; viz., Billy Poncho, Washington Silestine, Charley Thompson and Joshua Poncho. They have acquired little of the habits, customs, etc., of civilization, clinging with tenacity to the savage customs of their race. Some few do not use whisky. They are generally honest, truthful and industrious; they are peaceful and very grave in demeanor, yet at the same time very susceptible to mirth when they perceive things ludicrous. A portion wear the same clothing as their white neighbors; others the garb of their forefathers. They are fond of ornaments; prepare themselves beautiful work in beads and colors. The men wear long black hair, and where they have not adopted the dress of the whites wear bright colored shirts and buckskin leggings. The squaws dress in bright colored calico, with a profusion of beads, tin and silver ornaments. The Alabama Indians take care of the old and helpless among them. They live in a village on Big Sandy Creek on a tract of 1280 acres of land given them by the State of Texas. They have fields, and raise corn, cotton, sweet potatoes, sugar cane and peas, and have horses, cattle, hogs and poultry. They raise sufficient grain for bread, and pick cotton and do other work for the farmers. They are also successful hunters; their houses are built of logs and slats, and accustomed to the open air, as the inmates are, they are sufficiently comfortable. They are governed by their own tribal laws, which are in some instances very strict; they slay the murderer, etc. They are expert ball-players and have the following dances: The green corn, bear, horse, frog, deer, bird, chicken, scalp and war dances, and mimic the different animals and birds in their dances. The Alabama Indians have been for some time instructed by Rev. Mr. Curry and his wife. Mr. Curry is now dead and Mrs. Curry is still teaching them.—Galveston News.

Five Receipts for Chapped Hands.

1. Mix one part tannic acid, 500 parts glycerine, 5,000 parts rose water.

2. An excellent ointment consists of 1½ ounces lanolin, one-half dram olive oil, thirty grains salol, fifteen grains menthol.

3. For hands or lips: Dissolve boric acid, one part, in glycerine twenty-four parts; add lanolin, five parts, free from water, and vaseline, seventy parts. The mixture may be colored or perfumed.

4. Whenever taking the hands out of water wipe dry, and while yet damp, rub well with cornstarch or clear starch powdered.

5. Take common starch and grind it with a knife until it is reduced to the smoothest powder; put it in a clean tin box, so as to have it continually at hand for use. Then, every time the hands are taken from the suds or dish-water, rinse them thoroughly in clear water, wipe them, and, while they are yet damp, rub a pinch of the starch thoroughly over them, covering the whole surface. The effect is magical. The rough, smarting skin is cooled, soothed and healed, bringing and insuring the greatest degree of comfort from this by no means insignificant annoyance.

What Choir Singers are Paid.

A prominent New York music teacher is authority for these facts: There are no less than two thousand singers employed in the choirs of wealthy churches of New York who receive but $1 a week for their service. About one thousand are paid $2, and less than two hundred receive $4 a Sunday. This means attendance at morning and evening prayers, at least one rehearsal a week and occasional work at the sociable or reunion, for which the chorister receives a plate of salad and a biscuit or a saucer of ice-cream and a lady finger. There is a good deal of money in religion, but it does not appear from the above fact that the choir has a very large share of it. Mlle. de Vere, the Patti of church choirs, get $130 a Sunday, which is unprecedented in the church world of music.

Weak Women.

The more sensitive nature of the female sex renders women much more susceptible than men to those numerous ills which spring from lack of harmony in the system. The nervous system gives way, sick headache is frequent, the appetite is lost, and other ailments peculiar to the sex cause great suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for such cases, and has received the most gratifying praise for the relief it has afforded thousands of women whose very existence before taking it was only misery. It strengthens the nerves, cures sick headache and indigestion, purifies and vitalizes the blood, and gives regular and healthy action to every organ in the body.

Physicians Beat

With no more common or dangerous malady than Catarrh. It begins with a cold in the head, often resists all forms of treatment and runs from simple irritation of the mucous membrane to chronic inflammation and destructive ulceration. Before Clark's Catarrh Cure was known, the doctors adopted a long course of constitutional treatment with their patients, but now they recommend them to go to the druggist and get a package of Clark's Catarrh Cure. When the druggist cannot supply, the remedy will be sent by mail on receipt of 50 cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

A Bad Cut.

Mr. Robert Martin, a carpenter employed on the Edison Co. building, received a severe cut from an adz just above the knee yesterday afternoon which will lay him up for a few days at least. Medical help was summoned and a few stitches were taken to close up the wound.

Whiskers that are prematurely gray or faded should be colored to prevent the look of age, and Buckingham's Dye excels all others in coloring brown or black.

Coming Entertainment.

An entertainment will be given by the Public School children about the end of this month and practice is now going on. The third rehearsal was held this afternoon in the Opera House under direction of Mr. J. E. Ketchum, some 300 of the school children taking part. The affair will be one of unusual interest and no doubt parents will assist by seeing that the little ones attend the practices regularly.

Decoration Day Fixed.

The Oddfellows' Decoration Day will be observed by the local lodge this year on Friday, June 26th. The joint committee of the two local lodges appointed to make the necessary arrangements for Decoration Day met last evening and decided to observe the date above mentioned as the one upon which the graves of the departed brethren lying in Little Lake Cemetery should be decorated. As is usual, citizens generally will probably observe the day with the Oddfellows and, as in past years, there will undoubtedly be a public half holiday. The arrangements will be similar to those of former years. All the arrangements were not completed at last evening's meeting and the committee adjourned to meet again on Tuesday night next at Otonabee Lodge room.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d16w4-6m

A Former Resident Now in the West.

In a letter received from Mr. Geo. A. Morrison, one of Peterborough's former townsmen but now in Tacoma, W. T., he says:—"The REVIEW is always welcome here. I am pleased to see that the old town goes on improving and that it is likely to continue. I notice with regret that many of the old friends and neighbors are passing over to the majority. We Canadians in the city are taking a great deal of interest in watching the morning papers re Sir John Macdonald. While, politically speaking, I was not an admirer of his, I do think his death would be a severe blow to Canada. We are getting along nicely out on the coast. We have felt the closeness of the eastern money markets, the same as other parts of the world. Our spring has been cold and backward until a few weeks ago, but now everything is growing rapidly and crops and fruit prospects never were better. The general business of the city is picking up and we look for a lively summer and fall. We occasionally have a Peterborough man drop in on us and we are always pleased to see our eastern friends."

A box of Ayer's Pills have saved many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments, and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

CANADIAN FORESTERS.

The High Court Session—The Officers for the Year.

The annual meeting of the High Court of Foresters held at Toronto was attended by over two hundred delegates.

The most important legislation was the granting of the Northwest Territories and Province of Manitoba permission to establish a District High Court.

The High Court will meet next year in the city of Stratford on the second Tuesday in June.

The election of officers was completed at 2.30 o'clock this morning. Mr. A. McNeil, of Court Peterborough, is to be congratulated on his re-election to a position on the Executive Committe, showing that his brethren of the High Court appreciate his able services. The officers elected are as follows:—

Off for the Fishing Grounds.

On Monday, the 15th, the close season for maskinonge and other fish ends, and many an angler will cast his line early on Tuesday morning. To-day a party left for the fishing grounds in the neighborhood of Bobcaygeon to be on hand for the opening. The party was composed of Messrs. G. W. Doxsee, J. W. Doxsee, W. McCamus and M. Mowry.

Must Keep in the Townships.

A cow belonging to Mr. John McLellan, who lives a short distance from the town boundary in the township of Smith, strayed into town on Thursday and got into the hospital grounds and Mr. F. Mason's garden. Chief Roszel tracked the cow home with the result that Mr. McLellan paid one dollar and costs ($2.85) for his bovine's rambles at the Police Court this morning.

Rescued From the Water.

The body of the unfortunate boy, Frank Gilman, the six-year-old son of Mr. John Gilman, of Ashburnham, who was drowned in the Otonabee just below Rogers' dam on Monday morning last, was found this morning. Day after day the search for the body was prosecuted without any success. This morning a Mr. Martin, who had been fishing down the river, discovered the body just below the locks. When found the body was still on the bottom and how it came through the waters of the river and lake as far as the locks and not floating was a mystery. The body was hardly recognizable.

THE NATIONAL MEMORIAL.

Others Places Taking the Matter Up—Contributions Received.

Other places have joined in raising a fund for a national memorial for Sir John Macdonald. The Toronto Empire says:—"Let every Canadian who wishes to have the privilege of joining in the contributions send in his mite, which, we are inclined to think, should be nearer 25 cents than any other sum, in order that anything like ostentatious giving should be avoided, and the Memorial can be pointed to as the spontaneous tribute of the whole nation, the poor joining with the rich and having an equal share in the honor which the nation proposes to do itself." MUSIC FOR MANY.

The Weekly Band Concert—A Desire of the Band Which Should be Realized.

The band gave its third open air concert of the season in the Court House Park last evening, the programme of various selections rendered with great effect and taste was highly appreciated by the immense crowd which was present, promenading the beautiful walks. The programme as rendered was as follows:—

Red River Quick March	J. Judd
Elysian Waltzes	A. S. Bowman
Comic Fantasia	Rollinson
Grand Religious Fantasia	Rollinson
Maritana	Wallace
Ferryman John	C. H. Herritt
Harvest Feast	H. Round

God Save the Queen.

There is a desire which animates Bandmaster Miller and his men at this time and one which the music loving public should devise some means of having realized. Everyone who listens to the well shaded, soft tones of the band knows what an effect is given the music by the clarionettes. What the clarionettes are to the brass instruments, the saxaphones are to the clarionettes. They will give a softness of tone, a full, well-rounded volume to the band music which cannot be infused in any other way. Always aiming at giving the best of music the band are now desirous of purchasing a family or quartette of saxaphones and they should be aided in such a manner that they will be enabled to do so. The quartette of instruments will cost about $400, and in order that they could be brought into use next spring should be purchased this summer to give the musicians a chance to practice during the winter months. Let some of the many persons who enjoy good music take the matter up.

WORDS OF WELCOME.

A Reception to the Edison Employees Given by the Y.M.C.A.—Speeches by the Pastors.

An evening of exceptional enjoyment characterized the gathering at the Y.M.C. A. rooms last evening, when a reception was held to extend a welcome to the employees of the Edison General Electric Company who are now here.

The arrangements made for the reception were somewhat elaborate and quite a number of Peterborough's new citizens employed at the Edison works were present to receive the warm hand shake and hearty word of welcome that was extended. Not only was the welcome extended by the Association officers, but nearly every church in town was represented by the speakers and a welcome extended to the Edison men, not only to Peterborough, but to the respective churches of the town.

The rooms had been appropriately decorated, prominent among the flags displayed being the stars and stripes, the national banner of the land from which many of the new residents hail.

Mr. Geo. J. Early, President of the Association, presided, while the excellent band of the organization was present and discoursed several selections throughout the evening. After the opening exercises the President, in a neat address, welcomed the new comers to Peterborough and to the Association rooms, extending them at the same time a hearty invitation to the rooms at all times.

Then came addresses in order from the local clergy or their representatives. Rev. S. J. Shorey, of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church was unable to be present, but Mr. O. C. Rowse, superintendent of the Sunday school of that church, was there and spoke in his stead. Rev. E. F. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's, is in Kingston attending the General Assembly, and Sheriff Hall, Superintendent of St. Paul's Sunday school, addressed the meeting on behalf of the absent pastor. Mr. G. M. Roger, a past President of the Association, made a short address, and was followed by Rev. Mr. Trotter, of the Murray-st. Baptist church, Mr. G. A. Smith, churchwarden of St. John's, Rev. A. McWilliams, pastor of St. Andrew's, R. J. Colville, General Secretary, and Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's, who had just arrived home from the Synod meeting in Toronto. These addresses were all live and inspiring, and each speaker had warm words of welcome for the Edison men. They all advised their new fellow townsmen to lose no time in getting to work in churches of their choice and each speaker extended them the warmest of invitations to their respective churches.

In his happy remarks Rev. Mr. MacWilliams, the newly-inducted pastor of St. Andrew's church, told the Edison men that if their welcome to Peterborough was as cordial and warm as his had been they would be well satisfied. He said he did not know where they could meet a more social and kinder people than he had here.

Mr. Tobie, one of the Edison employees, also made a short address, in which he returned thanks on behalf of himself and his fellow employees for the hearty reception and warm welcome that had been given them. He said that he was struck with the town and was sure he would like it.

At the close of this programme refreshments were served. The Ladies' Auxiliary had prepared the tempting edibles which were greatly appreciated by the young men present.

EARLY CLOSING.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—At the meeting of the W. C. T. U. on Monday last I was glad to learn that the early closing movement, inaugurated by the ladies, is meeting with such favor among the merchants. The canvassing committee has but partly done its work and reports success so far.

There is another class of establishments to which early closing would be a boon, and this class might easily be overlooked. I refer to the dressmakers' shops. Every Saturday night, especially in the busy seasons, delicate girls in these shops work until nearly midnight under pressure, to finish dresses that must be worn on the Sabbath. And this they do without pay for overtime. These girls are as unfit for Sabbath duties as are those who stand behind the counters.

Now, I fancy some lady will say in righteous indignation, "Yes, that is so, and should not be allowed!" Dear Madam, do you know why it is allowed and even considered necessary? Because you "must have that dress on Saturday" as you have "really nothing to wear on Sunday."

Sisters, if your experience is like mine we must all plead guilty to this offence. Let us not altogether blame the mistresses of these establishments for late hours. The fault lies, to a great extent, in us. Have we not repeatedly had dresses sent home to us at eleven or twelve o'clock on Saturday night? I confess with shame, to having one sent home at ten o'clock on Sunday morning. I never imagined it any of my business when it came and went to church in it with a serenity of mind to be envied with never a thought of the little woman who had worked until one o'clock that morning and was too tired for church.

That was some time ago. Now that the arrest of thought has come to me, I could not do such a thing. How many of you can make like confessions and what shall be done about it?

I hear of one dressmaker who works evenings herself, but never asks her girls to do it. All honor to her, and I hope that the day may soon come when we shall so understand our relations to one another and humanity at large that none shall be obliged to imperil their spiritual as well as their physical health on account of the thoughtlessness and selfishness of others.

Yours for humanity,

Appleby's Success.

Mr. A. B. Appleby returned home to-day from an expedition to the west, where he succeeded in capturing first money at the Woodstock trotting races Wednesday and Thursday last. In the 3 minute trot his mare Mollie Clark, driven by Mr. C. Chadburn, made three firsts and one second against a field of five starters. The time was 2.36. On Thursday she captured, in the 2.40 trot, first money, making three firsts out of five heats, the clip being down to 2.30. The game little mare is a good one and well handled will pull down the time to lower figures yet.

Sarsaparilla belongs to the smilax family of plants, and is found very generally over the American continent; but the variety that is richest in medicinal properties is the Honduras root, of which the famous Ayer's Sarsaparilla is made.

Decorate Your Homes.

The great clearing sale of wall paper continues with unabated vigor at the Peterborough Bookstore. Boys may be seen delivering huge parcels of paper in all parts of the town at all hours of the day. The marvellously cheap prices are attracting an endless stream of buyers, but the stock is so large the strain has hardly been felt as yet. Don't miss this opportunity to buy cheap wall paper. People who never thought of it before are decorating their homes with nobby paper from the Peterborough Bookstore. They can afford to do it and never feel the expense, our prices are so low. There are 40,000 to 50,000 rolls of wall paper to select from, of all styles and qualities. The sale will last only about thirty days. Don't delay too long. The best bargains are being picked up every day. J. R. STRATTON. d136f

A Pertinent Question.

"What is home without wall paper," asks a local dealer. Home may have paper on the walls and carpet on the floor and patent, corrugated, anti-friction shingles and cupola chimney, but if it lacks Hawley's teas in the pantry, then indeed is home bereft of a source of joy and satisfaction. Every complete household has Hawley's teas. Try them. d131

My Great Discovery.

Have you got corns to endure?
If so, you know their stings;
In my summer shoes of Kings.

Uppers like silk, with the insoles
As soft as the bat's wing.
No pegs to cut your feet in holes,
In the shoes that's made by King.

If corns and bunions pains you sore
You need not screw your face no more,
Relief I have—buy in my store
King's shoes from Kidd the booter.

City Milk Depot.

We are prepared to supply 1,000 quarts best new milk every day, delivered in any part of the town until the 1st of December, for 6 cents per quart, or from now until the 1st of June, 1892, including the winter months, at 4½ cents per quart. We have Sweet Cream every day. Skimmed Milk, 3 quarts for 5 cents at the Milk room. Fresh Butter and Buttermilk every day. We can furnish any quantity of Ice Cream to private families or socials cheaper than usual.

For the Boy's Sport.

Goughs, the great clothiers, this week announce a big thing for the boys. With every suit of boy's clothes, or in fact with any purchase up to $3 00, Goughs will give a baseball and a bat. This is so much clear profit to the boy who will get splendid value in the clothes anyway, and the bat and ball are the neatest thing of the kind made, good, serviceable and well finished. There is only a limited supply of bats and balls and not enough to go round the boys of the country, every one, but those who come first will get the best. Buy your boy's clothes while the gift sale is on, and remember that is only at Goughs' that you can do so well. Gough Bros., the Wonderful Cheap Men. 1w24-2 1127

The Electric Health Shoe.

Mr. Jas. T. Stenson, the veteran boot and shoe merchant, who has just removed his business to 364 George-st, next Ormond & Walsh's drug store, has been appointed agent here for the Electric Health Shoe, a new invention which has just been put upon the market. These shoes are supplied with a gentle current of electricity, by means of a battery in the sole, and it is claimed the electro-magnetism creates a lively circulation through the whole body, keeps the feet warm and dry, and protects the human system from the deadly chills which cause sickness. These shoes cost no more than any other kind, and wear quite as well. Mr. Stenson is the agent in Peterborough. 4d133-4w25

A Peterboronian's Soliloquy

on hearing of the excursion of the Library Committee of Charlotte-st. Methodist church on July 1st, to Stony Lake, return fare 50 cents:—

To go or not to go: this is the question,
Whether 'tis better to remain at home
And bear the pain that loneliness doth bring,
Or take away from self a ticket fare,
Which will not let me lonely be some more.
Now let me think. I place within this scale
The good I gain; in this the "comforts" found,
That as a stay-at-home I must give o'er.
There's pleasure—one; there's energising health—that's two,
There's friends to make—three, can capture fish "immense"—
Well, no, I think me I will not count that as "good;"
Will nature's beauties see; and lie beneath trees green
Which may together counted be as four,
Can bathe and gambol—five, as long as it doth last,
But—then good bye, the lazy man's content;
Adieu, the lack of relish for one's meal, for other food demand,
And au revoir, moroseness by the hearth;
My temper too, will cranky be, and sour,
And I will have to leave, ejected e'en by force.
I'll find myself—but hold! the spell is past,
The madness seizeth me at times, but when
I gaze upon myself in my mind's eye,
Ensconced at home, alone, and moping all the day,
It leaveth me. I am myself again—
A ticket bought, the happiest man in town.

A Royal Quilt.

A prize competition of especial interest to every lady who does fancy work, is just announced by THE CANADIAN QUEEN. The lady making by hardwork, the handsomest block one foot square, (to be of silk, either in one piece or patchwork, and embroidered or hand painted according to the taste of the marker) for the Royal Quilt, will be presented with a pony, cart and harness, value $200.00. The Royal Quilt will contain forty-eight blocks, and to each of the next forty-seven ladies sending the handsomest block will be presented with either a solid gold watch or an elegant silver tea service, value $40.00. Send four 3c. stamps for the last number of THE QUEEN, containing full instructions of the competition, and particulars as to what will be done with the Royal Quilt. Address THE CANADIAN QUEEN, "Royal Quilt Competition," Toronto, Canada. 5d136-5w26

Dominion Day.

The question of where to pleasantly spend this holiday now comes to the front. Most people desire to go where they can enjoy the day without much trouble and expense, and at the same time where they can have areally pleasant time. Where that place is cannot be open to question. The picnic at the St. Joseph's hospital grounds fills the bill exactly. There will be an excellent programme of sports, the prize list being a tempting one, and all who attend this picnic will have a day of thorough enjoyment. 1d136

By a timely use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation has no equal as a [illegible]. It keeps the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, and preserves the color, fullness, and beauty of the hair.

"I was rapidly becoming bald and gray; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—Melvin Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. H.

"Some time ago I lost all my hair in consequence of measles. After due waiting, no new growth appeared. I then used Ayer's Hair Vigor and my hair grew

Thick and Strong.

It has apparently come to stay. The Vigor is evidently a great aid to nature."—J. B. Williams, Floresville, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Tennyson's Latest.

The New Review for March, just published leads off with the following new poem by Lord Tennyson, called "A Song":—

To sleep! to sleep! The long bright day is done
And darkness rises from the fallen sun,
To sleep! to sleep!

Whate'er thy joys, they vanish with the day;
Whate'er thy griefs, in sleep they fade away.
To sleep! to sleep!

Sleep, mournful heart, and let the past be past!
Sleep, happy soul! All life will sleep at last.
To sleep! to sleep!

Mr. Archibald Grove, editor of the New Review, paid more than $10 per word for this poem. It was also sold through a syndicate, and altogether Lord Tennyson cleared over $5,000 by this poem.

WARNED BY A MOUSE.

I.

The old manor-house at Barton-Bridge, although one of the quaintest and most picturesque houses in this side of the country, was not half so well known as it deserved to be. Cut off from the high-road by a clump of ancient and well-wooded wych-elms, the few travelers who passed by the plantation gates plodded or drove wearily up the steep hill beyond it, reached the top, admired the view away across the valley of the Bar, and never dreamed of what a curious old manor-house lay hidden among the trees.

Its master and owner, John Trowbridge, was an old-fashioned bachelor, who prided himself on three good things—old books, old wine, and old friends; and though he had few of the last, and their visits were few and far between, he always declared that they were 'enough for him, and enough was as good as a feast.' It was a lonely place, too, ten miles from the county town, and six from the station; while the whole hamlet of Barton consisted of about a score of cottages, all clustered round the tiny church, half a mile down the valley below. The Squire therefore,—as he was everywhere called—when not busy in his library, troubled his head about few things beyond his own domain, lived in a royal sort of easy comfort on half his income; and gave up most of his time and thoughts to the care of his niece and ward, Miss Grace Rivington, declaring at times that she was the plague of his life; and at others, that without her he did not know what would become of Barton manor. Left an orphan when a mere child, with a fortune of twenty thousand pounds on coming of age, she had grown up at last to be a high-spirited, and charming a young lady as could be found in all the country-side. In short she was the old man's pet, and managed by dint of coaxing, flattery, and scolding to have her own way "in things little or big," as John Trowbridge often confessed. His favorite name for her was, "the little witch;" "a wee body, but with a mind and a spirit big enough to manage the most fussy and troublesome horse in the stable, or out of it."

These were the two who sat chatting together one wintry evening in November, on the day of her coming of age, when contrary to all custom in such cases, and in defiance of his urgent intreaty, she had insisted on having no dinner party and no birthday celebration; but a quiet time "just for us two," she said, "and I can have you all to myself." Dinner was over, the wine and walnuts were on the table, and that was wheeled up to the blazing wood-fire; Graves, the butler, had departed, and at last she could speak freely.

"My dear, dear uncle," said she, "there never, never was, and never will be, anything half so beautiful as the necklace you gave me this morning. I had it in my pocket all dinner-time, and was longing to look at it the whole time.—But why did you spend so much money?"

"Why, my dear! Well, because you are such a naughty, ill-tempered, ugly little shrimp; and I determined that people should look at your diamonds to-morrow, if they wouldn't look at you. As to money, child, I only had the stones reset; they were my mother's fifty years ago, and her mother's before that—a wedding present from that old Jack Trowbridge, whose eyes are now looking down at you from the other side of the room. "Gentleman Jack" they used to call him when he came back from India and brought the diamonds with him."

"Look!" she said, taking them out of the dainty morocco case—"see, how they shine in the light of the fire! I shall be as grand as a queen to-morrow night at the ball; and in that lovely dress from Paris, O uncle! the very happiest girl in Cornwall! What can I say, what can I do, to thank you—the dearest, goodest, wisest of old uncles!"

"Well, if you won't have any more wine, Miss Grace Rivington, say good-night; be off to bed, and lock up the necklace in a safe place, and keep the key in your own pocket. You'll have a thousand things to do to-morrow; so go now and get your Beauty sleep, that you may look your best at night. Half the women will go crazy at the sight of your necklace and gay feathers; and all the men about your lovely face.—But mind, the first quadrille is for me."

They chatted on for a while, and she playfully reminded him that only a month before he had utterly refused to have a dance at the manor-house, or to let the house be turned upside down for any such nonsense. "And now," she added, "here you are decking me out like a queen, and begging for a quadrille!"

"You're a witch, my dear, nothing more nor less, and you know it; and I am an old goose, and don't know it; so, good-night."

In less than an hour from that time the diamonds were safely locked up in an old-oak cabinet, and the happy owner, like most of the household, sound asleep, and dreaming of all the joys of the coming morrow.

The morrow came, as most to-morrows do, in good season, heavy with clouds at first, but slowly breaking out into sunshine at last. Miss Grace Rivington, after her Beauty-sleep, came down to breakfast, and that being over, sent off a special messenger to her special friend Florence, at the Grange, the following brief note:

My Dear Florrie: Come over at once, if only for half an hour, and you shall see the loveliest necklace to be found in Cornwall. I am to wear it to-night. G. R.

It was but a short walk from the Grange to the manor-house, and in less than an hour after the receipt of the note, the two friends were in full talk by the side of a roaring wood-fire in Grace's own sanctum, a cosy, snug room, with oak panelling and old oak furniture, which opened out upon the lawn. The two girls were in high spirits; the necklace was duly admired, looked at again and again, carefully put away, and locked up; and then came the discussion of dresses, laces, and partners, about which last point there was a considerable difference of opinion, as great almost as the difference in the personal appearance of the ladies themselves. In that difference, in fact, lay the strength of the friendship. Florrie was a tall dark brunette, with an abundance of black hair; a loud, rather masculine voice, and a still more masculine manner, dress, and tastes.

"And now, Grace" she said at last, "put away all the fal-lals, and I'll tell you all about yesterday's doings, when you shut yourself up like a hermit, instead of being out in the finest run for the season. There were four of us from the Grange, and about twenty other redcoats, besides Charlie Barton and a couple of militia men; and we went straight away for Barton Edge, a downright spin of fifty minutes without a check. Then we ran him in, and killed in the open. Coming back, we found again—another forty minutes; lost him, and then home by the harvest field, where Jack and I and the two militaries went in for a rat hunt with a couple of terriers."

"Glad you enjoyed it, my dear; but no rats for me; I hate the sight of one. The mice behind this old wainscot are bad enough, and terrify me out of my wits sometimes. I am actually afraid of them, and uncle won't have a single cat in the place, so that we are fairly overrun with them. Ten to one, if I only open the door of the old press, out flies a mouse, and away I go as fast as my legs will carry me."

"O Grace! what a coward; afraid of a mouse! Never mind, dear; with that necklace on to-night you'll carry all before you—red coats and black, old stagers and young dandies; they'll all fall in love with that charming little witch of a face of yours. You won't be afraid of them, mice or no mice. I shall stand no chance; but it's time for me to be off; so, good-bye, my dear, until eight P.M.—I shall come early. I'll go out by the window and out across the lawn."

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE.

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from her hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospects of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she is entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

A MISSING LAWYER.

A PARIS COUNCILLOR TAKES FRENCH LEAVE.

Said to Have Swindled His Clients Out of Seven Thousand Dollars in Cold Cash—He was a Society Leader and Universally Popular in the Neighborhood.

PARIS, Ont., June 12.—John MacMillan, one of the best-known legal men in this section and a member of the Paris council is missing. About 10 years ago Mr. MacMillan began practice in Paris. He succeeded in the business and office of a lawyer named Hart, who "skipped out" shortly before that time, taking with him several thousands of dollars belonging to clients, and has since, it is said, been living comfortably on the other side. Everything seemed to go well with MacMillan until within a year or two ago, when he began to develop an affection for the "flowing bowl," which caused his friends much anxiety, and which resulted in financial embarrassments. Almost 18 months ago, it is said, he obtained a loan of close upon $1600 from Mr. S. C. Smoke, barrister, of Toronto, in consideration of which he assigned to that gentleman his furniture, library and business. Things did not mend in the months that followed, though on the outside everything appeared favorable and prospects were good. Things went well until May 20, when MacMillan left Paris for Ayr, ostensibly on business. He was seen in Toronto on the same day by a number of the deputationists who were interviewing the Premier regarding suburban annexation. MacMillan has not been seen in these parts since.

For a day or two his absence was not particularly noticed. Upon enquiry he was said to be at Toronto on business, a statement which the office staff firmly believed, as it was no unusual thing for him to absent himself for days at a time, and without a knowledge of his whereabouts by his partner. When the absence became longer some anxiety was felt about his return. This feeling gave rise to some suspicion among those for whom he was doing financial business. Mrs. Cameron of Chicago, formerly of Paris, wrote him several times for remittances of several hundreds of dollars of which he had possession. No reply was vouchsafed and young Mr. Cameron came from Chicago, to find Mr. MacMillan gone and no signs of his mother's money.

Besides this money and the mortgage granted Mr. Smoke, which is quite a legitimate transaction, it is alleged that the Gouinlock estate is short $1500; Mr. Huson, Paris, $700; the Capron estate close upon $3000, the bank overdrawn $150 and several other parties smaller sums. The alleged defalcations and the debts together will, it is understood, amount to close upon $7000. It is said that most of the money which is not accounted for was collected from the various properties in the shape of rent, and that in the case of the larger amounts he gave the owners and representatives notes for the amounts and put their moneys, it is alleged, to his own uses. Mr. S. C. Smoke of Toronto, who held the mortgage on the office, came to Paris and took possession of the premises and is now running the business, which has been placed under the control of his younger brother, Mr. Franklin Smoke. Mr. Green, who was MacMillan's partner, retired from the business when Mr. Smoke made his appearance.

The whole affair has caused the greatest pain and not a little sensation in Paris. Mr. MacMillan enjoyed so much of the public confidence that he might have been trusted with anything. He is a bachelor, but has always kept a good style, and has all along been known as kind and generous to relatives dependent upon him. He was popular in local society circles and occupied a seat at the town council for the past year or so. He is supposed to have gone to the States, but nothing definite is known.

AWFUL DEATH.

A Walkerton Marble Dealer Precipitated Over a Precipice.

KINCARDINE, June 12.—David McConnell, marble-dealer of Walkerton, left here about 11 o'clock last night to drive to his home in Walkerton. This morning his dead body was found lying in the Penetangore River. His horse was standing over him, while the buggy was smashed. It appears that he dropped asleep and the horse wandered off the road and walked a considerable distance along the bank of the river to the northeast corner of the high school premises, when the buggy fell over the precipice, dragging the horse after it, a fall of over 50 feet. McConnell must have been killed instantaneously, having fallen on the stones on the river side. The horse was uninjured.

SAM SMALL.

The Committee Reports That His Accounts Are All Right.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—A telegram addressed to Rev. Sam Small, 1903 Diamond-street, yesterday afternoon, from Lawyer Thomas Maloney, Ogden, Utah, states that the committee appointed by the Utah M. E. Conference, consisting of Bishop Andrews, Rev. Dr. Diff and Thomas Maloney, to audit accounts in connection with the Utah University, report that they have carefully examined the accounts of the institution and find the same correct.

This, it is said, ends the charge of dishonesty made by Rev. Wesley Hill, pastor of the Ogden M. E. Church, and completely exonerates Rev. Dr. Small from any wrong-doing.

Chinese Missions Attacked.

LONDON, June 12.—Despatches from Shanghai announce fresh excesses upon the part of the anti-European element in the population of China. Attacks upon the Christian missions in the interior continue. In one case the Chinese troops sent to repress the rioters sided with them and made matters still worse. More serious rioting has occurred at Takange, where the lady missionaries were compelled to flee for their lives. About the neighborhood of Lake Poyang several missionary establishments have been looted and burned by the riotous Chinese.

Drowned in Gull Lake.

LINDSAY, June 12.—Miss Leary, eldest daughter of Mr. T. Leary of Moore's Falls, went down to Moore's Lake, about four rods from the door, to draw a pail of water. Not returning, the family and some friends went out to the lake shore where they saw the pail floating off shore. At the foot of a steep rocky ledge the body of Miss Leary was found standing in water about 6 feet deep, she having slipped off the ledge.

CURRENT NOTES.

To be properly appreciated one's organs of speech should not be without stops.

Woman may be able to pack a trunk better than man, but she needs the man to sit on the lid after she has packed it just the same.

De Brush—"I saw a chromo effect in oil to-day that completely captivated me." Palette—"What was it—an autumn?" De Brush—"No, a sardine!"

Teacher—"Tell me some annual, regularly recurring signs of spring." Pupil—"Bock beer, colds, summer gardens, open street-cars, and rheumatism."

Lawyer—"All was excitement during the progress of the fight, I presume?" Witness—"Jes' one cool one." "Who was he?" "A feller killed when the row first started."

Dashaway—"Just look at Miss Jasper. She has a dress for every day in the week." Cleverton—"How the mischief can her father afford it?" Dashaway—"Easy enough. It's the same dress."

BUY NOW IF AT ALL!

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erie property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

AT TURNBULL'S.

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of Dress Goods that were formerly from 20 to 50 cts. a yard. They are odd lines and are now being cleared out at 15 cts. a yard. They can only last a short time. Call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them as they please everybody as to quality and price.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A RAILWAY TRAIN PLUNGES FROM A BRIDGE.

Sixty of the Passengers Drowned and Over 100 Injured—An Inman Liner Narrowly Escapes Being Burned on the Ocean—General Foreign News.

BERNE, June 14.—A most horrible accident occurred on the Monchenstein and Bale Railway to-day through the collapse of a bridge beneath a heavily-loaded excursion train. The train was crowded with people on the way to attend a municipal fete. Sixty persons were killed outright, while hundreds were injured. Two engines and the first car plunged into the river, and all the passengers in the car were drowned. Two cars remained suspended from the bridge. All the trainmen were killed. Thirteen cars were saved.

The musical fete at Monchenstein was abandoned as soon as the news of the accident arrived and hundreds of villagers hurried to the scene to assist in rescuing the victims. The bridge was an iron skeleton structure which was considered well built and substantial. The only apparent reason for the collapse of the bridge is that the train left the rails and threw its entire weight on one side of the bridge.

QUEENSTOWN, June 14.—The Inman Line steamer City of Richmond, some of whose passengers were landed here yesterday, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire on her passage over. On Tuesday at midnight it was discovered that the cotton in her hold was on fire. The fire continued to burn until Friday, when it was sufficiently subdued to allow her to proceed. Meantime the signals of distress, which she had run up, attracted the attention of the captains of the Servia, City of Paris and the British steamer Counsellor, and all three steamers on learning the condition of affairs stood by the Richmond. Just as the Counsellor came alongside her captain suddenly fell dead on the deck. The three vessels remained alongside the Richmond until danger was passed.

The passengers were unanimous in praising the conduct of the captain, officers and men of the City of Richmond. As a mark of their appreciation of the services of the captain and crew, a memorial was presented to the commander of the vessel, while a collection of £70 was taken up for the benefit of the crew. The scene on deck after the discovery of the fire was remarkable. Many groups of women prayed fervently and crying, but no unusual excitement prevailed.

There were 140 barrels of oil stowed close to the burning cotton. Luckily the flames did not communicate to the oil. It is generally believed that the cotton had been smouldering since the steamer left New York.

PARNELL'S MARRIAGE.

Parnell Will Marry Mrs. O'Shea Early Next Week, So 'Tis Said.

LONDON, June 13.—It is rumored to-day that Parnell's marriage with Mrs. O'Shea will take place the coming week. Parnell has subsided somewhat of late, the reason being that he is spending nearly all his spare time in the company of Mrs. O'Shea. The lady is said to look remarkably well by those who have seen her lately, and as being elated over the prospect of her marriage to Parnell. The daughters, however, adhere to their father, contrary to the prevalent impression, and will, it is stated, have no more to do with their mother after the marriage. As the mother is wealthy, however, and their father poor, cynical society whispers that they may change their minds.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

THE BARONET'S NAME STRUCK FROM THE ARMY.

Continental Authorities Astonished That a Field Marshal Should Play Cards With a Subaltern—Sir William Cumming's Marriage.

LONDON, June 13.—There appeared in yesterday's Gazette official notice that Major and Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Gordon Cumming, Bart., is removed from the army, Her Majesty having no further occasion for his services. That is the time-honored formula by which an officer is cashiered. It has not yet been employed with reference to Field Marshal His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, nor with reference to Major-General Owen Williams, nor does anybody suppose it will be. Sir Edward Clarke's fulminations against those officers were sound and fiery, signifying nothing except his desire to score a point for his client and perhaps for himself. It was perhaps the only error in a speech of singular ability.

But the Prince of Wales does not escape the penalty for such mistakes as he has committed. The press turns on him. What is said in respectable papers is seldom very severe in words. It is significant that anything should be said. The Prince, during his long social career, has enjoyed something like immunity from criticism. Seldom have the English papers taken notice of what must have come to their knowledge. But in this case silence would have become mere affectation, and most of them say plainly that the Prince deserves censure. He ought not, in their opinion, to be a gambler, or to keep gambling company, or to carry about with him baccarat counters, or to choose his friends with such plentiful lack of wisdom. He is reminded in more than one leading journal that the monarchy itself is in his person on its trial, "and any personal default of his gives a shock to the principle, which in these democratic days is mischievous and even dangerous." That is perhaps slightly too solemn. So are some of the resolutions passed by religious bodies—in all cases by Dissenters. There are not many of them, and they are not very important; but the outburst in the press is exceedingly important. There are in this country a half-dozen great provincial papers of different parties, which, when they agree on any public matter, may be deemed to express the general opinion of the community. They do agree in rebuking the Prince of Wales in language all the more effective because of its studied moderation.

It must be said that it is not what the Prince has done which has brought down on him this avalanche of reproof. He is the same man he was before Sir William Cumming thought proper to cheat at Tranby Croft. His way of life is the same; it was perfectly well known to his present sermonisers, or to many of them. But they were dumb and they only found their voices when the publicity of this trial made it imperative to say something. It is his breach of the Eleventh Commandment which has proved so disastrous to the Prince. It need not be permanently disastrous, great though the shock of this discovery be to the serious part of the community. Very slight signs of repentance would be accepted joyfully. None is yet made, though the Prince's friends say that his baccarat days are over. He was greeted at Ascot very much as usual, but that proves little, because he was in the same carriage with the Princess, who has never yet been ill-received by any of her future subjects, except those who reside in the southern part of Ireland.

The anger of the working classes is understood to be deep. They think that they have to pay taxes in order to provide the Prince with the means of gambling. Yet all municipal attempts to express this feeling have failed. A resolution of censure offered in the Birmingham Town Council found no seconder.

Perhaps what he will care for most is the continental view of his conduct. French and German officers are scandalized that the Prince of Wales should play cards with subalterns; scandalized still more that his name should be signed to a document the intent of which was to condone, or at least to conceal, an act of cheating at cards by a colonel in the Guards. The military mind abroad does not understand trifling in such affairs. Vienna has spoken loudest; but perhaps it is in Berlin that the indignation is greatest Nor is it thought that the Prince will be likely again to lecture his Imperial nephew on points of deportment.

This military view of things is not the general English view. The point of honor is not their point—or not that of the majority. The middle classes care little, it appears, about cheating. What horrifies them is that cards should be played for money at all. The most perverse opinions are heard. They are sentiments rather than opinions, and the most complete expression of them was in the hissing with which the verdict of the jury was received. No verdict was ever based on clearer evidence. If Sir William Cumming did not cheat when playing baccarat at Tranby Croft on the 8th and 9th of September of last year, human testimony is good for nothing. The jury were never in doubt, the judge was in no doubt, society has no doubt, the press has no doubt; probably the very classes who dislike the verdict believe Sir William Cumming guilty. But in this, as in some other current matters, one section of public opinion is demoralized. The people who hissed in court are people who think it a greater offence to see cheating than to cheat. They dislike the Wilson family. They hold that obligations of hospitality should cover such acts as those of Sir William Cumming. He was the guest of the Wilsons and it was an outrage, they say, that though guilty he should be exposed or even discovered. They consider that it was the duty of the Wilsons, in deference to this particular guest, to allow their other guests to be robbed. They complain of spying and watching, though it is abundantly proved that there was none of either. Sir William Cumming was, in truth, given every chance His friends, from the Prince downward, including the whole Wilson family, strove to screen him. To accept his written confession of guilt and his pledge to abstain from cards was a mistake, but a mistake dictated by charity to him. The Prince of Wales, Lord Coventry and General Owen Williams knew him to be guilty. His confession was not a more damning proof than his demeanor when accused and his conduct since. Yet Sir William Cumming's guilt seems to this curious English middle class less guilty than the indiscretion of the Prince. It is natural that his family should stand by him as they do. But could anything be more grotesque than the triumphal welcome which the Town Council of Forres offer him!

A man of high position found cheating at cards is thought by his former associates to have fallen as low as any man can fall. The wreck of his life is complete. It remained to Sir William Cumming to prove them mistaken. There was one infamy left for him to commit, and he has committed it. He drags a woman down with him. His demeanor and conduct to women have never been defensible, but no act of his life is so base as his marrying Miss Garner, a girl of great fortune, not half his own age. That she wished it, acting under a generous but mistaken impulse, is no excuse. His offer to release her is no excuse. If any sentiment of honor had survived his disgrace he would have shot himself sooner than suffer this lady to add the ruin of her life to his. The only thing her friends can hope is that her eyes may never be opened.

WITNESS AND PRINCE.

Wilson Said to Have Lent the Heir-Apparent $1,000,000.

EDINBURGH, June 14.—The Scottish Leader to-day says that at the time of the Baring Brothers crisis several financiers who had lent large sums of money to the Prince of Wales were obliged to ask him for the return of their money. These sudden demands put the Prince in a serious fix for a time, until Arthur Wilson, at whose house the noted games of baccarat were played, lent the Prince $1,000,000, with which sum the latter paid back some of the money advanced to him by other financiers.

LONDON, June 13.—Sir William Gordon Cumming and his bride received what is generally known as a "royal welcome" upon their arrival at Forres, Scotland, near which burgh Altyre, the baronet's estate, is situated. The bride and bridegroom were welcomed by the provost of Forres at the head of the municipal authorities of the neighborhood. The town was decorated with flags, flowers and bunting, and on their way to Altyre Sir William and Lady Cumming passed beneath several handsome arches. The newly married couple were enthusiastically cheered by the inhabitants of Forres and its neighborhood, who gathered from many miles around to show their sympathy with owners of Altyre. The provost of Forres upon the arrival of Sir William and Lady Gordon Cumming at that place made them a public address of welcome and presented them with congratulations of the inhabitants of the town. Nothing was wanting to show the bridal couple that, though some people might frown upon them, the sturdy Scotch burghers of Forres had resolved to testify in as open a manner as possible their sympathy with Sir William in the troubles which hovered over him and his loyal hearted bride.

Coleridge to Defend Himself.

LONDON, June 13.—It is reported that Lord Coleridge, the Lord Chief Justice of England who presided at the recent trial of the suit of Sir William Gordon Cumming against Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson and others, will take official notice of the charge made against him by Sir William, the substance of which is that the verdict of the jury would have been entirely different had it not been for the partiality for the defendants which the Lord Chief Justice showed in his summing up and charge to the jury.

THE ASSEMBLY.

The Day Devoted to Reports from the Various Colleges.

KINGSTON, June 13.—The whole of the assembly work on the closing day of the first week was devoted to the college department of the church's enterprise. All the institutions report progress and prosperity. Manitoba College is out of debt, is largely attended and asks for the appointment of a new professor. Rev. A. B. Baird was appointed.

For Knox College, Toronto, Mr. Mortimer Clark reported a good work done last session. The graduating class was among the largest in the history of the institution. The receipts to ordinary fund are $21,183, to scholarship and bursary fund $4777.34, to endowment fund $9,708.68.

Queen's College, Kingston, reports 446 students, 40 of whom belong to the theological faculty and 49 from among the arts. Students have the ministry in view. From the Assembly's college fund Queen's has received but $2193.90 out of a minimum of $4000 required for the work.

The Presbyterian College of Montreal reports progress and prosperity and announces the appointment of a canvasser to solicit funds for an increased endowment. The number of students is 76.

Morin College has an attendance of 29, of whom 8 have the ministry in view. The income is $7745.

Halifax College was the last institution on the list to make a presentation to the Assembly. This presentation is of a most encouraging kind. Suitable resolutions were passed upon all these reports, and the Assembly adjourned until Monday.

A Clever Arrest.

TORONTO, June 13.—Detective Murray, chief of the Ontario Detective Department, has after considerable trouble succeeded in effecting the arrest of Thomas Chambers of Guelph, one of the cracksmen who is believed to have had a hand in committing the recent postoffice robberies throughout the west. A few weeks ago Constable F. R. Balmer of Listowel endeavored to arrest Chambers in a Clinton hotel on a charge of being concerned in the robbery of the Brussels postoffice. Chambers' sensational escape from the officers at the time is familiar. After a fusilade through the bedroom door between Balmer and himself, Chambers emerged with two loaded revolvers in his hands. Balmer attempted to bar his passage and Chambers lodged a bullet in the officer's breast, and then coolly marched downstairs and out into the street, his firearms serving to keep the citizens who had been aroused by the firing at a safe distance. Chambers reached the woods unmolested and escaped. The Government was notified, and, learning that Chambers had gone to the Northwest, Detective Murray notified the authorities at the Portage and Chambers was arrested and committed for 60 days for an offence committed there. As soon as his time is up Detective Murray will hand him over to the Huron authorities to answer a charge of shooting with attempt to commit murder.

Suspicious Death at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, June 14.—A man named John Conroy died suddenly in a house in Cumberland-street here to-day. Conroy is a married man, but has not been living with his wife for some time. He has been drinking very hard and was under the influence of liquor at the time of his death, which it is claimed was indirectly caused by a beating he received. An inquest will be held.

A Little Babe Killed by Whisky.

STRATFORD, June 14.—The police were notified yesterday of the sudden death of Willie Stewart, son of Richard W. Stewart, a millwright late in the employ of the George T. Smith Purifier Company. The boy, a fair-haired three-year-old lad, was in good health Thursday, and on Friday morning he was a corpse. An inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by alcoholic poisoning, but by whom administered or procured is unknown to the jury. The mother of the babe is addicted to indulging in liquor to excess.

THE NEW PREMIER.

MR. CHAPLEAU HAS NOT YET AGREED TO ACT.

He Meets With a Painful Accident at Montreal, Spraining His Ankle—Mr. Abbott Resigns His Directorship on the Canada Pacific Railway.

OTTAWA, June 14.—Hon. J. J. C. Abbott having undertaken the formation of a new Cabinet, the next question is as to the composition of that Cabinet. The new Premier himself stated yesterday that constitutional usage provided that the House should be taken into confidence when that announcement was made. The names of the new Ministry will, therefore, not be known officially until Tuesday. In the meantime straws indicate how the wind blows. Mr. Abbott's statement that he had undertaken the task with a full understanding with those of his colleagues whose names had been mentioned in connection with the Premiership and with assurances of their cordial support, means, of course, that Sir John Thompson and Sir Hector Langevin will form part of the new administration. It is a fact that all the old Ministers have been asked to join the new administration and it remains with them to say whether they will or not. Mr. Abbott stated to-day that the formation of the new Cabinet had not been completed. It is probable that with one exception the personnel will remain the same until after prorogation, at least. Sir Adolphe Caron has been drawn closer to Sir Hector Langevin than formerly by the course of recent events. He was closeted with Sir Hector for several hours on Friday and this afternoon had another long consultation with him. He will not go, for the present at least. There is no doubt that those members of the late Government whom the Opposition papers have designated "useless timber" will also form part of the new one. They have been invited—that means they have accepted.

The temperature of the Commons chamber to-day leads members to wonder when prorogation will arrive. The huge thermometer at the side of the Speaker indicated 81 at 9 o'clock to-night, although the chamber was entirely deserted and every air duct and ventilator was open. The Opposition, however, is averse to an early adjournment. They are anxious, for one thing, to see the end of the Tarte-McGreevy scandal. So far the investigation has not got beyond a beginning. It is impossible to say how long it will last.

Hon. Mr. Abbott, the Premier-elect, spent Sunday quietly at his office in the Senate. H spent several hours with Hon. Speaker Lacoste, and his callers included Hon. Mackenzie Bowell and Mr. Kenny, M.P. In the meantime Hon. Mr. Abbott has cabled to London, England, ordering his broker to sell all his stock in the Canadian Pacific Railway. President Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific Railway has also received Mr. Abbott's resignation as a director of the company.

Sir John Thompson, it is very generally understood, was approached by His Excellency with the object of inducing the ex-Minister of Justice to form a ministry. He did not entertain any strong desire to become Premier, in fact all his inclinations were in the opposite direction. His decision was confirmed when it became known that two of his French colleagues did not favor his claims and when opposition developed in various ultra-Protestant quarters in Ontario.

Mr. Chapleau Sprains His Ankle.

MONTREAL, June 14.—A large number of prominent politicians were in the city today, and the political complications are being eagerly discussed. Both Mr. Laurier and Mr. Chapleau spent the day here, and received a large number of their followers, with whom they discussed political matters. Mr. Chapleau was laid up all day with a sprained ankle, as the result of an accident here last night. While walking home to his hotel his foot caught on the sidewalk and he sustained a serious fall. He was badly shaken up, and had to be removed to the hotel. A doctor was called and bandaged his foot. Mr. Chapleau returns to Ottawa to-night. It is understood he will be appointed Minister of Railways in the new Cabinet. Mr. Laurier will return to Ottawa to-morrow.

TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE.

Another Holocaust in New York Sunday Morning.

NEW YORK, June 14.—A tenement house fire in Third-avenue early this morning resulted in the death of three members of one family, tenants of the fifth (top) floor. Those burned to death were: Philip Brady, aged 58; his wife, aged 40; Philip Brady, jr., aged 12. The fire was a mysterious one, breaking out at 3.30 o'clock, and caught the tenants asleep and there were many narrow escapes. Those burned were blackened by the fire and almost unrecognizable.

Frightful Havoc of Grip Throughout the Chinese Empire.

SHANGHAI, June 13.—The grip swept over the Chinese Empire recently and hundreds of thousands of natives died of the disease. It prevailed during a period of 30 days and the death rate was increased frightfully. The Chinese physicians were unable to say what disease was causing the enormous increase in the death rate and the result was a panic. The Mongolians imagined the evil spirit was demonstrating his wrath by sending a plague among them, and they went through the streets of all the large cities beating drums, to drum the evil spirit out of the country. During one week in Canton 10,000 people were buried.

Dr. Parker in his sermon yesterday said not a man or a woman connected with the baccarat case came out with the slightest honor, concluding: "Such gambling adds no security to the throne. Long live the Queen!"

The Dublin Gazette contains a proclamation to-day removing the Crimes Act from operation in the counties proclaimed by Chief Secretary Balfour.

The Daily Review.

THE NEW PREMIER.

THERE were several members of the Cabinet of Sir John Macdonald who were capable of taking hold of the reins of Government and guiding the affairs of the country, and one of the ablest of them, Hon. John J. C. Abbott, has been chosen by the Governor-General. Mr. Abbott has the support and assistance of his able colleagues in forming a Cabinet and assuming the direction of affairs, and a strong Government will continue to carry on the business of the country and follow out the patriotic policy of their late revered leader. The people of the Dominion have emphatically endorsed that policy, and the new administration, composed of able and careful men and men who have received the confidence of the country as colleagues of late Premier, will still be supported by the people.

Hon. Mr. Abbott is a man of great natural ability and long experience in public life. Since 1867 he has been leader of the Government in the Senate, a trying position, as the Senators are keen critics, and in that capacity displayed marked administrative ability.

Mr. Abbott was born at St. Andrew's, county of Argenteuil, on March 12, 1821, and is the son of an Anglican clergyman. In due time he entered McGill University and graduated as a B.C.L., and in October, 1847, was called to the Bar of Lower Canada. He first began his political life in 1857, being elected for Argenteuil at the general election that year for the Canadian Assembly, and continued to be the member for the county up to 1867, when he was again elected for the House of Commons at Ottawa. For a brief period in 1862 he held the office of Solicitor-General in the Sandfield Macdonald-Sicotte Cabinet, and was prior to this made a Q.C. While in opposition in 1864, he introduced two bills which added to his fame as a lawyer. The first was the Jury Law Consolidation Act for Lower Canada, the principal provisions being to simplify the system of summoning jurors, and the preparation of the jury lists. The other act on the statute book is that for the collection of judicial and registration fees by stamps.

At the general election in 1872 he was once more returned for his county. Elected again at the general elections in 1874, he was unseated, and Dr. Christie, the present sitting member, returned by acclammation. He was again defeated in 1878 by Dr. Christie. The latter, however, was unseated and disqualified in 1880 and Mr. Abbot captured the county. He was associated with Sir Hector Langevin on the Letellier mission to England in April, 1879. He was called to the Senate as leader of the Government in that House in 1887, in which post he gave every satisfaction.

Mr. Abbott was for many years chief solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway, which he relinquished on being elected Mayor of Montreal in 1887. He was elected by acclammation for a second term in 1888. He was made a D.C.L. of McGill in 1867, and is a director of the Bank of Montreal and president of the Fraser Institute.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair began coming, and, in three month's he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

A Physician's Tribute.

Sir James Grant paused for a while and then, as if awakening from a contemplative reverie, he continued:—"This closing scene to me was indescribably sad. I had known Sir John for over thirty-six years. I sat for eight years under him in Parliament, and whether in or out of the House, I felt pride and satisfaction in being able to accord any little influence in my way towards helping on the noble work of guiding the best interests of our country, so closely identified with the Premier's life. What Disraeli and Palmerston were to England, what Cavour was to Italy, what Metternich was to Austria, what Bismark is to Germany, what Lincoln was to the United States, Sir John Macdonald was to Canada. He possessed the simplicity of a child combined with the marvellous power of a great statesman. In literature he was an intellectual giant. What was said of Macaulay or of Hugh Miller might well apply to Sir John Macdonald with reference to books. He had the remarkable power of grasping the contents of large volumes in an incomprehensibly short space of time, and in that way his general knowledge of literature and political life in the great centres of the world was developed to a wonderful degree. He rather tended to simplicity of nature and disposition than towards any effort to make the world fancy he was a great man. He utilized his powers quietly, but firmly, and his great aim in life was not self, but his country and his people—the blending together of all nationalities, the commingling all creeds, the broad and philanthropic idea of unifying all elements, and doing everything that was necessary to promote the peace and comfort and happiness of a prosperous people. To this end Sir John's efforts, even to his last day of activity, were directed, in order that in his last message he could say to his people, as expressed in that beautiful sentiment: Pax vobiscum.—Toronto Empire.

A CORPSE IN A BOX.

An Arnprior Woman Strangles Her Babe and Sends it on the Railway in a Trunk

MONTREAL, June 14.—A mysterious case is now being investigated by the police. As the Soo train was about leaving Montreal for the west yesterday a suspicious looking trunk was discovered amongst the baggage, from which a strong odor was emitted. The checks were looked up and it was discovered that the trunk belonged to a woman on the train. When she was confronted with it she acknowledged that she was the owner of the trunk and then broke down. The trunk was opened and inside was discovered a dead infant tightly wrapped up in a quantity of old clothes. The woman was arrested and when brought before the coroner she said her name was Ellen Enwright and that she came from Arnprior, Ont. She claimed to have been employed as a domestic by a Mrs. Shaw of Montreal. Her story was that the child was still-born and in order to avoid an exposure she decided to bring it to Renfrew, where she had friends, and dispose of it. The doctors, however, gave it as their opinion that the child had been strangled and the jury returned a verdict of death from strangulation. The woman was remanded on a charge of infanticide.

MR. PURCELL'S REMAINS.

The Point Where It Was Sunk in the River Pointed Out to the Relatives.

CORNWALL, June 14.—Despairing of securing the body of Mr. P. Purcell by means of the $1000 reward offered the relatives of deceased approached Narmeal Derouchie, who was arrested on suspicion and subsequently discharged. They promised Derouchie $500 with immunity from prosecution for the guilty parties if the body was returned. He undertook the task and showed the relatives of Mr. Purcell a chart indicating the point where the body was sunk in the river about half a mile from the graveyard. The search is now in progress and the news of the recovery of the body is looked for hourly. A grave has been dug in readiness to receive the much-disturbed remains of Glengarry's millionaire.

WITHOUT A PRECEDENT.

The Memorial Service to Sir John Macdonald in Westminster Abbey—

LONDON, June 14.—The service in Westminster Abbey in memory of Sir John Macdonald is a tribute which has no precedent. No colonial statesman has ever before been thus honored. The Queen, the Prince of Wales and Princess Louise sent representatives, and so did the people of Great Britain, in the persons of the Speaker of the House of Commons and many men of distinction. The First Lord of the Treasury and Secretary of State for the Colonies were there for the Government, and a multitude of officials from other colonies were present. Sir John Macdonald's death has called forth praise from the British press of a kind seldom bestowed on a colonial leader. There is at such a moment a real sense of the services rendered to the Empire. He is no longer merely the Prime Minister of Canada; he is an English statesman who, in his time, had shown on a lesser stage gifts equal to those which in the Imperial Parliament itself have made great reputations. For many years Sir John Macdonald's name was hardly mentioned in England, save in connection with some political or diplomatic crisis. He so impressed his will and his policy upon Canada that English rulers felt that Imperial interests were safe in his hands, and safe, without saying, they were safe, with questions of reciprocity and even of political union between Canada and the United States in the air. With other questions of the fisheries more menacing still, the feeling in England was still the same—Sir John Macdonald will manage it all somehow. Probably his political record is unique. To have governed a great colony for a quarter of a century; to have created a great commonwealth under the name of the Dominion and under the Crown; to have, during all this period, strengthened the tie between the colony and the Mother Country—what other English colonial statesman has done such work as this! So he passes away amid such anthems of grateful eulogy as echo about few other graves.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS.

Two Lives Lost in Toronto—Other Towns Give Their Quota.

TORONTO, June 15.—The Saturday half holiday brought sorrow into some homes and even on Sunday there were sad occurrences to record. At the Island on Sunday afternoon, Albert Wright, an employee of Clark Bros., grocers, Yonge-street, was swimming in the lagoon, near the restaurant. Beside him swam a companion named Fenwick. When near the middle of the lagoon Fenwick noticed that Wright was swimming very feebly. He asked what was the matter, but just that instant the young fellow sank. Fenwick seized him and did his best to hold him up, but being tired by his previous exertions was unable to do so. Before other assistance could come Wright was drowned. The body was recovered

Fred Beckett, a bright young lad, 15 years of age, whose parents live at the corner of George-street and Wilton-avenue, went down to the Don on Saturday for a swim. He was accompanied by Bothwell Blair, a younger lad, and both went in above the Winchester-street bridge. Beckett, who could not swim, got beyond his depth, and immediately sank. The body was taken home. Deceased was employed in Muirhead's office in Bay-street

Drowned in the Canal.

CORNWALL, June 13.—A 13-year-old boy named Loucks, whose parents reside in Beaconsfield, was drowned in the canal near lock 18 yesterday morning. The little fellow, with his brother, went to the canal, and seeing some driftwood coming down, went on the beam where the workmen cross, and losing his balance fell into the water.

A Little Girl Drowned.

OTTAWA, June 14.—Yesterday evening about 7 o'clock a number of children were playing on the outside platform of a boat-house near Earnscliffe, when the 7-year-old daughter of William Smith, Redpath-street, fell in and before assistance could reach her was drowned.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

It pays to advertise in the DAILY EVENING REVIEW.

Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "One Hundred Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

Our Natal Day.

As the 1st of July draws near people are looking for a proper celebration of our national holiday. The Sons of Canada intend to celebrate the glorious 1st in regal style at Jubilee Point. An excursion will be run under their auspices on the steamer Golden Eye and palace barge. Dancing on board and at the pavillion. d128

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. How to Use the Mails.

By direction of the Postmaster-General the Chief Post Office Inspector, Mr. Sweetman, has lately been making special enquiry into certain cases in which letters and packages of more than ordinary size had been broken or torn in course of post. The chief inspector's investigations lead to the conclusion that, in the great majority of cases, the damage has been the consequence of the inferior coverings (envelopes, paper boxes, etc.) used for the articles in question. He thinks that if the public would enclose their large letters in envelopes of sufficiently good quality and of a size adapted to that of the contents, and if in making up packages they would use good wrapping paper and tie up the whole securely, very few breakages would occur in course of post. It should be remembered that every letter and parcel cannot be laid in the most careful manner in the bag or box into which it has to be sorted. Post office clerks would never get through their work if they had to adopt this mode of treatment for the vast quantities of matter passing through their hands. At the same time the chief inspector, by Mr. Haggart's directions, is renewing the instructions to post office clerks to do all in their power to avoid damage to mail matter, and this doubtless will have a good effect. If the public would work with the post office to the extent of seeing that the articles they post are in good shape and well secured, the number of complaints would be very materially reduced.

Reminiscences of the Late Premier.

For the past three years E. B. Biggar, of Montreal, has been gathering anecdotes and facts relating to Sir John Macdonald and the result is an anecdotal life of Sir John, which will be issued in a short time. Before going to press Mr. Biggar will be glad to receive any authentic anecdotes or reminiscences on the subject that have not yet appeared in print. Mr. Biggar's address is the Fraser Building, Montreal.

Ready for the Opening.

On Saturday evening many canoes went down the river carrying besides the occupants bedding and provisions for a couple of days' camping. The canoeists were after fish and were going down to be on the grounds ready for the opening of the fishing season to-night. Among the number who went down was Fishery Inspector Breeze, so that any of the impatient anglers who might cast a line a little too soon were liable to pay for their early fun.

The Harwood Railway.

The Cobourg Post says:—"We are informed by Mr. Beal, Grand Trunk agent at Cobourg, that passenger trains will commence running on the Harwood road about the 1st of July. This will be good news for those who have a desire to visit that favorite fishing resort, and who have a limited amount of time at their disposal. The old mode of stage coach is good enough when a person has the time to spare, but the railroad is faster and a great deal more convenient. We bespeak a good patronage for the Grand Trunk in this undertaking."

A Visit from Buffalo Artists.

The Buffalo, N.Y., Courier says:—"Bobcaygeon is the euphonious name of the place selected by the Buffalo Students' Art Club for their July sketch class. It is in the Stony Lake region, near Peterborough, Ont., and is said to be especially adapted for the purposes of the club, by reason of the great variety of picturesque scenery within easy reach and its many other advantages. The indications are that the class will be larger than ever before. Art students wishing to join the class, whether members of the club or not, can obtain full information from the president, Mr. W. F. Corey, at the American Exchange Bank, or from any of the other officers."

A Fine Portrait.

In the window of Mr. A. Clegg's furniture store is a striking portrait which is the workmanship of Mr. Thos. Workman, Peterborough's clever artist. The portrait is that of Mr. J. M. Irwin's father, an old gentleman over ninety years of age who resides in Ireland. The portrait was done from a photograph and is a rare and skillful piece of workmanship. It represents an old gentleman, with a kindly face, full of an expression of vigor and intelligence rather unusual in a man of his years. It is a fine piece of work and Mr. Workman may feel justly proud of the result of his painstaking effort, which is evident in the careful shading and working which a close inspection reveals.

It is conjectured that a specific may yet be found for every ill that flesh is heir to. However this may be, certainly the best specific yet found for diseases of the blood is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and most diseases originate from impure blood.

PREPARED FOR THE FIRST.

The Programme of Sports which will be Presented at St. Joseph's Hospital Picnic.

The committee which have the arrangements for the grand picnic at the grove in Ashburnham in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital are attending to all preliminaries which can possibly add to the success and pleasure of the outing on Dominion Day. There will probably be few other home attractions and the beautiful grounds, with the excellent programme for the day, will draw an immense crowd across the river.

There will be sports and games, a baseball match and an orchestra in attendance. It will be a grand outing and here is a list of the events that are down, outside of the baseball match, with the prizes which have been donated by enterprising firms:—

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The young men's meeting on Saturday evening was well attended. Mr. E. A. Mansell gave a very thoughtful address on "Christ's love for us," which was followed by many present testifying to that love to them. The after meeting was a season of rich blessing.

Mr. Thos. Doods led the consecration service on Sabbath morning in an acceptable manner and all present were much helped.

The open air service in the Central Park yesterday afternoon was attended by a large crowd who listened very attentively to the gospel addresses given by Mr. Pennington, late of Sherbrooke. It was heart searching and will bear fruit. The Y.M.C.A. band were out in goodly numbers and led the singing very effectively.

Rev. J. R. Trotter gave a very impressive address on "How to be Saved" at the gospel and song service last evening. The hall was crowded and all present were much blessed.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

THE ARMY UNDER CANVAS

THE SALVATIONISTS ENCAMPED AT THE EXHIBITION GROUNDS.

A Camp Meeting Which Will Last all Week Opened on Saturday Night—A Big Time Expected.

The music of the band and the beat of the Salvation drum was absent from the town yesterday, at least from that centre portion where the Sabbath stillness is usually awakened by the enthusiastic soldiers, whether it be rain or shine, hot or cold.

The Salvation barracks on Simcoe-st. is practically deserted and its walls will re-echo no more this week to the volleys of the soldiers or the singing of the congregations. There will be no meetings there this week.

But the Army has not given up its fight against sin and the devil in Peterborough. But they have adopted another plan of attack. They are under canvas in the Exhibition grounds, and on Saturday evening a grand camp meeting to last for one week was opened. This new plan of Salvation warfare was adopted in the hope that the good words and earnest warnings of the Army officers and soldiers might reach some who would never enter the barracks to listen to the burning words of salvation as they are given with all the fire, vigor and practical presentment of a Salvationist.

Four tents have been pitched on the Exhibition grounds. There are two which will be occupied by the D. O. and his staff. Then there is a large one, seated and arranged for the meetings. The fourth is a refreshment booth, where the burning thirst of the throat may be assuaged.

At present Staff-Capt. Beatty, D.O., and his wife, Capt. Bolton, Capt. Gal and Lieut. Burns are the officers who are encamped on the grounds. During the week they will be reinforced by Staff-Capt. McIntyre, of Kingston, and Staff-Capt. Banks, of the Training Home at Bowmanville. The meetings will be conducted with the usual enthusiasm and life that characterizes Army gatherings, and will be invigorated by the new surroundings.

Saturday night the camp meeting was opened. The D. O. and Mrs. Beatty took the lead. The band was in attendance and rendered the Army airs with extra vim while the soldiers in their pleasant temporary quarters sang heartily and fired their volleys with unusual vigor. It was a grand meeting, full of hallelujah blood and fire experiences and exhortations.

Yesterday the sun was scorching hot, fairly burning the already dry grass in the Exhibition grounds. Nevertheless a goodly number assembled in the shade of the big tent for knee drill. In the afternoon another good rally was held and again in the evening, vigorous free-and-easy was conducted.

The meetings will be continued all week and it is expected that great crowds will be attracted to the grand camp meeting.

The meeting here is just the beginning of a series. Next week the D. O. and his staff will hold a similar series near Oshawa. The officers will be under canvas for the next month. The band will be in attendance on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The City Pulpits on Sunday and who Were in Them.

Rev. S. J. Shorey, of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church and Rev. J. H. Locke, of the George-st. congregation, exchanged pulpits last evening, Rev. Mr. Shorey being in the George-st. pulpit and Rev. Mr. Locke preaching at Charlotte-st.

Rev. J. L. Murray, of Kincardine, preached at both services in St. Paul's yesterday. There were good congregations to listen to the able and eloquent deliverances of the rev. gentleman.

The Baptist Association opens at Campbellford on Wednesday next.

Rev. Canon Davidson, of Colborne, preached at St. John's church last evening. In the morning the rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, officiated.

At a meeting of the teachers and officers of the George-st. Sunday school held on Friday evening last, the following officers were elected in accordance with church discipline:—Superintendent, H. S. Griffin; Sec.-Treas., A. E. Scott; Senior Librarians, F. Dobbin and W. E. McCamus; Junior Librarians, S. R. Armstrong and R. Mann; Infant Department, Miss Grundy and Mrs. Hawkins. There are forty teachers in the school who were duly appointed.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Innes leave to-morrow for Montreal where they sail on the S. S. Vancouver for England. Mr. Innes goes on a business trip for the firm of Hall, Innes & Co., and with Mrs. Innes will combine pleasure with business.

Mrs. Johnston and daughter, of Toronto, are the guests of Mrs. R. B. Davidson.

His friends will be glad to learn that Mr. H. Calcutt is greatly improved. He was able to sit up a short time to-day.

To restore gray hair to its natural color as in youth, cause it to grow abundant and strong, there is no better preparation than Hall's Hair Renewer.

A Toronto Charity.

The following from the Toronto Globe will be read with interest by Mrs. Leigh's many friends in this neighborhood:—"One of the most commendable charities to be found in the city is the Victoria Home for Aged Women, which was started in a small way by a few ladies under the leadership of Mrs. C. E. Leigh. The movement was inaugurated in 1874, but grew slowly at first. When sufficient money had been accumulated a small cottage was purchased for $600, which was afterwards sold for $1,200. In the jubilee year of 1887 the present home on Lakeview avenue, a few doors above Dundas-st., was purchased for $1,600, and three or four inmates received. The building is an ordinary two-story, brick fronted house and, as it was soon found too small for the work, the ladies decided to rent the building next door as an annex. The opening of the building was yesterday afternoon made the occasion for a special service of praise. About thirty ladies gathered in the parlor, and the service was conducted by Rev. J. McLean Ballard, of St. Anne's Church, and Rev. W. Clarke Hoyes of St. Barnabas. The two buildings will now accommodate about 14 or 15 inmates. One of the present residents is 91 years of age, and is greatly loved by visitors for the brightness and sweetness of her disposition. The officers of the home are as follows:—President, Mrs. Denison; Treasurer, Miss M. Featherstonhaugh; Secretary, Mrs. J. Featherstonhaugh. Executive Committee—Mrs. Herbert Symonds, Mrs. Chas. Denison, Mrs. G. E. Leigh, Mrs. Geo. Morrison, Miss Gibson, Miss Donaldson, Mrs. Arthur Denison, Mrs. E. A. Thompson. Aid in the support of the home will be gladly received by the ladies."

Brevities.

—Rev. V. Clementi's self-register thermometer registered 90 degrees in the shade to-day.

AN ODE OF THANKS.

Mr. Wm. Telford, the Smith Bard, Receives Presents from Admiring Friends.

Mr. Wm. Telford, the bard of Smith township, is a warm-hearted gentleman and he has a number of warm-hearted friends. On Saturday he was in town and was presented by the brickmakers, whose work he recently extolled in rhyme, with a suit of clothes. Mr. R. J. Kidd also presented Mr. Telford with a pair of shoes, Mr. H. LeBrun added a necktie and braces, and Mr. A. P. Morgan crowned the acts of appreciation with a new hat. Mr. Telford was overwhelmed with the kindness of his friends, and acknowledged it in the following lines addressed to Messrs. Mark Curtis and John Heap and those associated with them in purchasing the handsome suit:—

POETRY REWARDED.

Though time has changed my hairs to grey,
With life's sands ebbing fast away,
My heart beats strong and light to-day
As when a young brickmaker.

And why? Because your generous gift
My weight of years and sorrows lift,
And sweeps them off like winter's drift
By your kind act, brickmakers.

Your appreciation of my lines
The bond of friendship strong entwines,
As proof, this suit upon me shines,
Grand present from brickmakers.

Your freewill gift my muse inspires,
Fanning to flame poetic fire;
Could I but write as I desire
I would praise you high, brickmakers.

Appropriate words I fail to find
To thank you for your act so kind;
Though unexpressed, fresh on my mind
Shall love dwell for brickmakers.

I thank you, Mark, but not alone,
Straight from my heart I thank you John,
The same to all that helped you on
With this suit from young brickmakers.

No vain, false praise sounds on my part,
No language trimmed by flattering art,
From the depths of my grateful heart
I thank you, kind brickmakers.

If but His will my life to spare
Long your nice handsome suit to wear,
E'en when its faded, or thread bare,
I will think on you, brickmakers.

May health and wealth dip your life's scale,
Fine weather for your work prevail,
Good price for bricks with ready sale
To reward your toils, brickmakers.

Boys, how your present stirred up strife!
Cruel jealousy has seized my wife,
Fair ones the cause, you bet your life
She blames this suit, brickmakers.

Peace is restored since I did swear
To speak not nor look on the fair
Whenever I the suit do wear
That you gave me, brickmakers.

I strive to grasp and hold the train
Of thoughts that's rushing through my brain.
The hearts true flowing thankful strain,
As a tribute to you, brickmakers.

WILLIAM TELFORD,
Smith.

The Electric Health Shoe.

Mr. Jas. T. Stenson, the veteran boot and shoe merchant, who has just removed his business to 364 George-st., next Ormond & Walsh's drug store, has been appointed agent here for the Electric Health Shoe, a new invention which has just been put upon the market. These shoes are supplied with a gentle current of electricity, by means of a battery in the sole, and it is claimed the electro-magnetism creates a lively circulation through the whole body, keeps the feet warm and dry, and protects the human system from the deadly chills which cause sickness. These shoes cost no more than any other kind, and wear quite as well. Mr. Stenson is the agent in Peterborough. 4d126-4w26

WARNED BY A MOUSE.

II.

It was six o'clock P.M., and Grace Rivington, after an early dinner, had gone up to her own room for the important and laborious work of dressing for her first ball. It had been a fine calm day for November; the fire of wood had all but died out, and the window was still ajar as her friend had left it in the morning. But as it grew darker and colder, and the serious business of the night had to be begun, Grace closed and fastened it, and going to the opposite side of the room, sat down in front of a large cheval glass, and, as many a pretty girl has done before, took a calm survey of herself, and determined to wear the white dress. As she looked at the glass, into which the flickering fire now and then threw a fitful touch of light, she was suddenly startled by a slight rustling sound behind her, as a mouse dashed out and scampered across the floor; and then, turning her head, she saw, to her utter horror, a pair of eyes watching her from one corner of the room, among the curtains, where the mouse had sprung out!

For a moment she was utterly paralysed with dread; and not daring, or able, to move, was about to cry out for help. Luckily for her, the cry was stifled; and then with a sort of desperate courage, she turned back to her old position, and again looked into the glass, as if nothing had happened. At the very first glance, the two terrible eyes seemed to be still fixed on her from among the dark folds of the curtain; and she shuddered as she looked. It was clearly some scoundrel who had hidden himself there for some plan of robbery, and her life for the moment was in his hands; and all depended on her success or failure in lulling him into a belief that his presence had not been detected.

After a minute of sharp thought, her usual resolute will prevailed; her courage rose, and her plan was formed. Without rising from her chair, she drew up to her side a small writing table, calmly lighted a wax candle, and began writing a series of pretended notes, sealing and addressing each, as if for the post. Over the last of these notes she seemed to take much trouble, and, as if not satisfied with it, began to read aloud short bits of it as she went on, with an occasional word of comment: "We depend on your being here, my dear Jennie, in good time tonight, whatever the weather be; and I send this by a special messenger to say that we shall keep you until to-morrow. I have heaps of birthday presents to show you and the loveliest diamond necklace." As she uttered these last words, she suddenly stopped and said, as if in a whisper to herself: "Why, what a goose I am! Old Foster the jeweller has never sent back the rings and necklace, though he faithfully promised I should have them in good time this morning. Jane must go for them at once, or I shall not get them in time."

Then, having sealed up and directed the last of her pretended notes, she walked with trembling steps to the bell rope, pulled it, waited for a moment, and next unlocked a drawer and took out her jewel case. As she did so, the door opened, and the servant appeared. "Jane," said her mistress, "tell Richard to take this note to the Grange, and this to Dr. Forbes' at once. There are no answers; but as he comes back, call at Foster the watchmaker's with the other note, and ask for my rings and necklace which he had to clean. As it's getting late he had better take the pony. The necklace he can put in this box; Foster has the key." And with these words she handed to the servant her precious jewel-case. In another moment the door was shut, and Grace once more alone, with the pair of eyes watching intently from behind the curtain.

The owner of the eyes had seen and heard all that had happened, and though slightly puzzled, thought it best not to move as yet; especially as he saw that the young lady was calmly going on with her toilet, and had lighted two wax candles.

Meanwhile, Jane herself was slightly puzzled, but, being a well-trained servant, obeyed her mistress's orders. "Here, Richard," said she: "Miss Grace says you're to take the pony as sharp as you can and leave these notes at the Grange and at old Forbes's; and as you come back, call at Foster's for some rings and a necklace that's to go into this case."

In five minutes he was on his way. The three notes he carried with him were duly delivered, and read with amazement by the recipients. The one to Dr. Forbes ran thus:

My Dear Doctor—Don't be alarmed though I beg you to come straight to the manor-house when you have read this. Say nothing to the servants, but make your way quietly up to the Oak Room, where I wait your coming. Uncle is away at the magistrates' meeting. Lose not a moment.

Grace Rivington.

The second note was this:

My Dearest Florrie—A mouse got into Oak Room, and here I am a prisoner; send your two brothers at once to deliver me—at once.—Ever your affectionate, Grace.

Foster the watchmaker, utterly and hopelessly puzzled, read as follows:

Mr. Foster, take the box which the bearer will give you to Barnet, the parish constable; tell him to bring it here to the manor-house at once. G. Rivington.

Old Forbes was the first to recover from his amazement and, after a moment's thought, to hurry down to his surgery and rush out of the house—armed with a case of instruments and his biggest stick—without a word to wife or servants, or to himself, but, "What on earth is that witch of a girl up to now?" He ran as hard as he could, and in ten minutes, red-hot and breathless, reached the hall door of the manor-house, where he was well known.

"Parker," said he to the astonished footman, "Miss Grace says I am to go straight to her room without being announced. I know my way." Then he walked quickly up-stairs and knocked at the door of the Oak Room, and at once entered.

His patient, with a pale face, and her long hair streaming down over her shoulders, was sitting in a low chair in front of the mirror; the fire had died out into white ashes, and the dim light of the two wax candles left half the room in darkness.

"Grace, what has happened! Are you ill —here, all alone?"

And then came a dead silence, more terrible than any speech. She tried to speak, but for many minutes the effort was vain, and ended in a few broken sobs and still more broken words. While the agony of suspense and fear lasted, she had bravely kept up her courage; but now with safety had come the reaction. Her nerves, after being strung up to the highest pitch, suddenly collapsed; and the doctor was fairly puzzled. But at last, after a sharp effort, came an intelligible sound, and she stammered out: "Not ill, doctor, not ill; and not alone; he is there behind the curtains!"

Before he could ask "Who or what is behind the curtains?" out stepped Mr. Sikes, to answer for himself, a common roadside tramp of the lowest order, who that very morning had begged for victuals at the kitchen door and been awarded with beer in honour of the day. "All right, governor," says Sikes; "you needn't make so fuss. I ain't done no harm to the young lady; and the winder bein' open, you see, I only came in to get a rest."

But at that moment there was a sudden and tremendous clatter on the stairs, and in rushed not only the two brothers from the Grange and the parish constable, but the whole troop of terrified servants. In the midst, however, of all the noisy confusion, congratulation, and outcries that followed, Sikes continued his speech, with the same unblushing impudence as he had begun it: "And to think, now, of being took in by that there young gal, a-knowin' all the time that I was behind the curtains, and she ready to drop at a mouse!"

When Grace had reluctantly swallowed a glass of wine, recovered herself enough to tell her brief story and regain her birthday necklace, then arose a fierce discussion as to what was to be done with Mr. Sikes.

"Constable," said the old doctor, "tie that fellow's hands behind him and lock him up in the Clink until the Squire comes home; and first give him a good ducking in the horse-pond."

But then the vagabond altered his tune, and put on such a piteous look, and told such a miserable whining tale of starvation and misery, that Grace's voice prevailed; though he did not escape his taste of the pond.

"Let him go, let him go," she said, and take him away at once, before the Squire comes back, which he may do at any minute. —And now all my dear good friends, a thousand thanks to you, every one! But begone, all of you, for the clock has struck seven, and I have to be dressed before eight!"

In spite of all difficulties, however, Miss Grace Rivington, in her white dress and wearing her diamond necklace, was the admiration of all beholders that night at the ball. She danced many dances, and not a few with Charlie Burton, who after his marriage told me this true story.

Unseasonable Weather in England.

LONDON, June 14.—The season in England is maintaining its unseasonable character, and we are still having wintry weather, though well along in June. In a year of normal character the first week of June would be enlivened by the musical hum of the mowing machine, but such is not the case this year. The low temperature, cold rains and storms of hail and snow have checked all vegetation and the pastures and meadows are almost as bare as in February. This means practically that we shall have but a small hay crop and that extra food will have to be provided for stock until the summer. The hail storms have done much damage to fruit trees, and in some districts in the west of England it is said that the apple orchards have been stripped of their blossoms and the entire promise of the year destroyed. The night frosts have also done much harm, the early potatoes in many districts having been cut down as though by a spade. Wheat is generally spoken of as looking well. But everything is very backward.

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising in the widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realize results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.
